Cuban Troops Kill 2 Rebels; 12 Plotters Imprisoned

Santa Clara Province Uprising Crushed After Battle.

Second Planned Revolt Thwarted

Havana, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—Soldiers took over complete control of the capital tonight after a brief rebel outbreak in Santa Clara province and discovery of a revolt plot in Pinar Del Rio province. Two were killed in fighting near Sancti Spiritus, in Santa Clara.

A rural guard platoon, under Capt. Torres, fought a rebel band near Sancti Spiritus, dispersing them and killing several of their horses, in addition to two rebels.

In Pinar Del Rio military authorities discovered a plot for a revolt to start tonight, they said. They arrested one former captain, seven former lieutenants and four civilians, including a prominent doctor, Leon Cuervo Rubio. All, reported to be Menocalistas, were sent here for confinement.

Extensive precautions were taken in Havana. A Communist demonstration at Cabana was dispersed, but serious trouble was feared.

Moratorium Planned.

Havana, Sept. 30 (AP).—Dr. Juan Maspons Franco, chairman of the Cuban economic commission, tonight revealed he has recommended to President Ramon Grau San Martin a two-year suspension of payments of the capital of Cuba's foreign debt.

Interest payments would be continued under the plan devised by Dr. Maspons Franco and his son, Dr. Juan Jose Maspons, legal adviser to the treasury department.

He said three plans to help the republic toward financial rehabilitation had been under consideration.

The first involved suspension of capital payments on the public work obligations only. These now total some $80,000,000.

The second contemplated moratorium both on capital and interest.

Both these plans have been rejected in favor of moratorium on capital payments only, Maspons declared.

Cubans Slain In Sugar Feud

Santiago, Cuba, Sept. 30 (AP).—Reports reaching here today said Vincente Concepcion, cane planter, and 40 armed men had engaged followers of Miguel Viamontes, another sugar planter, in a pitched battle near Chaparra, Oriente Province. Four men were killed and several wounded in the battle.

Concepcion and Viamontes, it was said, had differed over personal matters and Concepcion's men burned several buildings on Viamonte's property. Viamonte's men had sought refuge in a general store, which Concepcion's forces were said to have attacked.

Viamontes escaped to Holguin. efforts to remove him from the railway station there were thwarted by the Holguin chief of police.

Walter Camp, Jr., Takes New Bride

Weds Indianapolis Woman in New York City.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Walter Camp, jr., son of the football expert and former husband of Ruth Elder, aviatrix, was married in the Municipal Chapel today to Mrs. Gladys Lindsay Smith, of Indianapolis.

Applying for the license, Camp gave his age as 42 and his occupation as banking. Mrs. Smith, a daughter of David A. Lindsay, Indianapolis, said she was 30.

Honduras Capital Swept by Flood

Waters Inundate Prison; Peril President's Home.

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Sept. 30 (AP).—Heavy property damage was done but apparently no lives were lost in an overflow of the Chiquito River.

Bridges and houses were damaged as the flood swept deep into the capital city.

The waters lapped to within 50 feet of the presidential palace and rose knee-deep in the penitentiary,

Indiana Felon Killed As He Shoots Pursuer

Nashville, Ind., Sept. 30 (U.P.).—Angry citizens tonight surrounded and fatally wounded James Jenkins, 30, one of ten escaped Indiana State prison convicts, after the felon shot and wounded a posseman.

Jenkins died in the office of a physician here a few minutes after he fell under a fusillade fired by a hastily organized posse. Before he was shot he wounded Herbert MacDonald, posseman, in the arm.

The convict had made his way here after being separated from a larger group of the fleeing felons at Indianapolis. One other convict previously had surrendered.

Eight Still at Large.

Jenkins apepared at the little hamlet of Bean Blossom shortly after sundown. Citizens had been warned he was in the vicinity and organized a posse after the hunted man was seen.

Herbert McDonald, oil station operator, was a member of the posse. He stepped out of his automobile to question Jenkins and the convict drew a revolver and fired. Other possemen instantly poured a volley of lead at Jenkins and he fell, fatally wounded.

Death of the felon ended a wild 24-hour flight southward through Indiana. Jenkins was one of six convicts who evaded police at an Indianapolis suburb last night in an 80-mile-an-hour chase. He was flung out of the convicts' car as it rounded a curve at high speed.

He was injured slightly in the fall but kidnaped Victor Lyle, Indianapolis motorist, and forced him to drive here. The automobile ran out of gasoline here and Lyle escaped while the convict attempted to get a new supply.

Escapes on Foot.

Jenkins then abandoned the automobile and escaped on foot. He was a former resident of the vicinity and well acquainted with all roads and lines which enabled him to escape the scores of citizens who hunted him all day.

Sheriff Charles Neel, of Corydon, questioned today, said he told a false story of his enforced three-day flight with the convicts because they threatened his wife and child.

"When I was released the men warned me they would 'get' my family if I talked too much," the sheriff said. "Clark, ill and too weak to go on, was left to guard me near Hobart.

"I kept telling him he would die if he didn't see a doctor and he finally walked with me to Hobart and turned me loose after warning me again about talking 'too much.'"

Auto Magnate Is Reported Preparing to Restore Peak Wage in 1934.

Detroit, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—Henry Ford hopes next year to place his gigantic industrial empire far above the threat of strikes and possible NRA intervention, it was learned tonight, by returning his workers to a $6-a-day minimum such as he had prior to the depression.

The 70-year-old industrialist is spending a great deal of his time working out a definite plan for the wage "coup d'etat." He intends to put the plan in effect just as soon as the production pickup he expects next year materializes.

Convinced prices are rising and wages must rise in proportion, Ford has been preparing for return to his peak wage scale. While a few of his employes still are receiving the depression $4-a-day minimum, he has raised the majority to $4.80 daily minimum and contemplates further pay boosts soon.

The manufacturer is represented as little concerned over strikes at two of his Eastern plants—Chester, Pa., and Edgewater, N. J.—and just as indifferent to remarks about his attitude emanating from Washington.

Convicts Volunteer In Disease Fight

Used in Experiment Seeking Sleep Death Carrier.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 30 (AP).—Offering their bodies for experiment into the mystery of encephalitis, or sleeping sickness, ten white Mississippi convicts between the ages of 21 and 40 years are being used by State and Federal authorities to determine whether the disease which caused many deaths in St. Louis is communicated by mosquito bites.

These convicts are a group of carefully selected from 50 'who volunteered their services to the experiments at the Parchman State penitentiary farm. The reward for the 10 men is a pardon from Governor Sennett Connor.

Brooklyn Girl Sings To Berlin Audience

Berlin, Sept. 30 (AP).—Margaret Halstead, of Brooklyn, N. Y., made her debut tonight as a guest singer at the State opera, taking the part of Venus in "Tannhauser."

She received a tremendous ovation from a large audience which included a number of Americans.

28 Visitors at Fair Injured in Blast

Gas Tank Operating 'Whip' at Trenton Explodes.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 30 (AP).—At least 28 persons were injured today at the Trenton State Fair, when a gasoline tank on a machine operating "the whip," exploded.

The accident occurred 50-feet from the huge fireproof grandstands where about 10,000 persons were watching the concluding events on a program of automobile racing.

Of the number injured, 19 were firemen, who suffered burns.

Blast Wrecks Greek Bridge.

Salonika, Greece, Sept. 30 (AP).—A railway bridge on the route of the Simplon-Orient Express, 50 miles north of here just beyond the Serbian border, was wrecked last night by a series of bomb explosions.

Automobile Deaths Found Decreasing By Census Bureau

Fewer deaths from automobile accidents were reported yesterday by the Census Bureau to have occurred last year than during each of the previous two years, reports the Associated Press.

Total deaths, excluding Utah, for which data had not been received, were 28,240, at the rate of 23.6 for each 100,000 of population.

There were 32,429 deaths, a rate of 27.2, in 1931, and 31,678 deaths, a rate of 26.9, in 1930.

Soviet Airmen Break Record

(Copyright, 1933, by the United Press.)

Moscow, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—A Soviet balloon ascended 11¾ miles into the upper stratosphere on a quest for scientific data today, reaching a height never before attained by man.

Three Soviet scientists manned the balloon, and when it descended tonight they announced they had reached more than 19,000 meters, which is 62,230 feet. Their instruments are yet to be officially calibrated.

The previous record, set over the Alps by Prof. Auguste Piccard and Max Cosyns, was 53,153 feet.

Safe and warm in their hermetically sealed metal gondola, they recorded a temperature outside of 88.6 degrees below zero, while the heat inside went to 86 degrees above zero, due to the sun beating down on their globe-shaped cage.

Not content with their amazing feat, the Russians announced another attempt will be made tomorrow, or as soon afterward as possible, in a larger balloon, to exceed today's record by the Ussr, as their craft was named.

Peru Legislator's Gun Wounds Aid

Shot Fired in Scuffle to Disarm Official.

Lima, Peru, Sept. 30 (AP).—Fernando Del Solar, an employe of the Constituent Assembly, was seriously wounded today when a gun went off in an argument between deputies.

In the final day of session a controversy over army promotions became disorderly. Deputy Oscar Medelius, of Callao, heard someone refer to him as "miserable" and he arose with an automatic in his hand.

Argentine Officer Held In Prison Break Plot

Buenos Aires, Sept. 30 (AP).—A plot to dynamite the National Prison and free the inmates was broken up today, police asserted, with the arrest of Gen. Severo Toranzo, retired army officer.

Customs Pact Voted.

Buenos Aires, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Senate today approved an Argentine-British customs agreement. Approval previously had been given by the Chamber of Deputies.

13 Convicted Of Kidnaping Urschel, Luer

(Associated Press.)

The law struck hard at the kidnap racket yesterday. Thirteen defendants in two famous cases were convicted.

In Oklahoma City, seven persons—one the notorious Harvey Bailey, another a woman—were found guilty of kidnaping Charles Urschel, millionaire oil operator, for $200,000 ransom.

For the abduction of August Luer, banker, of Alton, Ill., a jury in Edwardsville, Ill., convicted five men and a woman and assessed punishments of from five years to life.

But even as this crushing blow was dealt to those who jeopardize life for ransom, former Gov. Philip La Follette of Wisconsin disclosed an attempt was made by two unidentified men to kidnap him or do him harm. He said they paid stealthy visits to a secluded Wisconsin lodge where he planned to spend Friday night.

To bolster the Federal-State coordinated attack on crime, police officials, meeting in Bridgeport, Conn., formed an emergency committee of police chiefs, aimed at kidnaping and other racketeering.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation of the Department of Justice, joined forces with the police chiefs.

Gang Convicted.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—Harvey Bailey and six members of his band of desperadoes were convicted today of kidnaping Charles F. Urschel. The defendants, who took the verdict stoically, were:

Bailey, one of the most desperate criminals in the Southwest, leader of a prison break and suspect in the Kansas City Union Station massacre; Albert L. Bates, his aid; R. G. (Boss) Shannon, Texas farmer and father-in-law of George (Machine Gun) Kelly; Mrs. Shannon, their son, Armon Clifford Skelly, of St. Paul, and Barney Berman, also of that city.

Teeth in "Lindbergh Law."

The convictions were the first under the "Lindbergh law," designed as a powerful weapon in the Nation's war on kidnapers.

A jury of small town business men reported the verdict to Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught. The dramatic court scene, staged amid a crowd of society leaders, friends of the kidnap victim, lasted but five minutes.

Attorneys of those convicted filed appeals for new trials, or announced intention of such action. Judge Vaught will rule on the motions Friday.

"It is one of the most important victories in our war to stamp out predatory crime," declared Assistant Attorney General Joseph Keenan, the President's anticrime general, before leaving for Washington. "I am well satisfied."

Playing Boy Shot By Burglar Trap

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 30 (AP).—Homebound from school, Voyell Armstrong, 11, kicked a wire in the grass as he stooped to play with a tame rabbit.

The boy will recover.

Two Men Hunted in Plot To Kidnap, Kill La Follette

Former Governor Tells How Pair Terrified Wife of Friend.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 30 (AP).—Philip F. La Follette, former Governor of Wisconsin and his associates, were striving tonight to clear up what La Follette believed was an attempt to kidnap him or kill him at a secluded cottage on Lake Geneva.

Two unidentified men, who called at the cottage about 10:30 p. m., Friday night, about four hours before La Follette arrived there to spend the night, were hunted by private detectives and county officials.

The cottage is owned by former Representative Thomas R. Amlie, of Elkhorn. Both had gone to Kenosha and when they returned they found Mrs. Amlie badly frightened.

Woman Frightened.

Two strangers had awakened Mrs. Amlie and assumed a menacing attitude when she informed them her husband and the former governor were not there. Two hours later they called again and went away only after Mrs. Amlie told them she did not expect her husband that night.

As they prowled about outside the house Mrs. Amlie thought she observed the men wore masks. They made no attempt to break in.

"What mystifies me," La Follette said today, when he first revealed the incident on the advice of a friend, Attorney Fred Holmes, of Madison, "was how those men knew I was going to stay at the Amlie Cottage. I had not told any one.

Suspects Death Plot.

"It looked like a well-thought-out program. If they wanted to kidnap me, I can't understand their motive, for they must have known that neither myself nor any member of my family has any money. Those men weren't dumb."

"They may have disliked my political philosophy and wanted to get rid of me," he said.

McAdoo Leaves Berlin, Conceals Destination

Berlin, Sept. 30 (AP).—Senator W. G. McAdoo, of California, who arrived here last night by airplane from Moscow, left Berlin today without revealing his destination.

It was believed, however, he was en route to Paris, thought to be the destination of Senator and Mrs. R. R. Reynolds, of North Carolina, who passed through Warsaw by train today en route from the Soviet capital.

NRA Waits End of Mine Strike Today

Johnson's Hopes Mount After Parleys With Both Groups.

(Associated Press.)

Pressing vigorously for a settlement of the Western Pennsylvania coal strike, Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery chieftan, announced last night he expected a compromise to be worked out today under which the miners would go back to their jobs tomorrow.

He announced this to newspapermen after conferring all day with representatives of large steel companies which own bituminous coal mines supplying their own needs and of the United Mine Workers union.

Despite announcement by President Roosevelt Friday that the "Captive," as the steel-mill controlled mines are known, had agreed to come under the coal code, which goes into effect tomorrow and to give their men the same wages and working conditions as in the surrounding unionized territory, the miners had stood fast for recognition of the United Mine Workers Union as a condition to returning to the shaft.

Dispute Over Union.

The steel men, Johnson told reporters, refused absolutely to give formal recognition to the union. In response to questions Johnson agreed that the issue with the steel men concerned the coal mines only slightly, but that they were making a determined stand against what might prove to be an entering wedge for outside unionization of the entire steel industry.

Johnson said it was beyond his power to require any agreement from any employer or worker group. In view of the steel men's refusal to sign a union agreement, Johnson determined to exhaust possibilities of a compromise and proceeded to lay before his conferees alternative suggestions.

He conferred with Myron Taylor, chairman of ht e board of United States Steel Co.; Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, and Nathan I. Miller, former New York Governor and counsel for the American Iron and Steel Institute.

The gravity which the steel men attached to the question was reflected in the unwillingness of these outstanding leaders of the industry to act alone. They insisted, before giving a decision, on consulting with other members of the institute.

Johnson called the steel men to Walter Reed Hospital, where he has

Green Urges Labor to Halt Strike Tide

Pleads With Unions to Submit Differences to Arbitration.

Fear of Recovery Move Peril Prompts War on Walkouts.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, last night on the eve of the federation's annual convention here, moved to stamp out the rising tide of strikes by appealing to all labor to give the President's arbitration machinery a chance to settle its troubles before throwing down its tools.

Strikes, he said, are "legally and morally right," but should only be a "last resort."

Two motives were behind his appeal.

The first was fear the strikes might reach such proportions as to jeopardize the Roosevelt recovery movement. Already the recovery road is being obstructed in many sections by labor troubles. Nearly 100,000 coal miners are on strike. Difficulties are spreading in the automobile industry and efforts are being made to call out steel workers at Pittsburgh.

Position Threatened.

The second motive, vouched for by NRA officials, who said they would be forced to take matters into their own hands and promulgate antistrike policies if Green fails, is a desire to defeat an insurgent group within the A. F. of L. which is reported to be stirring up the strikes as preliminary to efforts to remove him from the presidency when the A. F. of L. convention opens here tomorrow.

NRA officials who appeared to have inside information asserted the difficult political labor situation only can be ironed out by a row at the convention.

Green, they said, is viewed by the insurgents as too conservative.

Meanwhile, evidence of dissatisfaction with Green's "have patience-with-the-NRA" policy and his organization policies were found among delegates arriving for the convention.

Too Patient, Is Claim.

"Too much patience is being asked," they said, adding that the codes in certain instances set maximum hours which are longer and minimum pay which is lower than those being paid; that some industrialists are discharging employes so they can be hired back at lower pay and ratings.

More internal friction became apparent when the metal trades unions representing 800,000 men, by unanimous vote made known they are seeking support for a resolution which would condemn the present methods by which the American Federation of Labor is seeking to expand its membership.

"Today wage earners are organizing at a tremendous rate," Green said in his appeal. "They realize their new freedom and they seek redress for ancient wrongs. The militancy of the great masses of wage earners after three years of suffering is amazing.

"But it seems opportune to counsel conservation of effort and wisdom in all our actions. I urge all workers who have grievances to make use of the instrumentalities now available (the NRA National Labor Board) before resorting to the extreme action of striking.

"If there is a failure to secure redress through these agencies, the right to strike certainly remains open as an instrument of last resort.

Gran Chaco War Mandate Declined

South American Nations Refuse to Mediate.

Rio de Janeiro, Sept. 30 (AP).—The ABCP nations—Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Peru—late today sent a telegram to the League of Nations, rejecting a proffered mandate to serve as mediators in the Gran Chaco war between Bolivia and Paraguay.

The message was sent after a 2½-hour conference between Afranio de Mellofranco, Brazilian foreign minister, and representatives of the other countries.

German Diplomat Attacked in Prague

Czechoslovakians Dislike Nazi Swastika.

Prague, Sept. 30 (AP).—Baron von Bibra, secretary of the German Legation, was attacked by a street crowd here today because he was wearing a swastika—the Nazi emblem.

He and the legation's military attache, Col. von Falkenhorst, were rescued by police before either had been injured seriously.

Six men were arrested.

Roosevelt Trip To Give Legion Address Likely

New York Governor Continues to Improve

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Continued improvement was noted tonight in condition of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, confined to his home with appendicitis. His physcans issued a bulletin this evening, saying: "Gov. Lehman spent a very comfortable day. His condition continues to improve."

Price - Fixation In Retail Code Delays Signing

Farm Administration Will Press Fight on Clause in View of Conflict.

Opposition to price-fixing in the NRA general retail code developed in a new quarter last night. Modification of the price provisions will be demanded by the Federal Farm Administration unless fixing is eliminated or changed substantially by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson.

The farm division has expressed disapproval of the minimum price-fixing proposed for the food and grocery charter it will promulgate. It now will seek, a high authority said, to have price-fixing in the general retail code modified on the ground it would stimulate rise in prices paid by farmers and help offset any rise in farm-product prices.

The attitude of the farm administration somewhat complicated the situation. Previously opposition to the price provision had come from retailers themselves or economists. Plans to send the retail code to the President for decision on price fixing were canceled, with the probability the document would not leave NRA offices until Tuesday at least.

Stabilization Sought.

The retail code is designed to stabilize prices by prohibiting retailers from selling at less than wholesale cost plus 10 per cent. Farm economists say this would stimulate prices, and that figures show farm purchasing power has decreased lately instead of increased.

Informal representations have been made by Farm Administration officials to the NRA that the 10 per cent mark-up would increase difficulties in getting parity prices for farmers. A spokesman said the representations "would be followed up as far as necessary on a friendly and informal basis. There is no conflict and probably no difference of opinion."

The farm administrator has flatly barred "stop-loss" provisions from the grocery code, apparently bringing the two retail charters into conflict.

Grocery Limit Lower.

The grocery code as proposed by the industry sets wholesale cost plus 7½ per cent as the price below which retail groceries can not be sold. Agricultural Department economists, fearing price increases, have lined up against such a guarantee.

Individual Washington grocers scoffed at the figure, asserting a grocery store could not be operated at profit even if goods were sold at 10 per cent above wholesale. Government economists likewise say this.

Decision Expected Soon.

NRA men say the demand for price control is so overwhelming they do not see how the administration can refuse to give it a trial.

NRA officials also contend it is impossible for dry goods and shoe stores to be under minimum-price regulation if the grocery store across the street is not. The Farm Administration's attitude is inter-

Support for NRA Urged by Hoover

"Must Put Plan Over if Possible," He Says.

Omaha, Nebr., Sept. 30 (AP).—After a conference with Republican leaders between trains here today, former President Hoover was quoted by one of the group as urging support for President Roosevelt's NRA program.

"We must help the administration put it over if it's humanly possible," Gould Dietz, of Omaha, quoted the former President as advising the group.

Coach Firm to Boost Pay to 1929 Level

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Frederic T. Wood, president of the Fifth Avenue Coach Co., announced today wages of his concern will be returned to 1929 levels tomorrow.

He said the raise would be approximately 10 per cent.

President May Attend in Effort to Curb Calls for Cash.

Patman's Bonus Revival Also Strong Reason for Journey.

President Roosevelt will announce at Hyde Park today whether he will accept an invitation to address the American Legion's Chicago convention, opening tomorrow.

Railroad officials here were known to be preparing a schedule calling for the President to leave his New York home today. He would reach Chicago at noon tomorrow, they said.

It was pointed out the President may take this opportunity to address the Legion at a time when a word or two might stem organization action on such volatile issues as cash-bonus payment.

Wishes to Make Trip.

From Hyde Park came word that Mr. Roosevelt has been counting on making the hurried trip if the situation permits. He is closely watching national affairs, and particularly the Cuban crisis.

If these problems permit, there is every expectation Mr. Roosevelt will journey to Chicago, where he will remain only a few hours. He will return to New York City, where he will speak Wednesday before the Conference of the Catholic Charities.

The Western trip would enable the President to carry out another desire. It has been long known he is anxious to make a tour of the World's Fair.

May Head Off Demands.

Officials who have conferred with Mr. Roosevelt believe he may take this occasion to appeal to the veterans to defer all new demands upon the Treasury.

It was believed here the President would make his address a vehicle for outlining just what revision the administration contemplates in the wholesale pension cuts ordered last session.

Observers believe he will go at least half way to meet the program sponsored by legion leaders. It is a moderate program, entirely subjugating the bonus issue, but asking at least partial restoration of the $400,000,000 in economy cuts.

If the convention platform goes through as drafted by leaders, Congress would be called on to restore all service-connected disability pensions severely slashed by the economy act.

While there is little sentiment among this group for cash bonus payment, it was felt Representative

Kelly's Return Set for Today

U. S. Agents Planning to Fly to Oklahoma City With Kidnaper.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 30 (AP).—George ("Machine Gun") Kelly and his wife will be moved by plane to Oklahoma City about dawn tomorrow, a reliable source said tonight.

Unless some change in plans is made, the Kellys will be taken from the Shelby County Jail under the machine-gun guard of a small army of Federal agents and Memphis police.

It was understood that shortly before dawn was selected as the time of departure so that the Department of Justice agents could get an early start with the prisoners, yet pass over Little Rock about daylight. The airway from Memphis to Little Rock is lighted, but there are no lights from the Arkansas city on into Oklahoma.

The number of planes that will accompany the ship carrying the prisoners was not determined, but at least once before when the removal of the two had been planned, a guard of other ships, carrying Department of Justice agents with machine guns, was provided for.

"Boss" Murphy's Widow Dies of Heart Attack

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Mrs. Charles F. Murphy, whose deceased husband was leader of Tammany Hall, died suddenly today of heart disease.

With her was her only child, Mrs. James A. Foley, wife of the Surrogate. Mrs. Murphy had been active in charitable work, including many Catholic organizations.

Berlin, Sept. 30 (AP).—Ten foreign publications were barred from Germany today, among them the Ukrainian Daily News, of New York. The rest were mostly Czech publications.

Public Gloats On New York Political War

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—A triumvirate of contrasting personalities—a broad sword, a rapier and a lance—has changed Gotham's mayoralty duel into a joust and has the city gasping with excitement over the keenest political war in years.

Mayor John Patrick O'Brien, a Tammany stalwart, sedate, dignified, is the broadsword. Behind him are the cohorts of the wigwam, embattled, determined.

Fiorello H. LaGuardia—his dash and tenacity belie the soft vowels of his name—is the rapier. A fusion candidate, who claims allegiance to Republicanism, and who wooed disgruntled Democrats, LaGuardia is the fire-eating type who asks no quarter and gives none.

Joseph V. McKee—he taught Greek once at Fordham University—is the lance, studious and soft-spoken.

Reformer Joe McKee.

Quiet, unruffled, McKee is a Democrat who tried to pull Tammany's toenails and then got snubbed. He was acting mayor from the abdication of Jimmy ("Will-You-Love-Me-in-December") Walker until the election of O'Brien.

He contends public office is a trust. He attempted reforms, ran into a political storm and then quit politics and returned to the mortgage business.

His friends—some say Postmaster General Jim Farley's hand was on the deal—urged him to make the race against O'Brien and LaGuardia. He came out today with a blast against Tammany and a thrust against fusion.

Bomber LaGuardia.

McKee was born in the Bronx 44 years ago. He wanted to be a fireman.

He once was a newspaperman. His wit always is ready and keen.

LaGuardia was born in Arizona. His parents came from Italy. A black-haired, heavy-jowled man of 53, he was a diplomat at 20 and in Congress at 36. He was a flier in the World War—a bomber—and he's been shelling Tammany ever since he became a power in New York.

He made beer on the sidewalks of New York because he thought prohibition an absurdity. He supported Wilson and the war regime in Congress. Walker beat him for mayor in 1929.

Tammanyite O'Brien.

O'Brien, now 60, is a Tammany loyalist and Tammany has stuck by him. He came to New York from Massachusetts at the age of 24, hung out an "Attorney-at-Law" shingle, joined Tammany and began a steady climb.

He became a city counsel in 1901 and was promoted by Mayor Hylan in 1922. Two years later Tammany made him surrogate, and last year it made him mayor.

A big man, pink-faced and kindly, O'Brien once said:

Navy Sends Officer To Fly on Zeppelin

Lakehurst Chief to Make Germany-Chicago Trip.

Lakehurst, N. J., Sept. 30 (AP).—Lieut. Comdr. Jesse L. Kenworthy, commandant at the Naval Air Station here, today said he received orders from Washington to go to Friedrichshafen, Germany, for a flight to South America and Chicago on the Graf Zeppelin.

He will sail Wednesday and will be the guest of Dr. Hugo Eckener on an instruction flight. He will be official observer for the United States Navy.

He conferred with Tom Kennedy, international secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers, and by telephone spoke also to John L. Lewis, president, and other officials of the union. Lewis, like Johnson, has been ill.

Johnson Active Again.

When Johnson called reporters to the hospital for the first time since he has been there, they found him walking about, spry and active, using the dressing rooms of the military hospital as offices.

He admitted that the effort to conclude the last great problem of the coal code satisfactorily had increased his temperature and left him very tired. He maintained he intended to return to his office Monday.

Bethesda Woman's Club Will Meet Tomorrow

The formal program of the Woman's Club of Bethesda will begin with a meeting of the executive board tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the clubhouse at Old Georgetown road and Sonoma lane. Mrs. Charles Leonard Chambers, who was elected president in the spring, will preside.

In addition to the president, Mrs. Chambers, the executive board includes the following officers and chairmen: First vice president, Mrs. Eugene Ferry Smith; second vice president, Mrs. Alvin B. Barber; recording secretary, Mrs. Herbert Evison; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Nathaniel F. Rabner; treasurer, Mrs. G. Wady Imirie; historian, Mrs. Reginald B. Looker; parliamentarian, Mrs. J. Wilbur Green; director to the Montgomery County Federation, Mrs. Eugene Ferry Smith.

Mrs. Elise Stern Wed to Diplomat

Becomes Bride in Paris of Ambassador.

Paris, Sept. 30 (AP).—Mrs. Elise Stern, sister of Eugene Meyer, publisher of The Washington Post, and Dr. L. Martinas de Souza Dantas, Brazilian Ambassador to France, were married today with Brazilian and American notables as witnesses.

J. Theodore Marriner, American Embassy counselor, and Princess Sacha Narischine were witnesses for the bride at a civil ceremony in the Seventh Ward City Hall.

Later the chapel of St. Clothild's Church was the scene of a private ceremony, at which the bride's witnesses were the Princess and Duchess D'Uzes. Dr. Epitacio Pessoa, former Brazilian president, and James D'Arcy, former president of the Bank of Brazil, were witnesses for the Ambassador at both ceremonies. Mr. Marriner represented Jesse I. Straus, American Ambassador.

Visit of Roosevelt To Legion Likely

Wright Patman's revival of the bonus issue might bring that matter also to the fore.

A personal appeal from Mr. Roosevelt might substantially influence convention action on either one of the two issues, officials pointed out here.

"Reasonable economies in the Army and Navy can be effected without injury to our national defense, but the country was not prepared to accept the drastic cuts proposed," the national commander added in his annual report.

Committees yesterday were at work on nearly 1,000 resolutions embracing widely varied recommendations for national legislation from legion posts and departments in all 48 States.

Orderly merriment prevailed in Chicago yesterday as 100,000 veterans poured into the city and hundreds more entrained for the convention. Convention business will not get under way until tomorrow.

If President Roosevelt decides to attend, he will not be the only honored guest. Guglielmo Marconi, Italy's celebrated inventor of wireless, and Count Adelbert de Chambrun, of France, were among those expected.

The trip to Chicago would be the first extended one into the interior the President has made since he entered the White House.

Johnson Pleads for Rights.

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—A quarter million American legionnaires, gathering for their annual convention, were told tonight by National commander Louis A. Johnson they must not falter in their fight for the rights of the war veterans and of the public.

Commander Johnson's message, in the form of a report of his stewardship for the year, added a serious note to the jubilant celebrations in preparation for what he termed the "world's greatest convention" beginning Monday.

He dealt at length with the legion's battle against reductions in disability payments made in the last session of Congress. Speaking of the action in Congress last March, he said:

"Spurred on by a Nation-wide campaign aimed directly at compensation and benefits paid by our Government to sick and disabled veterans, a concerted drive was made in Congress to reduce payments.

"Though unable to stem the tide, the legion's legislative committee obtained modification which secured to our truly disabled comrades a greater degree of justice."

Passage of the national economy act, Johnson said, threw the entire system of rehabilitation into chaos. The number of cases calling for special attention has increased by 100,000, he said.

Rover's Work Elicits Praise Of Cummings

Attorney General Says His Resignation Has Been Accepted.

The resignation of Leo A. Rover as United States attorney for the District, submitted to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings Thursday, has been accepted, it was announced yesterday.

Mr. Rover, who has been in office for five years, served four years as an assistant. During his term he cleared the Criminal Court docket so that indicted persons can be tried within a week.

The resignation will become effective "upon the appointment and qualification of a successor." In his letter accepting the resignation the Attorney General said:

"Permit me to express the hope that in the further practice of your profession you will enjoy the success that has so signally attended your efforts as a public servant."

Mr. Rover has taken offices in the Colorado Building, where he will be associated with Martin F. O'Donoghue, nephew of Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue.

Mrs. Allen to Address Woodside Clubwomen

Mrs. Rudolph S. Allen, of College Park, president of the Maryland Federation of Women's Clubs, will address the Woman's Club of Woodside Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clyde Williams.

Mrs. George W. Davis, president, has announced her committee chairmen for the year as follows: Montgomery County Hospital, Mrs. Beryl R. English; social service, Mrs. Carlos Greenleaf; representative to the advisory council of the Silver Spring Public Library, Mrs. Howard Dozier; resolutions, Mrs. Ralph D. Smith; education, Mrs. Lawton G. Herriman; program, Mrs. Harry Elkins; membership, Mrs. Clyde D. Williams; fine arts, Mrs. Vernon Emery; and publicity, Mrs. L. M. Christie.

Merger of Car Services Praised

C. of C. and Firm Heads Give Felicitations.

John H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., has written to Thomas P. Littlepage, president of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, in reference to the merger of street railway facilities.

Hanna wrote: "Passage of the legislation authorizing the merger was, to a very great extent, due to the efforts of the citizens' joint transportation committee, under your chairmanship. We are hopeful that your efforts of last winter will soon bear fruit in the unification of the transportation facilities of Washington, and I feel quite sure that the city will benefit greatly therefrom."

Commenting upon the acceptance of the merger plan, President Littlepage said: "Washington is fortunate to have effected a merger in the interest of better service at lower cost. The newly created Capital Transit Co. is launched at a most favorable time, and has a splendid opportunity to develop a coordinated mass transportation system which should be a model for other cities. I am sure I speak for all members of the joint transportation committee and of District citizens generally in wishing all possible good luck to this new company and its officers and employes."

Japanese Protest Dr. Koo's Activity

Tokyo, Sept. 30 (AP).—A foreign office spokesman said today that an official protest to the Chinese government would be made against the asserted anti-Japanese activities at Geneva of Dr. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese minister to France.

The spokesman said Koki Hirota, foreign minister, had instructed Akira Artyoshi, minister to China, to present the protest at Nanking.

Objection to Dr. Koo's activities at the League of Nations Assembly was based, the spokesman said, on Hirota's belief they were injurious to what was described as the newly developing Sino-Japanese amity.

$25,000 Needed to Keep Up Medical Service in Coming Winter.

Half a dozen of his companions stopped eating for a moment to watch the progress of the egg with eager interest.

* * * *

For 63 years the hospital has been taking sick, unhappy children into its wards, treating them with all the skill known to medical science and sending them home well or on the road to recovery. But with the coming cold weather this community service may have to be discontinued.

Need New Boiler Plant.

For lack of $25,000 to build a new boiler plant, 60,000 children registered at the hospital may be refused further medical aid. The old boiler was so inadequate it has collapsed. A new plant is necessary.

The $25,000 means the saving of lives, and the making and keeping of the health of thousands of children who, according to Miss Mattie Gibson, superintendent, otherwise would become public charges.

"Keep the well child well," is one of the hospital slogans. "The prevention departmnet," says Miss Gibson, "has from 12,000 to 13,000 children on the visiting list. It is open all day and until late at night, so that mothers returning from work and finding their children sick can get the immediate attention that is needed."

4,000 More on List.

"On the dispensary department list are 4,000 more, who are handicapped in some way. These are not only cared for and prescribed for in the hospital, but also watched in their homes."

"Children up to the age of 12," Miss Gibson explained, "need special attention which an adult hospital is not equipped to give."

"Undersized, undernourished children are made healthy and capable of growing into normal citizens. Parents come for advice, direction and help in raising both sickly and healthy babies.

Hospital attaches meantime wonder what will happen to these children if it were found necessary to deprive them of medical care.

Britten's Insignia Stolen.

Representative Fred Britten, of Illinois, told police yesterday his House of Representatives insignia had been stolen from his automobile. It was valued at $10.

Joins Follies.

PATRICIA BOWMAN, 23-year-old Washington dancer and former member of St. Patricks Players, will appear in Billie Burke's Ziegfeld Follies, in act with Fannie Brice and Willie and Eugene Howard.

Creel Is Urged To Keep Post

Roper, Dickinson Insist California Recovery Chief Reconsider.

George Creel, who resigned Friday as director of the California Recovery Board, was urged yesterday by Secretary of Commerce Roper to reconsider and remain at his post indefinitely.

"Urge you to stay on with splendid work you are doing in California," Dickinson wired. "This is also the wish of Alvin Brown, Gen. Johnson's second in command, with whom I have conferred."

Returning to his desk yesterday, Secretary Roper wired: "I heartily concur in yesterday's telegram of Assistant Secretary Dickinson and earnestly urge you to agree thereto." thereto."

Creel was reported to have submitted his resignation because of differences with members of the California Compliance Board, the State organization charged with policing the recovery program.

Neither Roper nor Dickinson had received a reply last night.

Merediths Sail For Paraguay

U. S. Envoy and Bride Must Travel Jungles to Their Post.

The couple, who were married recently in Washington, will leave the steamship Southern Cross at Buenos Aires and then make their way through tropical jungles to Asuncion.

"I am in search of new adventure," said Nicholson. "I can get along with anybody who knows what cornbread is, and a nice plate of ham."

The 66-year-old author said he would not write any books in Paraguay, because, he said, "I'm supposed to be down there working for the Government."

Mrs. Nicholson—she is the former Mrs. Dorothy Lannon, of Grant County, Ind.—will finish a book she has been working on, however.

"It's about Indiana," said Nicholson. "That's all Hoosiers can write about."

Price-Fixing Clause Delays Retail Code

Price Rises Face Probes.

The NRA consumers' advisory board last night announced it was starting a triple investigation to protect consumers from exorbitant price increases.

"Some prices are marching far ahead of the parade," said Elinor Sachs Barr, the board's price specialist, "and there is expectation of further jumps."

"If the NRA is to succeed, prices must not be allowed to run away," she added, explaining the program is based to a large extent on expected increases in public purchasing power which would be nullified by unchecked price advances.

Mrs. Barr said that at the three places where prices are set—the manufacturer, the wholesaler and the retailer—"the reasons for price lifting will be examined to pave the way for action when needed to protect the consumer."

Scientist to Study Antarctic Fauna

Rutgers Teacher Going to Pole With Byrd.

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 30 (AP). Dr. Earl Bryant Perkins, assistant professor of zoology at Rutgers University, will go to Little America with Admiral Richard E. Byrd, to study animal life in the Antarctic.

Dr. Perkins will go to Boston tomorrow to take quarters aboard the Jacob Ruppert, Byrd's ship.

Dr. Perkins is a Bowdoin graduate, who received a Ph. D. degree from Harvard in 1927.

Sen. Reed Asks Fair Criticism Of Roosevelt

Allentown, Pa., Sept. 30 (AP).—Addressing a Republican rally, Senator David A. Reed today called for honest and fair criticism of the Democratic Administration "when the country is turned in the wrong direction."

"We must sympathize with President Roosevelt in the predicament he finds himself, but we owe him better treatment than his party gave President Hoover," he said.

Discussing the farm program, he said he could see no good reason why part of the crops should be dug under and the wheat acreage reduced.

"The moment inflation comes," he said, "all commodity prices will immediately jump, but wages won't. That has happened in every country that has used inflation.

"We must have real economy, as in the Coolidge administration, or we will wreck the country. They must stop spending money for visionary objectives."

Walter M. Wilson Dies In Colorado Springs

Walter M. Wilson, formerly of Washington, died of a heart attack in Colorado Springs, Colo., last Friday, it was announced here yesterday.

A native of Washington, Mr. Wilson was a certified public accountant and was connected with public utility interests in Colorado.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Patience McKay Wilson; a brother, E. Percical Wilson, and a sister, Mrs. Mabel Wilson Beale, both of Washington.

Station Manager Beaten, Robbed

Two Bandits Take $100 Gasoline Receipts.

Two armed bandits early today bound and gagged Walter Peteet, 1865 Calvert street northwest, night manager of a gas station at Nineteenth and M streets northwest and robbed him of $100 in cash.

After beating him severely about the face, the man took the night's receipts from his pockets. Peteet was treated for a possible fractured nose.

Urschel Voices Praise.

Urschel congratulated Keenan.

"I am very well satisfied," Urschel told Keenan, smiling. "The Government did an excellent job."

Bailey moved uneasily, but no change came over his face.

Bates, blond Denver gangster, smiled.

The Shannons watched sourly. They had pinned their hope for liberty on their testimony that Bates and Kelly threatened them with death unless they guarded Urschel at their ranch homes near Paradise, Tex. Mrs. Shannon managed to smile when she spoke to her attorneys.

Government officials said tonight negotiations have been started with Bates for return of his "cut" of the $200,000 ransom. His share was said to have been approximately $75,000.

Three Given Life.

Edwardsville, Ill., Sept. 30 (U.P.).—A woman and two men were sentenced to life and three others given prison terms today upon conviction on charges of kidnaping August Luer, 77, Alton banker, and holding him for ransom.

The abduction was characterized by the State as one of the most brutal kidnap cases on record. The State demanded the death penalty.

Those sentenced to life imprisonment were Mrs. Lillian Chessen, 51, collaborator, the State charged, in writing a $16,000 ransom demand; Randol Eugene Norvell, 33, East St. Louis gambler, and Percy Michael Fitzgerald, 39, St. Louis former convict.

Twenty years in the pentitentiary was meted out to mike Musiala, 49, at whose farm Luer was held in a slimy clay dugout during five days of torment and mental anguish.

Charles Chessen, 57, husband of Mrs. Chessen, and Christ Gitcho, 65, Madison, Ill., grover, were given five years in jail.

Policeman's Bullet Kills Dog Long Object of Court Wrangle

Owner Risked Jail After Refusal to Execute Animal for Bite.

Pittsburgh, Sept. 30 (AP).—Sandy, the dog that escaped a death sentence because its owner defied the courts, is dead at last—the victim of a policeman's "bullet of mercy."

A brown and white shepherd, Sandy had aroused some of Pennsylvania's best legal minds to bitter argument.

More than six years ago Sandy bit a 12-year-old boy, and a justice of the peace ordered Frank Sechan, the owner, to kill the animal.

Sechan refused and the case went to the county courts. Again Sechan was ordered to execute the dog and again he refused. He was sentenced to six months in jail for contempt of court, but was released pending an appeal to the superior court.

Yesterday Sandy started barking and frothing at the mouth. Frightened school children called the police.

Offices to Open For Farm Aid

Regional Groups to Help Enforce Agriculture Adjustment Act.

(Associated Press.)

Formation of seven regional offices with a manager in charge of each to assist Washington headquarters in enforcing the agriculture adjustment act were announced yesterday by the Agriculture Department.

Offices are being set up under the licensing and enforcement section of the Farm Administration and district offices will be established, it was said, "where and when necessary."

Offices and their managers announced for this area are:

Ice-Sitting Contest Banned at Kansas City

Kansas City, Sept. 30 (AP).—City health officials said "no" today to plans of promoters to stage an "icethon."

It was planned to have contestants, attired in bathing suits, see who could sit the longest on large cakes of ice. Officials said it would be "injurious" to the health of the sitters.

Farmer Slays Wife, Stepdaughter, Self

Jerome, Idaho, Sept. 30 (AP) Angered, officers said, by a contemplated divorce suit against him, Glenn Koger, 45, a farmer, shot his wife and stepdaughter to death, wounded an 8-year-old child of the stepdaughter and committed suicide today.

100 Visiting Gas Engineers Will Tour City

M. L. Sperry Is Directing Entertainment Here for Delegation.

A party of approximately 100 gas engineers from all sections of the United States and twelve foreign countries will tour Washington today and tomorrow, following the fifteenth annual convention of the American Gas Association, at Chicago.

The group will be guests of a special entertainment committee headed by M. L. Sperry, president of the Washington Gas Light Co. A program calling for visits to Arlington and Mount Vernon, Government buildings and historic landmarks has been arranged.

The foreign delegation is headed by Dr. Fritz Escher, of Zurich, Switzerland, president of the International Gas Union, and T. Watanabe, representing the Imperial Gas Association of Japan.

Those serving with Sperry on the entertainment committee are George W. Bean, local representative of the American Gas Association; H. M. Brundage, general sales manager of the Washington Gas Light Co.; Edgar Morris, president of the Morris Sales Co.; J. P. Kirkpatrick, local manager for the Ruud Manufacturing Co.; W. H. Gill, commercial manager, and Leon Ourusof, engineer, of the Washington Gas Light Co.

Nazis Dismiss 22 Professors

Ban Enforced Against 18 Non-Aryans, and 4 Dissenters.

Berlin, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Prussian ministry of education today published the names of 22 dismissed university professors, 18 of whom were under the non-Aryan ban, and four released on political grounds.

The ministry explained the 22 men could not be notified directly because they probably were abroad.

Among the prominent non-Aryans were Adolf Fraenkel, of Kiel, and Hans Kelsen and Isidor Scheftelowitz, a Sanskrit authority, of Cologne. Two of the political dismissals were of Hermann Heller, counsel for the cabinet of Premier Otto Braun of Prussia, who unsuccessfully appealed the removal of his government by Reich authorities, and Hugo Sinzheimer, a Frankfort jurist.

Kansas Judge Files Counter-Divorce Suit

Topeka, Kans., Sept. 30 (AP).—Attorneys for Federal District Judge Richard J. Hopkins filed today his answer and cross-petition in proceedings in which his wife, Mrs. Nellie M. Hopkins, seeks a divorce, denying her allegations and asking he be granted a divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty.

Mrs. Hopkins in her action filed last June 3, alleged extreme cruelty and gross neglect.

League Plans Method to Aid Refugee Jews

Germans on Committee Abstain From Voting on Resolution.

Geneva, Sept. 30 (AP).—With Germany abstaining, the steering committee of the League of Nations assembly voted unanimously today for a Dutch resolution to provide a plan to solve the problem created by the thousands of Jewish refugees from Germany.

The resolution now will be examined by a technical commission of the assembly, which is expected by many observers to draw up an elaborate but practical system of finding homes for Jews.

This activity probably will be directed by a league high commissioner. Christian L. Lange, Norwegian diplomat, is being mentioned for the post.

Germans Indifferent.

German representatives said they were entirely indifferent to the Dutch scheme, but some delegates remarked that they felt it would be regarded as a political question, and not as entirely social.

M. Frangulis, a Greek who is Haiti's delegate, presented to the assembly a resolution demanding a world convention under league auspices "to grant equality for all individuals, regardless of race, color or religion."

In a public speech tonight, Charles te Water of South Africa, president of the assembly, said that the economic machinery of the world was making slow but definite recovery.

Armament Question.

Public opinion, he declared, must force leaders to reach a reasonable agreement on the subject of disarmament.

He expressed the hope that the two South American conflicts would soon be settled. These disputes are between Bolivia and Paraguay over the Gran Chaco territory, and between Colombia and Peru over the Leticia frontier.

Acountant Held On Fraud Charges

Mails Used in Theft From Oil Men, Says Jury.

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 30 (AP).—George J. Ziegler, Tulsa accountant, today faced seven counts of using the mails to defraud.

A Federal grand jury indictment charges he fraudulently obtained $12,252 from the British-American Oil Co., Ltd., of Toronto; the British-American Oil Producing Co., of Tulsa; A. L. Ellsworth, J. C. Millar and A. E. Gooderhan, all of Toronto, and C. P. Beaubien, of Montreal, officials of the companies.

Disaster Spreads In Tampico Area

More Deaths and Damage Caused by Rains.

Mexico City, Sept. 30 (AP).—Dispatches tonight reported several deaths and considerable property damage from torrential rains of the past week which followed last Sunday's hurricane in the Tampico region.

The situation in Tampico continued critical because of shortage of food and water and continuing heavy rain.

Acapulco, on the southwest coast, was isolated by rail. Inhabitants of nearby villages were without food or shelter. It was feared several persons had drowned in flooded rivers.

New Strike Of Steel Men Is Threatened

Carnegie Workers Declare "Holiday;" Labor Unrest Grows.

(United Press.)

Threat of a new strike of steel workers in western Pennsylvania added yesterday to labor unrest in the East. About 1,500 workers in the Carnegie Steel Co.'s by-products plant at Clairton, Pa., announced they were going to take a "holiday."

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt's signature of the agreement between miners and employers is designed to send 70,000 back to the mines in Pennsylvania tomorrow.

Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania announced that the bituminous coal code would become binding on the Frick Coke Co. on October 2, and said that code hours must be kept, code wages paid and discrimination avoided.

Mrs. Paul J. Arrington portrayed the role of a mother telling her son the story of the Milky Way and gave the reading at the Piedmont Virginia Diary Festival at Manassas. Beside her (upper left) is Allen Green, who played the role of her son. Regina III, queen of the festival (top center), sat on her throne before the pageant stage and viewed the spectacle. Beside her were princesses from a dozen counties and behind the throne, standing "at ease," her honor guard of the Richmond Blues. Leading the parade down the main street of Manassas were members of the Loudoun Hunt (upper right), garbed in their hunting costumes. Senator Harry F. Byrd crowned Mary Stevens Jones—Regina III—queen of the festival. He is shown (lower left), stepping back after placing the crown on her majesty's head. One of the principal floats of the parade which followed the coronation was that of the queen (lower right). It was beautifully decorated in white and gold and bore the insigna of Queen Regina III.

Vanished Wife Not Kidnaped; Just Quit Mate

Search Stops as Mrs. Cox Phones She Plans to Ask Divorce.

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—Mrs. George M. Cox, 27, wife of the wealthy New Orleans and Chicago ship owner, today telephoned Detective Chief William Schoemaker that neither she, her 2-year-old son, nor her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Goertz, were kidnaped.

The telephone call came as Schoemaker and agents from the Federal Bureau of Investigation were questioning four men and seeking a fifth after Cox in New Orleans said his family members were missing and he believed they were abducted by disgruntled employes with whom he had trouble recently.

Schoemaker said the young wife told him that she had left the Cox home at Lake Ponchartrain, La., voluntarily last Wednesday for Chicago and that she was contemplating filing for divorce from her 55-year-old husband. Schoemaker refused to reveal Mrs. Cox's whereabouts.

Cox returned South from Chicago to find the family gone and offered a $25,000 reward for their safe return.

Police investigation of the "disappearance" has been stopped and the four suspects released.

Trip to Urschel Trial Costs Job

Minneapolis Police Chief Ousted by Mayor.

Minneapolis, Sept. 30 (AP).—A trip to Oklahoma City to testify in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping trial brought dismissal of Police Chief Joseph A. Lehmeyer by Mayor A. G. Bainbridge today.

Bainbridge had said previously he would demand a complete explanation of the trip.

Lehmeyer said he had gone to Oklahoma City at the request of defense lawyers, who told him he was subpenaed and that his quick arrival there would prevent trial delay and avoid further expense. He went by airplane a week ago.

Militiamen Rout Miners' Children

Official Charge Strikers Perpetrated Show.

Gallup, N. Mex., Sept. 30 (AP).—National Guardsmen were called upon to quell an alleged organized demonstration in behalf of striking coal miners by 200 to 300 school children in the Santa Fe Plaza late today.

Military authorities said the demonstration staged by the children, most of whose fathers are striking miners, was planned by the National Miners Union. They arrested Exquiro Navaro, strike leader, and Vincent Fernandez, 15-year-old schoolboy.

Immigration Service Drops Two Employes

Edward J. Shaughnessy, assistant to the Commissioner General of Immigration said last night Inspector Cormier of the New Bedford office had been removed from service yesterday and John G. Hagberg had been retired, according to the Associated Press.

Shaughnessy said Cormier was removed because of his showing in a recently conducted examination, and Hagberg retired at the expiration of 30 years' service.

Shaughnessy said other reductions in personnel are planned because of reduced appropriations.

Milk Price Increase For Chicago Approved

Secretary Wallace yesterday approved an amendment to the Chicago milk agreement which would result in payment of higher prices to producers and a cent a quart advance to consumers, according to the Associated Press.

The amended agreement has been sent to Chicago for dairy interests to sign. If they approve, the changes will go into effect without delay.

5 Bank Bandits Take 3 Girls In Get-Away

Use Human Shields After Looting Nebraska Institution.

Pipestone, Minn., Sept. 30 (AP).—Subduing the town's only policeman, five bandits looted the Pipestone National Bank of $1,600 today and then used three women employes as shields in fleeing in a large car bearing Nebraska license plates.

Authorities theorized the raiders might have been escaped prisoners from Michigan City, Ind., since some of the fleeing convicts were believed in Nebraska two days ago and Iowa yesterday.

A car bearing the license plates noted here was stolen at Lincoln, Nebr., Wednesday night by six gunmen.

Covered with a pistol as the bandit machine drove up, Patrolman Edwin Moe was powerless to shoot as the robbers fled because the three women hostages were on the running board. The women, released unharmed a half mile north of town, were Misses Mary Britt, Ruth Conrad and Ruth Walker.

Moe said when the raiders' car drove up to the bank one of the men stepped out, pointed a pistol through a coat pocket and ordered him to "keep quiet."

The bandits inside forced the three girls, the cashier and the president to lie on the floor. Finding the time lock barring way to the lock, they took $1,600 from the cash drawers.

Commander Ponds Plans Rome Flight

Capt. Sabelli, Italy, Will Accompany Him.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 30 (AP).—The Newark Ledger will say tomorrow Commander George R. Ponds, veteran flier, and Capt. Cesare Sabelli, of the Italian flying corps, plan to take off on a flight to Rome from Floyd Bennett Airport, within 10 days.

The newspaper says it has learned a radio direction finder, similar to that used by Wiley Post on his recent world flight, is being installed in their Bellanca plane.

The ship is named the Leonardo da Vinci in honor of the great Italian, who first prophesied the advent of the airplane. It has a cruising range of about 6,000 miles.

Mrs. Swormstedt Hostess Of Arlington Hotel

Mrs. Swormstedt, who has served as president of the Women's City Club, American Association of University Women, Washington Wellesley Club and the women's board of the National Homeopathic Hospital, began her duties with the first dinner first dinner dance of the fall season.

Brown, Hoover On New Board To Fight Crime

International Association Names Emergency Committee.

Chief of Police Ernest W. Brown and J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation, Department of Justice, yesterday were named, with 12 other public-safety leaders, to an emergency committee of police chiefs to combat crime.

The appointments were made in Bridgeport, Conn., by Charles A. Wheeler, superintendent of the Bridgeport police and president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police. Others appointed to the committee are:

Chief Joseph A. Gerk, of St. Louis; Chief Hugh Harper, of Colorado Springs; Chief Philip T. Smith, of New Haven; Commissioner Austin J. Roche, of Buffalo; Chief Peter Siccardi, of Hackensack, N. J.; Superintendent John P. Smith, of Detroit; Chief R. M. Jordan, of Richmond; Chief William J. Quinn, of San Francisco; Chief William P. Rutledge, of Wyandotte, Mich., and Chief George Black, of Wilmington, Del.

Swanson Discusses Navy in Honolulu

Says It's Far Behind Even With Present Program.

Honolulu, Sept. 30 (A.P.).—Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson told newspapermen today when the Navy completes its present building program, it still will need 101 ships to bring the United States to London treaty strength.

Whether these will be built, he said, would depend upon general economic conditions of the country.

Speaking aboard the cruiser Indianapolis, on which he arrived from Washington via Panama, the Secretary said he came here to investigate Pearl Harbor, with a view to improving it.

Son Held in Plot Against Father

Oklahoma Man Accused of "Fake" Kidnaping.

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 30 (AP).—George Peine, 30, of Garnett, Kans., has been indicted by a Federal grand jury here under the "Lindbergh" law for allegedly using the mails to extort money from his father, George Peine, sr., wealthy Kansas farmer.

The younger Peine, found bound near Claremore July 24, told officers he had been kidnaped by a gang for $3,000 ransom. A note demanding that sum was sent to the father.

Officers said Peine later confessed.

London Nazis Told To Quit Jewish Ban

Fascist Leader Declared Backed by Semitic.

London, Sept. 30 (AP).—Statements that Sir Oswald Mosley, British Fascist leader, has ordered his followers to drop their Anti-Jewish stand, and that his late wife, Lady Cynthia Mosley, was a granddaughter of a Chicago Jew, were made here at a court hearing into a controversy of rival Fascist organizations.

Lady Cynthia was a granddaughter of Levi Leiter, wealthy Chicagoan.

Other testimony was that Sir Oswald is backed by a Jewish financier.

Fatal Spin Sends Plane To Ground; 3 Killed

Cooperton, Okla., Sept. 30 (AP). An airplane fell 500 feet in a tail-spin near the Baptist Church here late today, killing the pilot and his two passengers.

The dead were Travis Jennings, 30, the pilot, of Cooperton; Burford Casner, 23, of Clearwater, Kans., and his cousin, Gail Casner, 18, of Cooperton.

Tobacco Price Action Sought

North Carolina Governor Asks Roosevelt Take Drastic Step.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 30 (AP).—Gov. Ehringhaus today asked President Roosevelt to intervene "personally" in the tobacco price situation, and insist upon immediate action to accomplish parity prices "to avoid results which it is difficult to forecast."

Ehringhaus in a telegram to the President said:

"The situation challenges the power of the National Government. Our people have every confidence in you, and as their spokesman I am making this appeal to you direct because of the extreme importance of the situation and the possibilities involved. Immediate action is necessary."

Ehringhaus said tobacco growers had been promised a parity price in return for crop reduction contracts signed for 1934 and 1935, and that "fulfillment of the Government promise of parity means easy success in other Government activities along this line."

'Possum Held!

Seized as "Burglar" When Police Surround House.

A 'possum was held at Eighth Precinct early today, charged with housebreaking.

A call from 2700 Upton street northwest that a man was attempting to break in brought a squad car flying to the scene. Officers surrounded the house and searched the grounds with flashlights.

Policeman E. C. Moore discovered the burglar, a 'possum, perched on the kitchen window, eating sweet potatoes. The 'possum was arrested.

Held in Danville Holdup.

Milk Pageant At Manassas Depicts Eras

Vivid Scenes of Ancient Days Staged; Parade Proves Colorful.

Like a series of masterpieces from the brushes of old masters, scenes from the Piedmont Virginia Dairy Festival pageant, "Following the Milky Way," yesterday passed before 7,500 persons at the Manassas Fair Grounds, engraving on their minds a striking story of their dominant industry.

From the crowning of her majesty, Regina III, queen of the festival, to the last marcher in the parade that followed the program at Annaburg, the old Portner estate, it was a spectacle not to be forgotten. Script for the pageant was the work of Mrs. Ryland E. Hawkes. The story was told by Mrs. Paul J. Arrington.

The pageant stage nestled behind the towers and parapets of the old German castle on the estate. The pageant depicted a mother telling her son the story of the Milky Way.

Ancient Legend Recited.

Ancient herdsmen—so the legend ran—believed the crescent moon, with her gold-tipped horns, was the giver of abundance. They called her the Moon Cow. Down through the ages came the Egyptians with their cow goddess, Hathor. Then the Hebrews and their dreams of a promised land, "flowing with milk and honey."

The scene sifted with scant regard for years to America, where Gov. Bradford summoned his Pilgrim settlers and gave a cow and two goats for each six persons. Capt. Miles Standish carried the good news.

Dairy Nations Depicted.

The final scene depicted nearly a score of countries which are heavy users of dairy products surrounding Uncle Sam.

Crowning of Regina III as Queen of the Festival, was one of the most beautiful bits of pageantry in the colorful program. Flanked by a company of the famous Richmond Blues, one of the snappiest military outfits in the Nation, and attended by a dozen princesses from as many counties in the Piedmont section, she kneeled on a satin pillow before the audience and was crowned by Senator Harry F. Byrd.

Parade Draws Throngs.

But what is a festival without a parade?

After lunch it seemed as though the whole countryside lined up and marched down the main street of Manassas to the music of a dozen bands. The Marine Corps from Quantico provided a band. So did the Army from Fort Humphreys, the city of Culpeper, Washington Independent Boys' Club and several others.

"Culture"

Students in Puerto Rico Fight Socialist Trustee.

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Sept. 30 (AP).—Bearing a black-draped coffin marked "Culture," more than 1,000 University of Puerto Rico students paraded in colorful protest here today against the appointment of a Socialist legislator as a university trustee.

The crowd of students and sympathizers stood for two minutes before La Fortaleza when they found Gov. Robert H. Gore was not there to receive them in their third attempt to protest his appointment of Rafael Alonza Torres.

After this silent demonstration, they marched to the Plaza Colon for a more boisterous display, carrying the coffin and banners reading, "Rest in Peace."

Protest on Radio Gun Fight Dropped

Indiana State Police Head Withdraws Complaint.

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Radio Commission said yesterday Capt. Matt Leach, commandant of the Indiana State police, had withdrawn his protest against a broadcast over the Columbia raido chain of a purported description of a gun fight between officers and fleeing convicts.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Columbia Broadcasting System announced today that it had offered full cooperation to the Federal Radio Commission in any investigation into the descriptive broadcast of a purported gun fight between police and escaped convicts in Indiana.

Howard Plans Art Exhibitions Of African Life

Eric Berry's Paintings to Open Gallery Season at University.

African subjects will dominate gallery exihibts during the first semester at Howard University, with Eric Berry's paintings of West Africa opening the season.

Eric Berry (Mrs. Best) has returned from her third trip into the interior of Africa with a collection which will be on view for 10 days, beginning tomorrow.

Her paintings portray Hausa types of Katsina, as well as Tauregs, veiled camel-riding raiders of the desert.

Tall Hausas, clad in gorgeous embroidered robes, and their women folk wearing silver nose-rings, have been painted with deft clarity of color. Native markets of Katsina are among her subjects, showing traders and Mohammedan life.

Exhibitions to follow include the Roerich color reproduction, October 18 to November 15; modern paintings by Washington artists, loaned and circulated by the Art League of Washington, November 18 to December 5; African bushmen paintings, circulated through courtesy of the Carnegie Corporation and the American Federation of Arts, December 9 to January 3; conservative and modern paintings, January 7 to February 4; contemporary Argentine art, 72 etchings and lithographs from the Roerich Museum, February 6 to March 6.

Fugitive's Return Sought.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 30 (AP).—Gov. J. C. B. Ehringhaus today issued requisition papers, asking for the return to Caldwell County of Dwight Beard, alleged to have killed a Valdese merchant in 1932, who is under arrest in St. Paul, Minn.

Marines Arm; Cuba Believed Goal in Trip

Heavy Guns Packed as Troops Prepare for "Practice Cruise."

Although Navy Department officials denied American forces in the area of strife-torn Cuba would be strengthened, it was reported last night a battalion of Marines and another battleship would be sent to the island.

Ready for action, a Marine detachment will steam out of Norfolk Wednesday, it was learned, ostensibly for a training cruise aboard the U. S. S. Wyoming.

The Marines will be equipped with gas masks, machine guns, steel helmets and other war paraphernalia.

Members of the battalion in Washington for the week-end told friends their destination was Cuban waters. They quoted their officers as announcing they would be prepared to land in case of emergency.

Navy officials scouted all such information. They said the trip had no connection with the tense Cuban situation and reiterated the embarkation is purely for "training purposes."

Unofficial reports reached The Post that the Second Battalion, Seventh Regiment, will sail for Cuban waters. This unit numbers 27 officers and 514 enlisted men, divided into two machine-gun companies, two infantry companies and a headquarters company.

It was learned large supplies of ammunition and batteries of 37 millimeter guns and antiaircraft guns were packed at Quantico yesterday for shipment with the marines aboard the Wyoming.

Secretary of State Hull said yesterday there has been no change as yet in this Government's policy of nonintervention in Cuba as result of Friday's rioting in Havana.

Action Up to Welles.

The Department yesterday was in receipt of full reports from Ambassador Welles on the clash between Communists and Cuban troops, and an account of the wounding of Joe Gibson, American newsreel photographer.

No indication was given of what action this Government might take in the Gibson incident. It was brought out that the matter now is entirely in the hands of Ambassador Welles.

Reports received by Secretary Hull indicated conditions in Havana were quieting during the day. They showed little change in the unsettled situation prevailing throughout the rest of the island.

Capital Hockey Players Thrill To Team's Feat

Girls' Victories Abroad Expected to Increase Interest in Game.

Members of the Washington Women's Field Hockey Association, anticipating a season of greater activities this year than ever before, are thrilled by the news from Europe of one after another victory by the touring all-American team. The Worthing playoff, marking the seventh victory of the season abroad, will permit the team a well-earned rest before its next series, beginning next Wednesday in London.

The present eleven is the first American women's team of field hockey to compete in international tournament matches; and since 1907, when Miss Constance Appleby, English sportswoman who imported the game to Bryn Mawr, (where she was head of the department of physical education), no such widespread interest in the game has been felt in the United States. Only once before, in 1923, has an official all-American team played abroad. In that year, Miss Anne Townsend, considered America's No. 1 player and captain of the team now competing abroad, toured the British Isles in a series of exhibition matches. The highly satisfactory result of those matches augured the continued increasing interest shown here since.

Sportsmanship Is Goal.

On Saturday, October 10, 1931, was organized the Washington Field Hockey Association, under the presidency and leadership of the woman who has been the leader and president of the organization ever since, Mrs. Charles P. Lukens. Successive vice presidents have been Mrs. J. Turnbull, '31, and Miss Ruby Neel, '31 and '32. Miss Miriam Spaulding, sports director at the Holton Arms School, has been the association's secretary each year, and Miss E. Morrison, Miss Hazel Sayre and Miss Agnes Rodgers, the respective yearly treasurers. The Washington association is affiliated, through its membership in the national, with the International Field Hockey Association, and thus interlocks with all the thousands of playing clubs throughout the world.

An interview with Mrs. Lukens reveals the association views regarding the purpose in group playing.

"We are amateurs in the most literal sense," said Mrs. Lukens, "playing only for the fun of the game. We feel that any unusual sort of competitive interest would destroy the spirit that the leagues stand for, and that free, play-the-game sportsmanship is what we strive most to inculcate in our players."

10,000 American Players.

Field hockey is of ancient origin, dating its antecedents to a crude form of stick-game played by the Persians. The Greeks, somewhere in antiquity, acquired it through warring conquest of territory and subsequent peaceful periods, whence it came to the earlier Romans. The formation of the Wimbledon Club in 1883, however, marks the actual beginning of the modern game in sporting records.

Irish "hurley" and the Scottish "shinty" are cousins germane to this game, taken over to be the particular international sport of women. It is played from Canada to South Africa and it is estimated that at least 10,000 women today are playing field hockey in the United States, with half as many more interested to the extent of serving on the committees of the several clubs to further progress in whatever ways possible.

Tense Moment in World Field Hockey Match in Denmark

U. S. Girl Hockey Team Wins Royal Acclaim and Victories

Players Achieve Technical Fame as Well as Enjoy Fanfare of Entertainments on European Tour; Hamlet's Elsinore Visited.

By Ware Torrey and Janet Owen.

Berlin, Sept. 13 (By Mail).—Royal applause, ambassadorial toasts and a sequence of six straight victories are making the tour of the all-American field hockey team seem like a triumphal march.

The 15 ranking players of the United States have reached Germany, the first stage of the actual European tour, and have won the first German match, 3 to 2, against Berlin. The international conference and tournament, however, is so vivid a memory the players find it difficult to realize it is over.

When the curtain was rung down at the end of the ten-day affair in Copenhagen the Americans found themselves covered with more honors than they had ever dared expect. America's debut in international women's field hockey play has been a pronounced success.

Variety of Styles of Play.

Apart from the fanfare of entertainments and applause, the United States team has won genuine technical acclaim. In six matches played and won to date, the girls from Boston, Philadelphia, New York and Baltimore have bested a variety of styles of play. Their finesse in dodging and stick work in general was outstanding in every match.

They did not meet England, the acme of field hockey, nor Scotland, the close second. Those tests await them later in the tour. But Denmark, Germany, Ireland and Wales all have been forced to acknowledge this younger group as their betters.

It also may be assumed that American play today is superior to that of Holland. Wales defeated Holland, 5-0. The United States defeated Wales, 2-1. The latter match was close, but at minimum proves the United States the equal of the fourth British country and thus well ahead of Holland. The coming match at The Hague, at the close of the journey through Germany, will determine the exact relationship.

Scores of the United States' five tournament matches were—4-2 over Denmark, the day after landing; 9-1 over the British Overseas Team the day the conference opened; 5-1 over the Magdeburg Team of Germany in the initial match of the tournament schedule; 2-1 over Wales on the second day of matches, and 3-1 over Ireland on the final day.

The English players, for 40 years the world's best, defeated Holland, 8-1; Scotland, 4-1, and Denmark, 10-0.

Americans Complimented.

At the close of the last English match, on the last afternoon of the tournament, the United States received a compliment which proves its hockey rise more than any list of scores. As the whistle belw and the cheering rose and died away a knot of spectator players from various countries said:

"If we could only have seen the Americans play the English! There would have been a match!"

That final day of play on the Copenhagen Stadion Field, ringed with trees, flags, packed grand stands and small boys peering over the hedges, brought royalty into the hockey circle. Her Royal Highness Princess Margaretha of Denmark, patroness of the conference, accompanied by Prince Peter of Greece, Admiral Carstensen, of the Danish navy, Mrs. Carstensen and a party watched the matches from the armchairs of a specially constructed royal box.

Just before the American-Irish match the United States Team reached the peak of social honors which has followed it since the Europa first hesitated in Southampton harbor.

At a signal from Miss C. J. Gaskell, of England, president of the International Federation of Women's Hockey Associations, the nine tournament teams lined up in queues behind their captains, facing the box, in array for presentation to the princess.

Descending from her place to greet personally the captain and international officers, Princess Margaretha exchanged a gracious word with Mrs. Edward B. Krumbhaar, of Philadelphia, the incoming federation president, and the others, and then stopped before Anne Townsend.

America's No. 1 player and all-time captain received the princess' congratulations on the team's high place in the tournament, and then, separately, on her own election to the honorable secretaryship of the federation. The princess, in dahlia silk, was well matched in charm by the American leader in a horizon-blue tunic. Five minutes later the all-Americans were in the process of defeating Ireland.

Field Ablaze With Color.

The field, with the nine teams grouped about, was ablaze with color. From the start of the tournament proper, the Danes wore Saxe blue instead of scarlet, to avoid confusion with the cardinal red of England.

As was pointed out by Gertrude Hooper, of Boston, president of the United States Field Hockey Association and international council member, in an address to the conference delegates one evening, pleated tunics are the almost universal style of hockey uniform. Color makes the differentiation. The Germans alone at the tournament varied, wearing white shirts and black pleated flannel skirts.

In giving her address on "What to Wear and How to Keep Fit," incidentally Miss Hooper won all ears before she spoke. Any one would have accepted anything she had to say, on first sight of her, dressed as she was, in pale coral lace with a corsage of pale coral roses.

Beside social and technical brevets, the United States has come into the field hockey spotlight in a still more concrete respect. As had been expected for some time, the United States was decided upon as the scene of the next international conference and tuornament.

The third triennial tournament and conference of the International Federation of Women's Hockey Associations, therefore, will draw representatives of the women's hockey world together in the vicinity of Philadelphia in 1936, probably late in December.

Off the hockey field and out of the conference rooms the players' days over here have been busy and considerably merry. Danish hospitality knows no end. Continental cities officially have welcomed the team and diplomatic corps in cities farther ahead, we understand, are planning receptions. The Danish ten days, passed as guests of the Dansk Hockey Union, however, will be hard to outdo.

Before the closing banquet of the conference, where fireworks through open French windows, toasts by Ministers from the United States England and Germany, and orchestral accompaniment to songs of nine nations drew teams and delegates together in a scene too colorful to forget. The American players had accumulated an albumfull of experience.

They were entertained in Danish homes the week before the conference opened and tasted actual Danish life as the usual outsider never can. They were taken to see castles and palaces, through the grandeur of old Denmark. The royal Copenhagen porcelain factory was thrown open to their inspection.

In Lyngby, in a deep pocket in the hills, Danish folk dances were presented in the team's honor. Twenty dancers, wearing costumes of Jutland and the country's hundreds of islands, went through their rounds to a fiddle accompainment on an ancient council ring still marked by the council tree and surrounding circular hedge.

Hamlet's Elsinore Visited.

A formal luncheon, a visit to Hamlet's Elsinore, a swim in the Sund, with Sweden 20 minutes away across the water, were among other events arranged by the Danish hostesses under the chairmanship of Miss Signe Prytz.

Evenings found small parties at the magnificent and restrained amusement park of Copenhagen—Tivoli—or at the characteristically Danish mammoth restaurants, where fine music even is more popular than real Danish pastry.

Since Copenhagen swarms with as many bicycles as Detroit does with motor cars, it was inevitable that some members of the team should try out the custom.

The banquet closed the conference. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, United States Minister to Denmark; Hugh Gurney, British Minister, and Baron von Richthofen, Minister for Germany, were among the guests of honor.

Two hundred players from America, Europe, Australia and Egypt heard the progress of internatoinal women's field hockey and the largess of Danish hospitality extolled, and agreed enthusiastically in mingled langages.

The success of the second triennial conference proved the security of field hockey as the most widespread women's team sport played today. Conference meetings brought the rules and customs of hockey play toward complete uniformity.

One value of international hockey tournaments, apart from the pleasure of the players, was indicated by the fact the Danish, one of the younger hockey groups in playing experience, played a somewhat crude style of game before the matches opened, and at the end of the tourney had fined down well enough to hold the Irish to a tie, 2-2.

The tuornament proved the United States' right to admittance to the British-style class of field hockey technique. America will be the international center of women's field hockey for the coming three years in executive procedure. More than that, however, it will be watched to see how soon its best players actually will reach the English level.

Senate's Bank Probers Hint Big Exposures

Sifting of Wall Street Practices to Resume Here Tuesday.

A mass of evidence concerning leading bankers is expected to be revealed when the Senate Banking Committee Tuesday resumes the inquiry into Wall street practices.

The investigations of J. P. Morgan & Co., the National City Bank and Kuhn, Loeb & Co., last spring proved sensational, and committee agents last night asserted the resumption of hearings would not prove dull.

Through the summer the committee's investigators have been working, prying further into the books of New York's leading private and commercial banks, including Dillon, Read & Co., J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb, and the Chase Securities Corporation.

The evidence they said they have selected for Ferdinand Pecora, the committee's counsel, to parade before the public has been obtained with painstaking preparations.

So voluminous is it that the committee is expected to conduct hearings almost daily for two months in an effort to get it all into the record for use as the basis of a report to the Senate in January recommending sweeping reforms in stock exchange and banking methods.

Income tax testimony of the sort which last spring brought indictment and subsequent acquittal of Charles E. Mitchell, then chairman of the National City Bank of New York, was looked for by committee members.

The initial hearings, it was said last night, probably will be devoted to the practices of Dillon, Read & Co. The odds and ends of the Kuhn, Loeb and Morgan inquiries left over from last spring will be concluded. Officials of these organizations have been instructed to be ready to testify about their income tax returns.

$161 Clothing Stolen From 2 Automobiles

Clothing valued at $161 was stolen from two automobiles yesterday. Leroy Hutton, Chaselton Apartments, reported to police that $111 worth of clothing was stolen from his car when it was parked nearby.

James T. Wooten, Rocky Mount, N. C., reported $50 worth of clothing taken from his car as it was parked on Constitution avenue near Twelfth street northwest.

Porters Protest Pullman Union

(Associated Press.)

Porters employed by the Pullman Co. filed a protest with Joseph B. Eastman, coordinator of transportation, yesterday asserting the company was forming a union.

The porters said they felt they should be allowed to form their own organization without company interference.

Eastman replied the law permitted organization of employes but did not specify any particular method and he had no authority to interfere.

Carrier Funds Sliced by End Of Surcharges

(Associated Press.)

The Nation's freight bill automatically received a reduction of almost $100,000,000 a year at midnight last night.

At that hour, the surcharges on freight bills, which the carriers were allowed to put into effect 21 months ago, were dropped. The normal charges for hauling most of the Nation's products, especially heavier items like coal and goods other than farm products, are thus lowered by from 6 cents a ton to 2 cents per 100 pounds.

The surcharges, promulgated as an emergency move to develop enough income to tide weaker roads over the 1932 financial stringency, failed of their objective, although producing around $70,000,000 a year. It was estimated at the time they were authorized that they would produce $110,000,000.

The surcharges became effective January 4, 1932, but the railroads' business, already heavily cut into by motor trucks, continued to decline sharply. The situaton grew so desperate that a large group of railroads borrowed nearly $300,000,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to meet their financial obligations.

In addition, all of the income of the Railroad Credit Corporation, which operated for a year on the funds derived from the surcharges was loaned to these carriers. This amounted to about $65,000,000.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, after reviewing the situation last March, authorized the carriers to continue the surcharges until September 30. At the time, the commission said, it would not grant further extension.

Cooper Seeks Court Order

Asks Mandatory Injunction to Compel Treasury Officials to Act.

A mandatory injunction to compel officials of the Treasury Department to relicense his bank was filed in District Supreme Court yesterday by Col. Wade H. Cooper, president of the closed United States Savings Bank.

The court was asked to compel Treasury officers to approve the plan Col. Cooper tendered to the Treasury and which was rejected.

This plan provides 65 per cent of the deposits are to be paid on demand in cash; 35 per cent is to be amply secured; 75 per cent of the depositors must agree to the plan, and 66 2-3 per cent of the stockholders must agree.

With these agreements effected, Col. Cooper said, his bank could reopen at once with a capital structure of $300,000 above liabilities. Also, he said, the 35 per cent left in the bank would be secured by $900,000 in liquid assets.

Treasury officers were charged with having "wantonly, maliciously and fraudulently" declined to open the bank. "Gross abuse" of official power was charged..

Delay in announcing rejection until September 23 was charged to "embarrassment" that would have met officials of the Hamilton National Bank if Col. Cooper's bank had reopened on "more liberal terms to its depositors" than the Hamilton.

Ohio Wets Plan Rush to Elect New Candidate

5,000 Signatures Within Week Are Needed to Replace Knight.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 30 (AP).—Ohio repealists hoping for victory in the November 7 election encountered a legal obstacle today, but moved speedily to overcome it.

The situation arose in a ruling by Attorney General John Bricker that their slate of convention candidates had been made defective by the death of Charles L. Knight, militant wet publisher of the Akron Beacon-Journal.

Under Ohio law the repealists have only until October 7, one week, to get 5,000 legal signatures under the name of a new candidate to replace Knight, who had been selected a wet candidate some time ago. Such petitions must be filed 30 days before an election.

Accordingly, the Ohio repeal council's executive committee held a council of war in Cleveland immediately after Bricker's ruling was disclosed and chose Philip Weiss, of Cincinnati, to replace Knight, who died last Tuesday.

The executive committee were confident the necessary signatures could be obtained before the deadline.

The attorney general held the repealists must nominate another candidate for the November 7 slate in the same manner Knight was chosen, accompanying the nomination with the required petition carrying 5,000 names.

Bankrupt Railway To Be Reorganized

Chicago, South Shore Line Invokes New Law.

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 30 (AP).—The Chicago, South Shore & South Bend Railroad today filed a petition for reorganization in Federal court, setting forth it was without funds to discharge certain rental obligations, could not borrow them and was further unable to meet maturing debts.

The petition, authorized by the board of directors last Thursday, was filed before Judge Thomas W. Slick under the section of the recently enacted Federal statute providing for reorganization of railroads engaged in interstate commerce.

Road Building and Employment.

According to a recent estimate about one-quarter of the money spent on highways goes to the labor directly employed on road work. This estimate is based on a study of emergency projects undertaken in 1932 under a 30-hour-week limitation, and it is assumed that the average monthly wage is between $40 and $45. Hence results reflect current conditions with a fair degree of accuracy.

If the analysis ended here, the conclusion might be reached that the amount of employment provided by the highway dollar was decidedly limited. However, the indirect stimulus to employment also has to be taken into account. It is estimated, for instance, that one-half of all the cement produced last year was used for highway construction, and that 70 per cent of the stone and gravel, as well as 50 per cent of the sand, went into highways. About 500,000 tons of steel were used, and 25,000 trucks in addition to other equipment were required.

The figures cited indicate the difficulties encountered in trying to trace the ramifications of any work-creating program. Eventually any sort of outlay for productive purposes results at some point in additions to wages and salaries or profits, but it does not follow that one kind of spending to provide work for the unemployed is as good as another.

It is not so important that the make-work plans shall provide a maximum amount of direct employment as that they shall increase employment, directly and indirectly, in those industries in which the need is greatest. In view of the fact that labor employed by the heavy industries has suffered exceptionally during the present depression, road construction work evidently provides employment where it is much needed.

A Lonesome Indian.

Yesterday Ga-Yen-Twa-Ga must have felt something like the late Chauncey Depew when, as the sole surviving member of his class, Mr. Depew attended his thirty-fifth Yale reunion and, according to his own report, dined by himself, made a speech to himself, collected the class dues from his own pocket, and returned home satisfied that he was not lacking in a proper respect for tradition.

Yesterday Gov. Ritchie proclaimed Indian Day for the State of Maryland and among the teeming thousands of Baltimore one brave turned out to honor his class.

Former Chief Corn Planter, otherwise Ga-Yen-Twa-Ga, slipped quietly and dignifiedly from behind his work bench where as a bead artisan he keeps alive the decorative lore of his forefathers, donned his tribal regalia, affixed the insignia of chieftainship in the form of a feathery flowing headdress and strolled about the busy streets of downtown Baltimore.

Asked if there were any other Indians in Maryland, the former chief became sad and thoughtful. Yes, there was another in Baltimore and perhaps two or three in Carroll County. The ranks of noble warriors had been thinned to that; the museum alone befriended the glories of the once powerful Rappahannocks.

Stepping lithely away from darting automobiles, treading with venerable moccasins the topography of ancient trails long since obliterated by the white man's magic of cement and mortar, the chief perhaps mused upon the past when the bow and arrow, the wigwam, the canoe and wampum represented sovereignty over the fields and forests and a civilization superior in its day.

The swift march of progress had swallowed up in Baltimore all vestige of the redman's heyday except Chief Corn Planter's headdress, a pair of dusty leggings, two aged moccasins and a few trinkets that strewed his workbench. It must have been a lonesome day for Ga-Yen-Twa-Ga.

Perhaps, like Mr. Depew, Chief Corn Planter had his sense of the heroic and rose to his occasion—fondled a bow in the privacy of his workshop, uttered a mild warwhoop, cut a few steps in warpath style, and acquitted himself creditably at his solitary reunion with the past.

Convicted Kidnapers.

Harvey Bailey and Alfred Bates, ringleaders with "Machine Gun" Kelly in the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, have been convicted in Federal court at Oklahoma City. Others convicted are the three Shannons, at whose home Urschel was hidden, and two Minnesota men who were confederates in disposing of the ransom money.

"Machine Gun" Kelly is to be taken from Memphis to Oklahoma City for trial.

These defendants were tried under the Federal law which penalizes the transportation of a kidnaped person from one State to another, and makes it a felony to conspire to violate the act. The penalty is "imprisonment in the penitentiary for such term of years as the court, in its discretion, shall determine."

Six other persons, charged with kidnaping August Luer, of Alton, Ill., were convicted yesterday in an Illinois State court, and the jury assessed against them prison terms ranging from five years to life.

The Urschel kidnapers are the first to be tried and convicted under the Federal law which grew out of the Lindbergh case. When the bill was under consideration in Congress there was a demand that the penalty for kidnaping should be death, but the majority held that the death penalty would be too severe in cases where the victim was unharmed.

Judge Vaught has it in his power to inflict nominal penalties upon the Urschel kidnapers, but it is generally expected that he will sentence the ringleaders to life imprisonment.

In one State, Missouri, death is the penalty for kidnaping, whether the victim escapes unharmed or is murdered. A jury recently assessed this penalty against a kidnaper who did not harm his victim.

Public sentiment throughout the country obviously approves severe punishment of kidnapers. Juries return verdicts carrying the heaviest penalties prescribed by law.

The vigor with which the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice pursued the Urschel kidnaping conspirators brings universal praise. The bureau operated in many States, against a gang amply supplied with funds and aided by confederates. The trailing of "Machine Gun" Kelly was fine detective work, directed from Washington. It has been demonstrated that criminals, no matter how cunning or desperate, are unable to cope with the resources of the law when these resources are ably employed.

Federal and State officers have broken many kidnaping gangs in recent weeks, convicted many, and recovered ransom money. They are pursuing fugitives who have little chance of escape. Kidnaping is now a game in which the odds are overwhelmingly against the criminal.

Anglo-Japanese Trade War.

Shingo Tsuda, president of one of the largest cotton spinning concerns in Japan, recently discussed the Anglo-Indian-Japanese cotton controversy in an address to shareholders of his company. This address has been translated into English and published by the Jiji Shimpo. It is remarkable for its frankness, and contains valuable information for Americans.

Mr. Tsuda states that the total number of cotton spindles in present use in the world is about 160,000,000. Of these England has 50,000,000, about 5,000,000 less than before the world war. Japan has 8,000,000 spindles, as against 2,300,000 before the war. The exports of cotton fabrics from England and Japan are now substantially equal, each having exported about 1,050,000,000 square yards in the first six months of this year.

In 1913 England exported 7,075,000,000 square yards of cotton cloth. Last year she exported only 2,200,000,000 square yards. British India took 3,057,000,000 square yards from England in 1913, and last year only 600,000,000 square yards, while Japan exported to India 645,000,000 yards last year. British spinners, finding themselves up against this deadly Japanese competition, induced the Indian government to impose a duty of 50 and then 75 per cent against Japanese cotton goods. An outright embargo is threatened. "There is not the slightest doubt," says Mr. Tsuda, "that Japan is to be excluded from the Indian market altogether."

To meet this situation the Japanese Spinners' Association declared a boycott on Indian raw cotton on June 13 last. Japan has imported annually an average of 1,600,000 bales from India during the last ten years. Mr. Tsuda seems to be convinced that the boycott will "make both Britain and India reflect."

In place of Indian cotton, Japanese spinners propose to import more American cotton. It is superior to Indian cotton. "Ten kin more can be extracted from one bale of the American cotton," says Mr. Tsuda, "than from a similar quantity of Indian."

Japan, after losing her cotton goods trade with China on account of the boycott of Japanese wares, turned to India and Dutch East Indies, making heavy inroads upon British cotton goods. "Now that war has been declared," says Mr. Tsuda, "and an actual fight will take place in the month of October in the cotton season, we have to be fully prepared and determined. There is a sufficient stock of Indian cotton in Japan to last until about March of next year. * * * After that, cotton from other countries will be used."

Discussing the impending trade war with England, the Japanese cotton magnate says:

> The two great industrial nations are destined to fight fiercely but indecisively throughout the world. * * * Cheapness is the only strong point of Japanese goods, but that cheapness can not be guaranteed for a long time. The inflationist boom in America will surely spread to Japan at an early date. Raw material and labor will both possibly appreciate. Exchange is a determining factor in international trade. There will soon be waged a trade war between the various nations, which will then cement to the utmost the economic blocs to which they belong.

If this trade war should induce Australia to quit buying Japanese cotton goods, Mr. Tsuda declares that "Japan will boycott her wool as a matter of national policy." He believes that Japan can find markets in some dominions under the British flag, as well as in Central and South America. If England should persist in raising tariffs throughout the empire, thus preventing millions from obtaining goods at a price which they can pay, he thinks "the solidarity of the British empire will not be maintained."

It is evident that Japanese manufacturers are in a fighting mood, and it may be taken for granted that the Japanese government will stand behind them.

Bishop Freeman's Anniversary

Services in commemoration of the tenth anniversary of the consecration of the Right Rev. James E. Freeman as Bishop of Washington were held Friday in the Cathedral and at the Church of the Epiphany. The clergy and citizens generally extended felicitations to Bishop Freeman.

In the inspiring task of building the great Cathedral, which is to stand in perpetuity overlooking the National Capital, Bishop Freeman has devoted his time and strength. Possessed of a vigorous frame, and imbued with fervent zeal, his administration has made rapid progress, strikingly in contrast with the creeping pace which consumed centuries in the erection of similar edifices in ancient times. Modern methods work wonders in cathedral building as in all other constructions, but the builders must manifest the same "sad sincerity" that marked the efforts of the builders of St. Peter's. Bishop Freeman has been sustained by faithful associates and by many generous friends, all of them eager to share in the honor of building the noble pile that is rising on St. Alban hill.

The people of Washington are proud of the Cathedral, and appreciative of the devotion of Bishop Freeman. The congratulations extended to him are not confined to the audiences which greeted him last week.

Apparently it's the short interests that are speculating on executive action on currency—short on accurate information.

West Indian Hurricanes.

By Dr. Melville T. Cook, in the Scientific Monthly.

Hurricanes in the West Indies have been known since the coming of the white man. In fact, the name "hurricane" is derived from an Indian word which the Spaniards adopted and which was taken by the English with slight modification of pronunciation. The early records show that these storms were dreaded by the Indians and settlers. Columbus met with one on his first voyage, which forced him to take refuge in a harbor of Santo Domingo.

It is the custom of Spanish-American people to designate these storms by the name of the saint on whose day they occur.

These storms originate in the Atlantic Ocean usually during the months of August and September, although there are many records for July and October and some few for other months. They usually sweep across the Caribbean Sea or turn northward and come to an end on the continent or in the North Atlantic Ocean. If they strike land, we hear about them, but if they blow themselves out at sea without destruction of shipping they become records for the Weather Bureau only.

These storms have two movements, a rotary movement (counter-clockwise) in which the velocity may be as great as 150 miles or more per hour, and a forward movement, which may be as slow as 8 miles per hour or even less under certain conditions. There is always a small calm area (the vortex) in the center. The velocity is greatest next to this calm area and gradually decreases toward the circumference.

The region in the path of the vortex is struck by the outer part of the storm, which becomes more and more severe until the calm area arrives, when there is a sudden cessation for a few minutes to a half-hour or more, depending on the size of the storm. With the passing of the calm area the region is struck by the second half of the storm, which is blowing in the opposite direction. The points affected by the storm not crossed by the vortex experience a gradual rise and fall in the velocity of the wind.

The approach of a hurricane is preceded by short periods of wind and rain, which become longer, stronger and more frequent until they merge into a continuous storm. The storm roars, howls and shrieks, but the most characteristic sound is a very shrill whistling. The intensity of the storm varies after it reaches its maximum velocity. The noise due to falling buildings, uprooting of trees and other destruction depends largely on the location, but the noise made by the storm is usually greater than that due to the destruction.

The writer was located about 20 miles northeast of the vortex of the San Felipe hurricane, about 6 or 8 miles south of the vortex of the San Nicolas, and about one-half mile or less north of the vortex of the San Ciprian. Squally weather which preceded the San Felipe started about 4 p. m. the day before (September 12, 1928) and increased in intensity until 9 a. m. the following day. From that time until about 3 p. m. the velocity was at its maximum of about 150 miles per hour. Heavy pieces of zinc roofing were ripped from the houses and carried into the air like sheets of paper. This was followed by the woodwork. These and many other articles flying through the air were a source of great danger to persons and live stock without shelter. The streets and roadways very soon became a tangle of broken trees, poles and wires.

The storm subsided rapidly after 3 p. m. and many people were on the streets by 5 p. m., but squally weather continued until 6 a. m. the next day. The contents of nearly all houses were damaged and in some cases entirely destroyed. The more unfortunate people utilized every possible kind of shelter from flying objects; under beds, tables, kitchen sinks, and occasionally under the floors of the houses. Sometimes very substantial buildings would be severely damaged, while some frail buildings beside them would be very slightly damaged. A steel flag pole (without flag) was bent at an angle of 45 degrees.

The San Nicolas (September 10, 1931) was preceded by squally weather and came with a velocity of about 90 miles per hour at about 9 p. m. and lasted until near midnight. Many objects were blown against our house, but we had very little damage.

We were less than one-half mile from the vortex of the San Ciprian hurricane (September 26, 1932). This was preceded by squally weather and reached its maximum of 120 miles or more at about 11 p. m. It began to subside about three hours later. Many heavy objects were blown against our house, and we thought the entire roof had blown away. Much water came in and we were kept busy moving furniture and covering various articles. After the storm began to subside we could see by the flashes of lightning that the roofs of many of the neighboring houses had been blown away, but with the coming of daylight we found that we had lost a small part of our roof. However, both roof and ceiling were raised an inch in the front part of the house.

* * * *

Statements concerning the losses of property are likely to be misunderstood by the people of the North unless they are familiar with the character of our residences. Many of the old Spanish buildings are still standing. They have very thick walls of masonry and flat tile roofs without projecting eaves. They were not damaged to any great extent. The American bungalow type of house, with steel reinforced walls and corrugated galvanized roofing, has become very popular in recent years.

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

THE impatience developing in certain quarters in this country for restoration of diplomatic relations with Russia is quite natural, I suppose, but criticism over the delay is unwarranted. No one appreciates more than I that we are an energetic race, schooled in the go-getting spirit, not to procrastinate, never put off till the morrow what can be done today, to do what we want to do now.

Bargeron.

A people living under the high pressure we do, a hardy, sturdy and two-fisted race and a race that never says die—well, of course, when we make up our minds we want to deal with Russia that is what we want to do and we see no reason why we should not begin right now. Nothing surprising about that at all.

* * * *

DID we hesitate when we decided to build up the giant trranscontinental railroad lines to develop the Great West? Have we ever hestitated when we wanted to build a skyscraper or a bathtub or an automobile? Of course, we have not! Then it is not unusual in the slightest when we decide that it is dealing with Russia we want, that we should say, "All right, let's do it now."

So I say I can understand the impatience over the delay, but I repeat that the criticism is unwarranted.

After all, our leaders are up against a problem here. They can't get Russia to recognize us without skillful negotiating. There are certain assurances which we must give, certain doubts on the part of the Russians which we must dispel.

* * * *

IT is all very well for us to promise that we will not try to disseminate propaganda in their land, that we will not attempt to impose any of our professors on them. And it goes without saying that you and I know we would not attempt any of these things. But what we have got to do, and we really should expect it to take some time, is to convince the Russians we have no intention of seeking to impose our form of government on them.

You and I know that we Americans have no designs upon anybody, that the form of recovery government which we have set up is of our own creation and that, instead of imposing it upon any other people we would be more inclined to trade-mark it and keep it to ourselves.

* * * *

BUT being broad-minded as we are, we should be able to understand the Russians may not see it this way. It is perfectly understandable that they should fear, immediately recognition of us has been given, a horde of American professors and brain trusts in their midst.

Why, for one thing, they have observed the zeal of our NRA folk. Undoubtedly they read only a short time ago of the plan to introduce the NRA in the schools. Haven't the Russians a perfect right to ask, "If they will go that far, won't they try to impose their doctrines upon us?"

As I say, you and I know we would do nothing of the kind. But you can imagine how apprehensive the Russians may be with our Speaker of the House, Mr. Rainey, saying that to disagree borders on sedition.

* * * *

THE plain truth is we are up against a slow process of establishing confidence of the Russians before we can hope to get their recognition. We must slowly educate them to the belief that while we are experimenting fools ourselves when we get started on experimenting paths, that it is really our own fun and under no circumstances would we want to experiment on them.

Well, we did intend experimenting with Cuba and will yet if the island will set up a government down there with which we can experiment. Experimenter Berle, of the Brain Trust, is waiting outside the harbor, if I am not mistaken, to experiment just so soon as they establish any tangible experimental matter in the form of a government.

But the Russians should not take this too seriously. We always have looked upon Cuba as sort of an appendage.

It does not follow we would impose experimenters upon Russia at all.

ORIGIN OF MEASURES.

In England Henry I established a yard as the distance from the point of his nose to the end of his thumb, according to Warren's "Prices."

In 1221 three barleycorns were established as one inch; 12 inches one foot; 3 feet one ell.

Among Greeks and Romans the pace was the unit of measurement corresponding to the yard.

Koebel's work on surveying in Germany stated that the length of a foot should be determined in the following way: "Stand at the door of a church on Sunday and bid sixteen men to stop, tall ones and small ones as they happen to pass out when the service is finished; then make them put their left feet one behind another and the length thus obtained shall be a right and lawful rood to measure and survey land with, and the sixteenth part of it shall be the right and lawful foot."

In 1266 an act declared an English penny "called a sterling, shall weigh 32 wheat corns in the midst of the ear; and 20 pence do make an ounce; and 12 ounces a pound."

U. S. to Begin Relief Work In Next Week

Hopkins Sees Roosevelt, Says $75,000,000 Plan Near Completion.

By Staff Correspondent.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 30. Within the next seven days the Federal Government, through Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, will start purchase of at least $75,000,000 worth of food, clothing, fuel and other necessities of life for distribution among the destitute during the winter months.

Mr. Hopkins discussed tentative plans here today with President Roosevelt, announcing later that the buying program is almost ready. Many details must be worked out as to procedure in mass buying of food, clothing and fuel. The task of distributing it also presents a problem which has not been ironed out.

There is approximately $330,000,000 available to the relief administrator for purchase and distribution of supplies, and the various States have on hand almost as much.

"Not all the States and municipalities," Mr. Hopkins said, "are doing their share toward contributing relief funds, although most of them are trying to."

Several States, including Montana and Missouri, have called special sessions of their legislatures to settle the relief question as early as possible, and Mr. Hopkins expressed belief others will do likewise within the next few weeks.

For the first time since it has been obliged to offer direct aid to destitute citizens, the Federal Government will purchase and distribute coal for heating the home of those unable to provide for themselves.

Keep People Warm.

"We mean to keep people warm this winter and we've got to see that they are kept warm," Hopkins declared emphatically on revealing that his relief administration will be in the market for coal.

He said that in all probability anthracite would be purchased from dealers in New England, New York and Pennsylvania, and in other sections bituminous coal will be bought and distributed.

In purchasing food supplies, the relief administrator said it is his intention to buy all kinds of food so that shipments sent out might be balanced and recipients receive proper diet. The purchase will include meat, fruits, vegetables, dairy products, canned goods and a wide variety of other foods.

Harvard Seats Conant Oct. 9

Simple, Brief Induction Departs From Pomp of Lowell Rites.

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 30 (AP). James Bryant Conant will be installed as president of Harvard University October 9 in a ceremony reminiscent in its simplicity of those at which early presidents took office.

Only 150 persons will see Dr. Conant receive the traditional insignia of office, handed on to Harvard presidents since the early part of the seventeenth century.

The ceremony will be in distinct contrast to that at which Dr. Lowell took office in 1909, when thousands saw the brilliant exercises that marked his succession to President Charles Eliot.

The exercises will take probably not more than 15 minutes and Conant is expected to speak not more than five minutes.

Club Women Pick County Delegates

Arrangements Made by Oxon Hill Unit.

Representatives to the semiannual meeting of the Prince Georges County Federation of Women's Clubs have been selected by the Women's Community Club, it was announced yesterday at Oxon Hill, Md.

Mrs. Glenn Maines, Mrs. William Shegogue and Mrs. William G. Breen will represent the club at the meeting in Bladensburg at an undetermined date in October.

County meeting alternates will be Mrs. Thomas Sheriff, Mrs. W. E. Scollick and Mrs. Wentworth C. Jones. Mrs. Charles C. Grimes, director, and Mrs. Charles E. Janes, president, also will attend.

The Women's Community Club has been asked to serve the annual dinner for the benefit of the Oxon Hill School, October 12. Mrs. Glenn Maines has been appointed committee chairman.

A dance for the benefit of the school library will be given by the club late in October. The organization has promised again to contribute $80 to the library.

Silver Spring Library Group Plans Party

Plans are being made for the first annual card party of the Silver Spring Public Library Association October 10 at the Indian Spring Club under the auspices of the library advisory council. The affair will mark the second anniversary of the library.

Mrs. George W. Davis and Mrs. Ralph A. Wells, cochairmen, are arranging a program of musical entertainment. Mrs. William Wight is in charge of the distribution of tickets; Miss Mildred Page is chairman of prizes, and Paul Coughlan, Victor E. Grotlisch and Frank M. Proctor are in charge of tables and chairs.

Bowie School Shows Gain.

In keeping with the generally overcrowded conditions of public schools in Prince Georges County, an increase of 55 pupils has been noted at the Bowie High School.

Labor Gathers Here Monday First Time Under Blue Eagle

By Lewis L. Lorwin.

Tomorrow the American Federation of Labor will hold a grand review of its captains and will start its annual stocktaking of industrial policies and aims. This year's convention of the A. F. of L., meeting in the National Capital, promises to be of particular importance to American economic and political life. It will be the first great gathering of organized labor to be held under the wings of the Blue Eagle.

Due entirely to the NRA program, the federation is making rapid gains in membership. In the spring of this year, when the national industrial recovery act was being shaped and formulated, A. F. of L. due-paying membership had sunk to a little over 2,000,000—the lowest in more than a decade. Funds were depleted, income was on the decline and many union activities were being curtailed.

Today, spokesmen of the federation report more than half a million new members have entered its ranks within the last four months. With increased membership, more money is available. Organizers are again active, operating with greater vigor, conscious of the fact that they can appeal to the law in support of their activities. Numerous strikes are taking place, indicative of a restless spirit, which adds to the capacity of the federation to exercise power.

Trade Union Aims.

The federation is buoyed up by these developments. It also feels expansive because of the credit it claims for the National Industrial Recovery Act, which it regards as a victory for A. F. of L. ideas. Higher wages, shorter working hours and collective bargaining have long been advocated by the federation as means to permanent prosperity and better industrial relations. These doctrines are now sanctioned by the Government. But the big question is: What next?

The federation accepts the NRA wholeheartedly. It regards the act as a great opportunity for labor, and as a national necessity. It believes the NRA is a decisive step toward industrial self-government, extending the rule of the popular will from political to economic life. But how specifically does the federation see itself in relation to the economic situation looming ahead?

The convention finds the federation still worried about jurisdictional disputes and other minor matters. It seemingly wants to keep intact its ancient structure of a voluntary alliance of autonomous unions. It hopes to keep its new gains within the old forms.

It defines its program in relation to the NRA as one of pressure for higher wage rates; for the elimination of sectional wage differences; for the reduction of hours to 35 a week. Above all the federation aims to protect the rights to organize labor and to extend the area of collective bargaining.

In other words, the federation seems to visualize its role under the New Deal as that of a recognized, Governmentally aided institution, which asks for more while leaving to Government and industry the responsibility of providing the wherewithal.

The convention should show whether this limited vision can be explained by the great pressure on trade union leaders in the brief period since the NRA was launched It should also reveal whether there are deeper factors hampering the acquisition of that broad social outlook so important to labor, and to the country as a whole, in the present emergency.

From 1917 to 1920 the federation, as now, made great gains with Governmental aid. Then, as has been the case the last few months, its gains were largely amor miscellaneous workers who were, and are now being, organized in the so-called federal unions.

Federal Craft Unions.

Federal unions are composed of workers in trades where there is no national craft union. Members of craft unions are specialized workers in one technical process, such as bricklaying, or in allied processes of a single trade, such as machinists.

Because of its temporary character the federal union, which in conventions has only one vote no matter how large its membership, has never developed any strength within the federation. The weakness of the mushroom-like federal unions is one reason why the federation has been unable to hold rapidly acquired membership.

This weakness is emphasized by the jealous manner in which the federal unions are regarded by the established craft unions.

Thus there is reasonable doubt as to the permanency and effectiveness of much of the present rapid spread of unionization. And this issue is today a matter of importance to the whole community—not to labor alone. If the Government is to enforce Section 7 of the industrial recovery act, it must be assured of a certain stability and security in the labor organizations which speak for the workers.

History also indicates that the federation must face more squarely the issue of a national wage policy. Craft unions have almost habitually fought for high wages for themselves regardless of the return to labor as a whole. By accepting the NRA, the federation implied it would indorse not merely higher wages but also a more equitable distribution of wages.

Duties as Well as Rights.

These specific difficulties illustrate what is really a fundamental contradiction in the relations of the federation and the Government.

In accepting the NRA, the A. F. of L. has committed itself to governmental control of industry, but in its own internal affairs it still holds to the theory of an independent policy by each separate union.

It is now frequently asked whether A. F. of L policy can be adjusted to present conditions as long as its internal structure, unchanged for 25 years, contiues. For this reason, dramatic incidents, centering around the organization of the executive council, may be expected at the coming convention.

On the other hand, there are those, who, looking back over the history of the federation, see conservatism still strongly entrenched. They emphasize the vested interests of the separate unions, each out to defend its welfare regardless of consequences to other workers. They maintain that there is a dearth of capable local leadership.

Which school of opinion is right should be disclosed by the convention, which opens Monday. One of the events will be the dedication of a monument to Samuel Gompers, for over 40 years spiritual leader of the federation. Perhaps, in honoring the memory of Gompers, the federation may conclude that it can do so best by following the idea which was central to his thought—that the American labor movement needs a philosophy which will serve as a practical basis for truly national policy.

Doctor, Eyes Shut, Reads by X-Ray

Machine to Find Defects in Sight Demonstrated.

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—Reading with closed eyes, by using an X-ray apparatus, was demonstrated before the American Congress of Radiology today by Dr. A. H. Pirie, of the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

The machine, completed two weeks ago, enables a person to find any foreign body in his eye, discloses affected spots in cataracts or tumors, and shows whether the optic nerve is dead.

The patient places his closed eye against a tube having a diaphragm of lead, divided into quadrants. When the X-ray is turned on, vision is projected on the diaphragm.

Roosevelt Sees Wedding of Kin

Keeps Promise to Attend Hyde Park Nuptials.

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—President Roosevelt today attended the wedding of Alida Douglas Robinson, daughter of Theodore Douglas Robinson, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy, and Kenneth Walker, of New York.

The ceremony was performed in St. James Episcopal Church here at noon. The President and Mrs. Robinson are cousins.

A promise to attend this ceremony was one of the reasons bringing Mr. Roosevelt back to Hyde Park at this time.

Failure to Pay Alimony Laid To Kauffmann

Alleging she is destitute and dependent upon her parents for support of herself and two children, Mrs. Sylvia Brainerd Kauffmann, 1825 Wyoming avenue northwest, yesterday petitioned District Supreme Court for a limited divorce from Philip C. Kauffmann, 1101 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Mrs. Kauffman asserted her husband, who has an estimated income of $35,000 to $40,000 a year, has not contributed to her support since July. Until that date, she said, he gave her $700 a month, $300 of which was for her maintenance and 400 for the children.

The court was informed Kauffmann obtained a Reno divorce in 1930. The petition charged he is seeking to modify terms of that divorce to reduce alimony payments and change custody of the children, who are with their mother.

Chief Justice A. A. Wheat issued temporary orders restraining Kauffman from disposing of any of his stocks or bonds and from taking any assets from safety deposit vaults, pending a final hearing October 10, and from proceeding further in Reno.

The Evening Star Newspaper Co. was prohibited from paying him any salary until that date, when a hearing on temporary alimony is to be heard. Named as defendants were the Evening Star Newspaper Co., Samuel H. Kauffmann and Henry G. Hanford, as trustees of the estate of Louise Kauffmann Simpson, and the National Savings & Trust Co.

The Kauffmanns were married in May, 1926. Their children are Philip C., 6, and Victor Kauffman 2d, 5.

Gallery Glimpses

"REVOLT!" The bushy eyebrows of House Democratic Leader Joe Byrns moved expressively upward in a gesture of mild interest.

Joe himself said nothing. His eyebrows spoke for him, as they frequently do when the conversation turns on things better left unsaid.

Those shaggy eyebrows overhang weary eyes that have taken on new luster during the restful months following the last strenuous session.

The eyes would deceive you. They are the eyes of a tired man, and Joe is tireless.

And so we put the inevitable question about patronage. Would House Democrats stand for being put off any longer? Would they revolt?

It wasn't a proper question to put to Joe. He is taking a holiday on official statements. And even if he were not, it was not a proper question.

Joe chose not to answer it; that is, not vocally. But he couldn't control his eyebrows. They continued to chatter on, eloquently.

"Well," warbled those eyebrows, we've heard a lot about House Democrats revolting.

"It seems there was some talk about that sort of thing last session, wasn't there?

"It wasn't patronage then. It was something about gag rules, and swallowing legislation they didn't like. Funny nothing ever came of it."

Joe seemed aware his eyebrows were talking too much again. He struggled to control them, and succeeded at last.

"Revolt?" he asked, triumphant.

The conversation turned to other things.

It was Joe Byrns who put down these incipient revolts last session; not that they ever would have gotten out of hand, anyway. But Joe saw to it that they didn't. There was the time when Representative Hancock, of North Carolina, spoke out in meeting, and there was the time Jeff Busby held up proceedings with his quorum calls. It was not the eloquence of Joe's eyebrows, but his tongue, that smoothed over those situations.

PATRONAGE continues to be the sore thumb in hands that are holding new deal cards. It is the subject most talked about—not for publication—in Democratic Congressional circles.

Walk into any Democratic senator's office, if you can find one that is unlocked, and talk to the senator's secretary. It is the secretary, anyway, who is bearing the brunt of all this job business. If you happen to arrive when he is making his 'nth telephone call without success, he might unburden himself to you.

His discourse would run as follows:

"Of course, we are 100 per cent for Roosevelt, let me make that clear. The senator is. I am. We were original Roosevelt men.

"I am not criticizing the President at all. The very idea is repugnant to me. We are behind him. 100 per cent behind him. But nevertheless——"

This much is a prologue, never omitted by any good Democrat. It seems to purge their conscience for what is to follow. But when they reach "nevertheless," look out! From then on, even a discreet secretary to a discreet senator will speak his mind.

They will tell you that loyalty of party members is the basis of every strong political organization. They will tell you it is possible to preserve that loyalty only by filling key posts with deserving party members. And invariably they will add:

"The President should realize that."

But to date, all this talk of "revolt" has been an anonymous sort of thing. No representative or senator will let his name be linked with it. Even those who started out on their own to corner a few jobs have subsided of late—no reflection on Representative James V. McClintic (Democrat), Oklahoma.

The Federal Diary

(Trade-mark Applied For)

By Morgan Baker

Harris & Ewing.

Nothing is "Greek" to these expert linguists serving the Government. They are officers of the Society of Federal Translators, Lodge No. 19, A. F. G. E. Left to right: Miss Gertrude Holinger, Patent Office, treasurer; Miss Johanna H. Boernsen, naval intelligence, corresponding secretary; Kenneth F. Rogers, I. P. S.. Postoffice, recording secretary; Paul Vogenitz, I. P. S., Postoffice, vice president; Burton H. Lamore, Translating Bureau, State, president.

LETTERS in all languages, received by various Government offices from every point in the world, are quickly translated by expert linguists here. Whether the medium is Arabic or Russian, Hindustani or Japanese, Uncle Sam's regular staff transforms the communication into English with the same thoroughness as they do with the more familiar speech of French, Spanish and German.

BAKER.

These translators are functioning more efficiently since they organized the Society of Federal Translators three years ago. The group, now with the American Federation of Government Employes, is Lodge No. 19. They have undertaken an ambitious program for the winter.

"The society," explains Burton H. Lamore, State president, "affords members the greatest possible facilities for developing their knowledge of languages and to study ways and means of promoting interests of translators in general. At first the society was affiliated with the National Federation of Federal Employes, but withdrew because the latter had severed its connections with the American Federation of Labor.

Christie First President.

"Incidentally, this is the only lodge in the A. F. G. E. organized along professional lines.

"The first president was Emerson B. Christie, chief of the Translating Bureau, State. He was succeeded by Paul Vogenitz, Postoffice. The president is elected for one year and may not succeed himself."

Under chairmanship of Mr. Lamore, the society has sought a higher classification for translators. As a result of individual appeals, two members have been reallocated to higher grades in Civil Service. However, the passage of the economy act, forbidding all reallocations to higher grades, temporarily checked the society's activities on this point.

Research Committee.

The research committee, under direction of Miss Gertrude Holinger, Patent Office, is doing valuable work in collecting and distributing information of interest to translators. It facilitates and encourages the exchange of vocabularies and helps to organize translators for mutual assistance.

In promoting good will and friendship at the regular monthly meetings, a brief lecture on literary or linguistic subjects and entertainment features is presented. Last year a dramatic sketch by Mr. Lamore was widely commended by theatrical critics.

"The society is anxious to make the difficulty and importance of translating generally understood. It is prepared to demonstrate that the qualifications which a competent translator must possess are at least equal to the training necessary for doing any other technical or scientific work," Mr. [illegible] declared.

Members of Society.

Members of the society include: W. Ayvazoglou, Bureau of Mines, Interior; Miss Johanna H. Boernsen (), Naval Intelligence, Navy; Henry E. Brockway, Foreign Agricultural Service, Agriculture; Emerson B. Christie, Translating Bureau, State; Walter E. Claflin, Commerce (retired); J. Marron Dundas, Chief Engineer's Office, War; Allen D. Garman, Military Intelligence, War; Miss Gertrude W. Holinger (), Patent Office; F. G. Haskins, Translating Bureau, State; Ignatius Jawney, Translating Bureau, State; Miss Bluma Karp, Naval Intelligence, Navy; Burton H. Lamore, Translating Bureau, State; Arthur Lebel, Translating Bureau, State; Edwin Niggli, Commerce; John W. Perkins, Translating Bureau, State; Mrs. Meta Bolchert Pirson (*), Postoffice; International Postal Service, Postoffice; K. F. Rogers, I. P. S., Postoffice, and Paul Vogenitz, I. P. S., Postoffice.

Golf Challenge.

AN invitation for matches with other departmental teams of 4 to 12 players each is issued by members of the Leatherneck Golf League, whose season ends Tuesday.

The Marines have four teams of four men each in the league. They average 94 around the East Potomac course. Scoring in the matches will be on the Nassau system. Arrangements can be made between one or two men from each department through the Federal Diary.

Personnel Shifts.

Frank W. Hilberg, formerly of Animal Industry, Agriculture, with the DuPont Co., at Wilmington, Del.

Miss Margaret C. Erno has been transferred from Docket, I. C. C., to the Rail Coordinator's office.

Miss Sophronia Waesche (*), has been appointed stenographer in the Bureau of Yards and Docks, Navy.

Miss Rebecca Hyneman, Construction Service, Veterans, Administration, is temporarily with Budget and Statistics, V. A.

Those afflicted with hay fever will find comfort in this report from a couple who have just returned from a haven of relief in New England. J. W. Scanlin, Naval Communications, takes his sister to a sanitarium in Bethlehem, N. H., each year and is enthusiastic about treatment for the ailment there. They met a number of Washingtonians there this summer.

Drive on Spoils.

"GOVERNMENT service can no more exist permanently half spoils and half merit than the Nation could exist half bond and half free," declared Dr. Walter P. Taylor, fifth vice president of the National Federation of Federal Employes, in the federation's drive to bring the plight of Government workers before the country.

"Recovery will best be promoted — efficiency obtained, economy guaranteed by extermination of the spoils system; by enthronement of the merit system in all Governmental enterprises, whether they be regular or emergency in character," Dr. Taylor continues.

"The records of history are clear. The opinion of competent students of Government is unequivocal. The spoils system is wasteful, corrupt and destructive. The merit system is economical, efficient and constructive. If promotion of patronage, of spoils, is to prevail, if Government by soup kitchen methods is to be the vogue, let us not fool ourselves. We have abandoned the fight for economy and efficiency before the battle starts!"

Shoals Heads Sees Danger Of Party "Pie"

Ban of Patronage Urged in Public Ownership by Dr. Morgan.

"The very life of the American Nation is threatened by the custom of political patronage," President Arthur E. Morgan, of the Tennessee Valley Authority, told the Public Ownership Institute in Chicago last night.

At the same time, he suggested a plan to enable executives of publicly owned utilities to defy political power in giving jobs. As president of the Valley Authority, Dr. Morgan has direction of the public ownership experiments at Muscle Shoals and Norris Dam.

In view of the present practice of getting jobs through political influence, "I believe that a change to socialistic control, with greatly enlarged public ownership and activities, might only increase this evil," Dr. Morgan said.

"The success of public ownership will extend only so far as it can be divorced from political patronage. In the past, with public functions constituting only a small part of our social and economic life, political patronage was a vicious disease, but was not necessarily fatal. We might tolerate the Post-office Department as a patronage machine, since it was almost the only strictly business enterprise in which the Federal Government was engaged. If we greatly increase public ownership, then the doctrine that 'to the victor belong the spoils' will spell the doom of social and economic decency and health."

An "Institute of Managers of Publicly Owned Utilities" he suggested as a weapon to keep political patronage out of publicly-owned utilities.

At the same time, Dr. Morgan recognized the need for some pay for the party worker. But he suggested that he be paid in cash and not reimbursed by being given a political appointment. "That would be better political hygiene than to pay him by giving him a job for which he is not fitted."

Douglas Gets Aid of Bruere Upon Budget

As a coordinator of the multiplying credit expansion activities of the Government, Henry Bruere, budget expert and president of the Bowery Savings Bank of New York, will be brought into the Treasury Department by President Roosevelt to serve with Lewis W. Douglas, Director of the Budget.

Treasury authorities said yesterday that Mr. Bruere had been asked by the President, who talked with him in New York Wednesday, to supervise the credit expansion program as it relates to such agencies as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Public Works Administration, Farm Credit Administration, Home Loan Banks and their financing through the Treasury and Federal Reserve Board.

The President has been considering appointment of a coordinator whose function would be not only to centralize direction of the numerous credit facilities of the Government, but to relate them to the Treasury and budget problem of financing. Frank C. Walker, secretary of the President's executive council, Secretary of the Treasury Woodin and other officials have urged this step.

Mr. Bruere long has been distinguished for his work with many phases of municipal improvement in New York, especially in reorganization and budgetary matters. He was Federal director of the United States Employment Service for New York State in 1918. In 1917 and 1918 he was financial adviser to Mexico.

Since then he has been vice president of the American Metals Co., later third vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and since 1927, president of the Bowery Savings Bank, reputed to be the largest savings bank in the world. He has written books on city government and budgetary affairs.

Mr. Bruere's selection gave rise to characteristic but unconfirmed assumptions he was to be groomed for the portfolio that Secretary Woodin is expected to relinquish before Congress meets, or to replace Budget Director Douglas should he be advanced to higher position.

Since Mr. Bruere is known as a sound money advocate his coming to the Treasury is taken as another portent of future orthodoxy in monetary affairs.

U. S. Releases Pork for Relief

First Consignment Sent From St. Paul to Montana Needy.

The first consignment of Government-owned surplus pork was started over the rails yesterday for distribution through relief agencies in Montana, Relief Administrator Hopkins announced.

Two carloads of 30,000 pounds each were shipped to Butte from the St. Paul packing area.

These shipments mark the initial distribution of approximately 100,000,000 pounds of cured pork, available as a result of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration's recent purchases of 5,000,000 young pigs and 400,000 sows.

New 1934
PACKARDS
start fine-car buying wave.

AMERICA is buying fine cars again.

On September 7th, the Packard Motor Car Company announced its new 1934 models.

The sales response to these cars has been most gratifying.

Indicating the public's hunger for fine cars, the Packard factory is shipping four times as many cars as it shipped a year ago.

Once you have seen and driven these new 1934 Packards, you will understand why they have found favor so quickly.

They are the finest cars Packard has ever produced. The easiest to handle. The most comfortable to ride in. The most beautifully appointed. And the most economical to own.

See them—the new Packard Eight, the new Packard Super Eight, and the new Packard Twelve.

Drive one. Compare it with your present car. Compare it with any other fine car the world can offer.

Then decide which fine car you are going to own.

And don't forget—Packard offers you your only opportunity to purchase a next year's fine car at this year's prices. For with the cost of labor and materials increasing, the prices of finished products will certainly also increase.

And also, in exchanging your present car for one of the new Packards, you can enjoy immediately the only new model 1934 fine car yet on the market.

Business Men Demand More U.S. Economy

Commerce Chamber Will Fight Greater Pay for Veterans.

Government economy, for two years past a Congressional watchword, will be revived as a major issue at the January session of Congress.

Big business is getting ready to urge further use of the pruning knife, it was learned last night on good authority.

The United States Chamber of Commerce, which drove last year for an $800,000,000 slash in Federal expenditures, and got much of what it asked, is behind the movement.

Lending strength to their hand, the National Economy League, one of the most potent factors in last session's drive to cut expenditures, will renew its campaign before Congress meets.

Will Oppose Veterans.

"Maintenance of reductions in operating expenses of the Federal Government, with suggestions as to possible further reductions," is the chamber's economy platform.

It probably will be elaborated and made to apply to specific items when the chamber's directors meet again next month to consider legislative agenda.

The National Economy League already has loosed its first shaft of the season. Directed against the veterans' drive for full restoration of service-connected disability payments, it probably sounds the keynote of the approaching economy battle.

Hands Off of Salaries.

In addition to veterans' compensation, already closely cropped, additional targets may be found in increased expenditures under the Government's emergency program. This movement is expected to hinge entirely on NRA progress—on whether the spending justifies itself.

The chamber probably will make no fight to block partial restoration of the Government pay cut, which now appears likely. Officials point out that, contrary to the popular belief, the organization never advocated a Government pay cut in the first place. They see no reason why they should make an issue of salaries at the present time.

Sorority Will Entertain Rushees at Tea Today

A rush tea will be held by Theta Chapter of Gamma Delta Sigma Sorority from 3 to 4 o'clock this afternoon at the home of Miss Peggy Kremkau, 1343 Kennedy street northwest, president. Members of the commitee are Miriam Williams, Anne Moore, Bernadine Rodgers, Laura Dunawin, Laura Clark, Betty Bryant, Katherine McQuinn and Bessie Whiting.

The guest candidates include Helen Bell, Margaret Bittinger, Ruth Cooke, Elizabeth Dungan, Margaret Ewers, Eleanor Fan, Alice Hubers, Sally Moore, Evelyn Nichols, Edith Rolls and Margaret Taylor.

Nicholas Kendros Heads Delicatessen Men's Unit

Nicholas Kendros last night was elected president of the United Retail Merchants Association, a restaurant and delicatessen organization. James Stathes was elected first vice president; George Chaparas, second vice president; Louis Chaconas, treasurer, and Thomas Skiados, secretary.

James Harshoulas, George Geralis, John Gelopoulos and Gust Bechas were elected to the board of directors, and Minas Discopoulos, Peter Creticson and James Protos to the board of examiners.

Storage!

Army to Sell 14-Year-Old Food to Relief Groups.

Army emergency rations, 200,000 units, in storage 11 to 14 years, will be sold to charitable organizations, the War Department announced yesterday.

Each unit contains 7 ounces of corned beef, 8½ ounces of pork and beans, 6.6 ounces of hard bread, 3 ounces of sweet chocolate, 0.6 of soluble coffee, and 2.4 ounces of sugar.

Before selling the rations to relief agencies at nominal prices—they cost about $150,000—they will be analyzed to determine whether they are fit for human food.

Jesuits Begin Georgetown U. Special Study

Scholars and Scientists Include 2 From Canada and Philippines.

Assigned to Georgetown University, 10 Jesuit scholars and scientists have begun special studies here which will extend from two to three years. Two of them are from Canada and the Philippine Islands.

Dr. Coleman Nevils, the university president, said six of the seven Jesuit provinces in the United States were represented in the group. The Chicago province only is not represented.

Five of the student priests are engaging in work at the Georgetown Observatory, and one of these also is specializing is seismology, the science of earthquakes. He is the Rev. Raymond Buckley of Santa Clara University, California, who is preparing himself to take the place of Father Ricard, known on the Pacific Coast as the "Padre of the Rains." Others who are studying astronomy are the Rev. Burk Gaffney, Loyola College, Montreal; the Rev. Edmond J. Nutthall, Manila Observatory; the Rev. Thomas D. Barry, Weston College, Boston, and the Rev. Walter J. Miller, Woodstock College, Md.

Two others are specializing in chemistry. They are the Rev. Arthur L. McNeil, Gonzaga University, Spokane, Wash., and the Rev. Alvin A. Hufnagle, Woodstock College, Md.

The Rev. Philip H. McGrath, of Woodstock College, has been assigned to studies in mathematics, and the Rev. John Delangley, Loyola University, New Orleans, is engaged in historical researches.

Only one of the student priests, the Rev. Joseph F. Thorning, St. Louis (Mo.) University, will do any teaching at Georgetown during his stay here. Father Thorning is taking advanced studies in political science and will lecture in the graduate school of arts and sciences. He has a doctor's degree from Catholic University and spent 1931-32 in Europe studying economic conditions.

Lions Clubs Hold Party for Women

200 Attend Meeting at Country Club.

Almost 200 persons, representing Lions Clubs throughout the Maryland-Washington District, attended a ladies' night at the Montgomery Country Club in Silver Spring.

Among those on the program which followed the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Randall, of Silver Spring; Robert Frederick Freund, the Beall Brothers Quintet, of Maryland. Miss Sylvia Kaplowitz, known as Gypsy Sylva, appeared with Mr. Freund in a musical presentation.

A novel stunt was given by the Montgomery County Players, with Thomas P. Dowd, Mahlon Selby, Irving Day, F. Eldridge and Louise Massey taking part.

Research Club to Meet.

The Research Club will hold its fall business meeting tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the office of the research department, Thomson School. The new president, Miss Bernardine Haycock, will conduct the session.

U. S. Urged to "Grubstake" Gold Miners as Aid to Idle

Labor Head Sees Chance to Make Social Assets of Social Burdens.

(Associated Press.)

The red-shirted miner, trudging behind his overloaded burro through western mountains in search of gold, again may become a familiar sight if recommendations of Randolph Walker, of the committee for the Nation, for Federal subsidies to prospectors are followed.

The plan yesterday received indorsement of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who sees opportunity to make "social assets of hundreds of men now social burdens."

"There are many reasons for supporting the proposal to grubstake as many men as can be placed in the placer mining fields," Green said. "The return in money is quick, unmistakable and beneficial in a long chain of operations after it leaves the miners' hands.

"Men are removed from the unemployment rolls of cities, cutting down the terrible competition for an undersupply of jobs, taken from a condition socially and individually unhealthy and placed in the finest kind of open-air productive labor.

"Grub-staking creates no new financial problem for the Government," Green declared, "and it will cut the burden of taxation. The surprising thing is that this effort has not been made, for placer mining still has a lure for those who are adventurous and there will be no difficulty in enlisting as many as the Government might find desirable to help."

Green declared he was "firmly convinced" men can become self-supporting and remunerative to the State in a reasonable length of time if given necessary funds to rake the hills for gold.

Capital Transit Is Likely to Test New Low Rate

Modern Cars, Improved Tracks Are Expected After December 1.

Experiments with a short haul fare by the Capital Transit Co., after it begins operation December 1, are confidently expected in utility circles.

Special efforts to win back for the street cars much patronage lost to taxicabs and private cars in recent years will be made, it is predicted, by introduction of probably a series of rates scaling up to the present 10 cents.

Increase in taxicab rates effective today lends encouragement to the new street railway venture as traction officials have complained against low taxi rates for several years.

The Capital Transit Co. will have after December 1 a working capital of more than $4,000,000, and officials have indicated much of this will be used in installing modern cars and improving tracks.

John Hanna, president of the merged railway, has expressed interest in the 5 and 10-cent zone system proposed by People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech, and has said this plan as well as others will be considered.

The 5-cent fare for buses and a street car loop started two months ago on lower Fourteenth street is showing surprising results after getting off to a disappointing start. The Washington Railway & Electric Co. readjusted the schedule of the special cars more to the convenience of Federal employes housed in that area and immediately patronage almost doubled.

Gun "Toter" Declares He Is "On the Spot"

Declaring he carried a gun because he was "on the spot," Jack Francis Larue, 25, of Baltimore, was arrested here yesterday and held for investigation.

All Races and Creeds Pay Tribute to Dead Pastor

Regardless of race or creed, hundreds packed the Church of the Immaculate Conception yesterday as solemn requiem mass was said for the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, who died in Providence Hospital Wednesday. Thousands milled about the church entrance unable to gain admittance to pay their last respects to one of Washington's best-known and most-loved pastors. Lower, the flag-draped casket is carried to the hearse through a lane of clergymen.

Car Merger Dec. 1 Will Cure Those Transfer-Point Blues

Centralized Control Will Abolish Extra Penny Fare Annoyance.

"Punch, conductor, punch with care;
But sell no more transfers to the pass-en-gere."

At one minute after midnight on the morning of December 1, Washington street-car riders will turn into joy riders.

Then, under the street-car merger, the universal transfer system will begin.

Ever since the days of the old horse cars, later the hansom cabs and cable cars, Washingtonians have been beset with evils of transportation. Most of them came from competing car-line systems.

Transferring from one car line to another meant the payment of 1 cent, or 2 cents, and sometimes 3 cents, for the privilege, and usually ended in confusion.

Even conductors sometimes did not know the exact charge, or whether a transfer could be issued.

Transfer-Point Maze.

John H. Hanna, president of the new Capital Transit Co., finished the pay transfer business at a meeting last week.

There are nearly twenty transfer points that now may bring joy instead of woe to the heart of the traveling public—the street car riders.

At Eighth and G streets southeast, transfers are issued from westbound Washington Railway cars to north-bound Capital Traction cars.

At Eighth and East Capitol streets, transfers are issued from the north or southbound Capital Traction cars to eastbound Washington Railway cars, and from westbound Washington Railway cars to north or southbound Capital Traction cars.

Where You Pay Again.

A man who wants a transfer at Eighth and C streets northeast, or at Eighth and D streets northeast, or at Eighth and H streets northeast—three important transfer junctions within gunshot of each other—may get his transfer without argument.

At Eckington place and Florida avenue transfers are issued to all points of the compass, over both lines—and always for a price.

Dawn for Commuters.

After December 1, car travelers using this junction point can begin saving two cents a day.

Two cents a day cached in the baby's bank means compound interest on a couple of baby bonds.

In place of the pay transfer will come the free transfer.

Better connections at transfer points. Better connections at bus stops. Bigger and better cars are planned later.

There will be rerouting, and complete change of schedules.

The 97th Senator's Diary

Monday, Sept. 25.

The cry for inflation now, as usual, rises from the soil, this time chiefly from the cotton kingdom. From the Rocky Mountain region, an occasional voice is heard clamoring for bimetalism. The inflationist bloc, now so vocal in Washington, represents only a small proportion of the population; I should say not more than a tenth of it. The rest of the country either is indifferent to the issue or distinctly hostile to it. The "hard-money" doctrine, just as in '96, seems to gain rather than diminish in popularity when put to the test.

In view of the enormous publicity obtained by the Capitol Hill inflationists during the last few weeks it is interesting to examine the experience and background of their chief spokesmen—Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee; Senator Fletcher, of Florida, chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee; Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma; Senator Wheeler, of Montana, and Senator Huey Long, who might be termed chairman of Etiquette and Billingsgate. Without for a moment questioning their ability as politicians and legislators, it is a bit difficult to discover anything in their records to qualify them as advisers to the President on the delicate and all-important monetary problem.

Pat Harrison, for instance, is a delightful fellow, but none of his personal friends, including myself, would think of proposing him as a financial expert. His sphere is politics primarily, and few can excel him there. He comes from Gulfport, Miss., where at the age of 23 he became district attorney, and his career since has been exclusively political. Under the time-honored seniority rule in the Senate, he became chairman of the Finance Committee, succeeding Reed Smoot, but if he has had any experience in business or banking, there is no record of it.

Senator Fletcher, a kindly and pleasant person, liked by all his colleagues, started out as a lawyer, took up politics, became Mayor of Jacksonville, and then came to the Senate in 1909. His biography records no business experience.

Kay Pittman, is must be conceded, does know something about rare metals, but largely in bullion state. He learned a lot about gold in the rush to the Klondike, 35 years ago, and still more about silver at Tonopah, his legal residence, where he soldom resides. He is eager to do something for silver and he impressed London with his earnestness during the Economic Conference, to which he was a delegate. But it is difficult to find anything in the record concerning his business experience.

Senator Elmer Thomas, who piloted the inflation legislation through the Senate last session, comes from Medicine Park, Okla. In his congressional autobiography he says that in 1900 he moved to Lawton, where he "became interested in business." Perhaps that explains his more recent behavior. Noisiest of all the inflationists, he has suddenly applied the soft pedal with the statement that he will not say or do anything to interfere with President Roosevelt's program. He is convinced, however, that Mr. Roosevelt some day will swing over to inflation.

Senator Wheeler is a 16-to-1 silver man. Montana is a silver-producing State. As an investigator he earned his laurels in driving the "Daugherty gang" out of the Department of Justice. All fair-minded persons will agree he deserves great credit for the excellent job he did in the Justice Department inquiry. But hardly any one, after examining his record of practical experience, would urge him as a financial adviser to the President.

As for Huey Long, nothing need be said about his qualifications as a monetary expert except that they hardly equal his talents at fisticuffs.

Thursday, Sept. 28.

Henry Wallace, Secretary of Agriculture, is one of the most daring experimenters in the Administration. He does not hesitate to kill off pigs by the millions to take the pork surplus off the market or to talk the Southern planters into plowing under every third row of cotton. But he doesn't warm up to inflation. He warns the farmers that it is no cure-all for their ills. If as a result of inflation they get more for their commodities, he tells them, they must pay more for the things they must buy when they go to town. For that, he is bitterly denounced by the Farmers Union, and Senator Murphy, of Iowa, one of Wallace's chief sponsors, is forced, considerably to his own embarrassment, to rush to his defense. President Roosevelt, I am told, is much pleased with his Secretary of Agriculture, and is not likely to heed the clamor of agrarian malcontents for his removal.

Friday, Sept. 29.

Genial Jim Farley is beginning to get bad breaks. Well-meaning news writers are attempting to put a Presidential bug in his ear—not for 1936, of course, but for 1940, when it will become necessary for the Democrats to nominate a successor to Franklin D. Roosevelt. Jim's main purpose in life these days is to build up an organization to insure the renomination and reelection of Roosevelt in 1936, and I doubt whether he has given much thought to 1940. His activities in the New York mayoralty contest, however, have furnished the inspiration for stories that he is scheming for the governorship as a stepping-stone to the Presidency. The Presidential virus is hard to combat. I hope it doesn't "take" on Farley.

Saturday, Sept. 30.

Walter Edge, of New Jersey, former Senator and Ambassador to France, is back in Washington, looking over the political scene. Jersey Republicans, I am told, are trying to induee him to run for governor. Mr. Edge is a man of means and private life does not especially appeal to him. He would like to get back into politics. If the outlook is fair, his friends think he will take a chance on the governorship with the idea of making himself available for the Republican Presidential—or Vice Presidential—nomination in 1936.

"Tiger" Fought In and Out Of Tammany

New York Makes Ready for Battle, Rebels to Back McKee.

New York, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—New York girded itself tonight for the grand opening of a sensational and bitter political campaign, with opposition to Tammany leadership—both within and without "the Hall"—apparently stronger than at any time in a score of years.

From the Battery to the Bronx, along bustling Broadway and to the outskirts of Brooklyn, interest in the three-cornered battle for control of America's largest city government already is overshadowing every other topic of conversation at the dinner table, in speakeasies and on commuters' trains.

Can They Beat Tammany?

Most frequently the question asked is: Can they beat Tammany?

The independent Democratic candidacy of Joseph V. McKee, former aldermanic president, offered to Tammany leaders—who are dissatisfied with Mayor John P. O'Brien—the opportunity to support a Democrat without being so irregular as to support Fiorello H. LaGuardia, fusion candidate, whose most conspicuous public service has been under the Republican banner.

Within 24 hours after McKee tossed his hat in the ring seven Tammany district leaders were understood to have given tacit support to him.

Included were three who had won in the primaries on opposition to John F. Curry, Tammany leader. While all or most of the rebellious leaders probably will give lip service to O'Brien, they are expected to give active, subrosa support to McKee.

Rounding Out Ticket.

Fusion leaders went ahead with plans for an aggressive campaign against Tammany and McKee.

At the moment, LaGuardia has the strongest support from the press, with indorsement of the New York Herald Tribune, New York Times, World-Telegram, and Bronx Home News. The Sun leaned toward McKee. Others were noncommittal.

Redland Hunt To Give Show

First Annual Event Set for Oct. 21; Classes Number 14.

The first annual horse show of the Redland Hunt will be held on October 21 at the Rock Spring Farm, between Rockville and Norbeck, Md. The program will consist of 14 classes, including a pony class for children 14 years and under.

N. O. Turpenning, of Rock Spring Farm, will donate a challenge cup to be awarded to a Redland Hunt member only. This cup must be won three times by the same person before becoming a permanent possession.

The judges will be J. I. H. Alexander, of Leesburg, Va., and J. E. Keyser, of Flint Hill, Va.

J. A. (Cy) Cummings, of Chevy Chase, Md., will be judging chairman.

The show committee members are Thomas Mott, master of hounds, general chairman; B. T. Brosius, chairman; secretary, Mrs. Banks Berry; treasurer, Miss Eleanor Diamond; publicity committee, Fred Hughes and Boyd Keys; ring, O. W. Anderson and Mr. Lasalle; marshals, Joe Hutton and H. T. Cole; grounds, Ewart Terpenning, Franklin Thompson, N. O. Turpenning, Johnson Morgan and B. T. Brosius; refreshments, Mrs. B. T. Brosius, Mrs. O. W. Anderson, Miss Lasalle, Mr. J. B. Bland and Miss Rachel Gott; tickets and gate, O. W. Anderson.

Endeavor Field Meet Arranged for Saturday

The annual field meet of the Washington Christian Endeavor Union will be held Saturday at Pierce Mill, in Rock Creek Park.

In addition to the regular track meet, a baseball game will be played by the Intermediates and Seniors. A loving cup will be awarded to the church winning the most points.

New Arts Club Will Be Opened In Washington

Group Will Be Housed in Former Egyptian Legation.

The new leisure that is following in the wake of the industrial readjustment is partly responsible for tremendous growth of The Arts Groups of Washington which was formed last fall. With the former Egyptian Legation on Fifteenth street opposite Meridian Park as its new home, the Group will celebrate with a formal opening the end of October.

Seven Arts House will be the name of the new club house. It will serve as a gathering place for artists and art lovers and will present recitals, exhibitions and informal programs.

Mrs. William H. King, president, and Mrs. George Oakley Totten, whose husband, incidentally, planned the house, are directing renovation and refurnishing.

Students Doing Work.

With Lester Shafer and Marian Chace, leaders of the Denishawn dancers, as the moving spirits, a group of the young art and dance students is doing much of the actual work. Terrace furniture is being painted, an exhibit of paintings is being prepared, furnishings are being chosen and arranged and the huge house is filled daily with eager young people.

Michael Logan is to be resident manager and plans a cuisine quite in keeping with the creative spirit of Seven Arts House.

Exhibition of Paintings.

An exhibit of Leon Carroll's paintings will be opened on Saturday evening, October 28. The following night a reception for the Russian pianist, Hiller, will be held. On Monday evening Chace and Shafer will present a dance recital, and the porcelains and sculpture of Vicken von Post Totten will be displayed. The house-warming program will come to a close with a grand costume ball on Hallowe'en.

The charter members include, in addition to Mrs. King and Mrs Totten, Mrs. Ernest N. Smith Mrs. Alexander Trowbridge, Miss Ada Rainey and Mrs. George B. Thorpe.

Dental Clinic Idea Rejected at Bowie

High School Objects to Program of State.

The Bowie High School will not accept the four months dental clinic program mapped by the Maryland Board of Public Health, it has been decided by the Parent-Teacher Association.

Five other Prince Georges County schools also have rejected the plan, stating their intention to cooperate with local dentists. Another, Glenn Dale High School, has not made public its decision.

Under the State program, each county is to receive services of a public health board dentist for half of the school year. In return, a fee of $700 is asked.

The division of oral hygiene, however, has volunteered to pay $150 and the county board of education is required to pay $100. The remainder must be raised by parent-teacher associations.

Dr. C. A. Fisher has been selected to conduct the Bowie clinics. Other schools declining the program are Hyattsville, Mount Rainier, Brentwood, Riverdale and Laurel.

Town of Kosciusko Gets Stamp.

Kosciusko, Miss., was added yesterday to the list of cities where the 5-cent Kosciusko commemorative stamp will be first placed on sale October 13. The Mississippi town is the only one in the country bearing the name of the famous Pole, the Associated Press reports.

Thousands Obtaining Jobs Discharged at Forest Camps

U. S. Speeds Machinery Month Ahead to Avoid Issuing Winter Garments to 125,000 Quitting; Recruits Will Fill Vacancies.

Thousands of young men who obtained other jobs were being discharged yesterday at Civilian Conservation Corps camps throughout the country.

Officials estimated 125,000 of the 300,000 forestry workers will not reenlist. Recruits will be enrolled to take their places. Recruiting here will depend on the extent that the District's quota of 1,000 is depleted.

Discharges were begun now, rather than waiting until November and completion of the six-month enrollment period, officials said, to avoid unnecessary issuance of winter clohting.

Wood-burning stoves, winter clothing for 300,000 men and lumber for barracks are being purchased by the War Department.

Robert Fechner, director, said that by November there will be 1,466 camps occupied by 200 men each, operating in 48 States.

Feast Planned Oct. 29 At Catholic University

Ceremonies celebrating Feast of Christ, the King, will be held in the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Catholic University October 29, under the auspices of the Holy Name Society, of Washington and Maryland.

William J. Neale, society president, has charge. Frank Gunning, of St. Martin's Church, will be master of ceremonies.

New Leisure Seen Able Ally in Creating Greater Interest in Art

At the lower left is Marian Chace (cq), of the Denishawn dancers, aiding in refurnishing the clubhouse. Lower center is Lester Shafer, another Denishawn dancer.

Mrs. Greenway Slated to Win

Republicans Tacitly Agree Democrat Will Get Douglas' Seat.

Phoenix, Ariz., Sept. 30 (AP). Seeking a representative for the congressional seat vacated by Lewis W. Douglas when he became Federal Director of the Budget, Arizona's electorate will choose Tuesday between Mrs. Isabella Greenway, Democratic rancher, and H. B. Wilkinson, Republican lawyer.

Republican leaders tacitly have conceded the election result was decided at the primary of August 8 and the majority will vote for Mrs. Greenway.

In the primary, at which the Republicans had no candidate formally in the field, Mrs. Greenway received most of the Republican write-in vote, as well as a decisive victory in the three-cornered Democratic contest.

The Republican registered electorate, as such, had no hand in choosing a candidate to oppose Mrs. Greenway. Wilkinson, Phoenix attorney, was named after the primary by the Republican State central committee.

At the meeting which was called to select a candidate, the Republican State central committee received, and accepted, the resignation of Frank H. Hitchcock, Tucson publisher and former Postmaster General, as Republican national committeeman from Arizona. Hitchcock asked to be relieved of "further responsibility" for affairs of the party in the State.

Although a seasoned party campaigner, the preprimary campaign was the first Mrs. Greenway ever had made in her own behalf.

She never had sought elective public office before, although since 1928 she has been her party's national committeewoman, and has carved for herself a reputation as one of Arizona's outstanding Democratic leaders. She is a personal friend of President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Aside from placing an opposing name on the ballot, the Republicans have not campaigned against her—and since the primary she had not campaigned to any extent herself.

Upon the day set for filing of preelection campaign expense accounts, both parties presented to the secretary of State statements setting forth no expenditures.

Sweet Assails Big Navy Plans

Former Governor Opposes Expenditure Increase.

The reported demand of the Navy for expenditure of $96,000,000 a year for 28 years was characterized as absurd yesterday by former Gov. William E. Sweet of Colorado. He predicted the American people "will put a quietus on any such ideas should it reach Congress."

Sweet, now with the NRA, will preside at the Disarmament rally at 3:30 p. m. today in the Belasco theater.

Speakers will include Dr. Mary E. Woolley, American delegate to the Geneva Conference; Rabbi Max Currick, of Erie, Pa., and Mrs. Laura Puffer Morgan, observer at Geneva for peace societies.

Luke Lea Asks Review Of Income Tax Claim

Luke Lea, former Nashville, Tenn., publisher, petitioned the board of tax appeals yesterday for a review of a Government claim against him for $371,695 in back income taxes and penalties, according to the Associated Press.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue assessed a tax deficiency in 1929 of $247,797 and penalties of $123,898.

VanVorhees Clan Plans Celebration

Members Under Modified Names Here Invited.

Long Island descendants of Steven Coerte VanVorhees plan to commemorate the 275th anniversary of the coming of their common ancestor to New Amsterdam, and they want the Capital members of the clan to meet at the Mayflower Tuesday to determine what assistance they can give.

The family name has undergone such a variety of changes that A. B. VanVorhees, Washington representatives of the VanVorhees Association and Mayflower office manager, believes many clan members here are unaware of their ancestry. Dr. Oscar M. Vorhees, a Long Island pastor, president of the association, has found members of the family under the name of Vorhis, Voris, Van Vorheese and VanVoorhouse.

Pay Rolls Here Up $136,036

Washington pay rolls have increased $136,036.26 monthly since July 1, through hiring 2,971 persons by 165 employers, the NRA reported yesterday.

An additional 712 employes is expected to be placed in the next few months. The figures are based on answers to a questionnaire sent to 500 Washington employers, selected at random from Blue Eagle lists.

Raymond J. Walter, major in charge of compiling the figures, will speak over WMAL tomorrow on "Industry Americanized and Humanized."

Improved
HOME DELIVERY Service of The Washington Post
●
IN keeping with its comprehensive program of improvement and progress, The Washington Post announces a new home-delivery service of marked advantage to the subscriber.
The new method of distribution has also effected economies that will be passed on to the subscriber with a new low rate of 15c per week for both daily and Sunday editions, instead of the former rate of 70c per month.
In addition, the weekly calls of The Post Carrier Boy will keep him in intimate touch with his subscribers and enable them to give him personal instructions in regard to his service.
As compared with the cost of papers purchased on the street or from honor racks, the reader will save 8c per week or $4.16 per year by having The Washington Post delivered direct to his door by this new and improved carrier service.
THE POST has also made arrangements for prompt, individual service to subscribers who through accident or other circumstances fail to find their copy of The Washington Post at their door by 7 a. m.
Phone National 4205 and have home delivery of The Washington Post begin tomorrow morning, under this new, more convenient and economical carrier service.

Strumming, Singing, Acting on Capital Airwaves

Radio Waves and Ripples

"We're too good."

That, according to Elder Lightfoot Solomon Michaux, is why Columbia and WJSV couldn't get away with reducing his schedule from seven to two broadcasts a week.

"We" is the elder and his Church of God congregation out Georgia avenue way. WJSV has hundreds of letters protesting cutting their broadcasting time.

"Why? We're sincere, that's why," he said. "We're human, not mechanical. Mechanical things appeal to the intellect, human things to the heart. The heart—love—rules the world.

"You can tell a man there are 7,000 atoms in his eye. But that don't interest him. What interests him is that he sees. You can tell a man there are 7,001 atoms in his eye. He'll believe you. He won't even stop to count them.

"But when you tell a man about the Father who watches over and loves his wayward sons, you are telling him something he understands. It is the nature of man to worship something, and he worships the god he believes will help better than he worships the tyrant god."

Elder Michaux has great faith in the future of radio. He believes its possibilities are unlimited. Not far away, he feels, is the day when the sights and sounds of one of his eye and ear-filling baptismal services will be televisioned over a coast-to-coast network. The first of these services to be radioed was the Elder's.

"Man always has had radio," the Elder continued. His ear has been the receiver, his mouth the transmitter. With these all good and evil has been accomplished.

"As long as a gal talks nice, no man thinks evil. But does she start talking sassy like * * *

"Yeah man!"

White Caps.

From Radio Commissioner James H. Hanely come the latest reports of an upturn in the broadcasting business.

"They are convinced that we are on the verge of a big trade revival," he said, "and are anxious to be prepared to take care of the expected increased demands for radio facilities on the part of manufacturers and distributors."

The commissioner reported little encouragement was given his suggestion that smaller stations pool facilities.

This is "radio progress week." Columbia's contribution will be a series of engineering development demonstrations by Dr. Orestes H. Caldwell, editor of Electronics and former radio commissioner. Tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. will come explanations of weak reception; Wednesday night at 6:45 Dr. Caldwell will return to show how instrumental and vocal presentations are distorted.

N. B. C. turns to symphony and popular songs for signs of progress. A Frank Black orchestra will offer a series of popular melodies tomorrow. Pianist Mischa Levitzki and a symphony Tuesday will outline orchestration development from the early eighteenth century. Both broadcasts start at 4 p. m.

When Col. Frank Knox, Chicago Daily News publisher, presents the Gordon Bennett balloon trophy to Capt. Franciszek Hynek and Lieut. Zbigniew Burzynsky this afternoon at 3:30, N. B. C. will be there with a microphone.

N. B. C.'s Marconi tribute schedule includes the Italian Society dinner in Chicago's Drake Hotel tonight at 10:30. "Marconi Magic," 8 tomorrow night, Marconi addressing the Legion banquet two hours and a half later and a program for King Victor Emmanuel Tuesday at 5 p. m.

Mary Small, child singer, begins a series for N. B. C. Saturday night at 6:30. Mary, 11 years old, was a Vallee guest on the Fleischmann broadcast several weeks ago.

The radiocasters will be on hand for the National Conference of Catholic Charities and the celebration of the Centenary of the St. Vincent de Paul Society today. And they'll hang around until Wednesday to pick up President Roosevelt and Cardinal Hayes at the closing banquet in the Waldorf-Astoria.

N. B. C. lists 13 new programs this week. Starting today, will be Con McCole and Phil Spitalny for Blue Coal at 7 p. m., Jack Benny, Mary Livingstone, and Frank Parker on the Chevrolet show, and a couple of plays.

Ripples.

Bing Crosby, Ethel Barrymore, Morton Downey, Ruth Etting and David Ross are some of the people Columbia will radio during the "Parade of Champions" broadcast Thursday night . . . beginning at 9:15, for an hour . . . the Howe-Trumbull interviews radiate a half hour earlier, starting today . . . 10:30 p. m. . . . The Radio Commission lately received 270 applications for amateur licenses . . . Lulu McConnell cried after making that bridge game broadcast for Columbia's Big Show last week . . . nerves . . . Miners and Pickets Fight in Kentucky

Pistols and Stones Used in Fox Run Battle.

Madisonville, Ky., Sept. 30 (AP).—Several miners were injured in a fight between working miners and union pickets at Fox Run Mine near St. Charles today. Pistols were fired and stones thrown in the melee.

The fight occurred while miners were en route to work. Frank Reeves, a striking miner, was arrested.

The number of injured could not be determined.

$175,628,887 Spent By Nation for Relief

When the Federal Relief Emergency Administration closed its books on September operations last night, it had spent $175,628,885 of the $500,000,000 fund made available by Congress in June.

Grants have been made to all of the States and the District. Detailed statements will be ready early in the week.

Phil Spitalny's recent engagement at the Earle will probably draw thousands of Washington listeners to the dial tonight at 7:00 P. M., WRC, when Spitalny's popular orchestra starts a radio engagement on the 'blue coal' program, sponsored by the Griffith-Consumers Company—distributors for 'blue coal' in Washington and vicinity.

THIS attractive used car value is representative of the opportunities listed every day in The Washington Post. Used cars of every popular make are to be found in these listings . . . the outstanding buys of reliable Washington dealers. Many of the cars are in new-car condition—all are to be depended upon to give satisfactory performance and maximum return for money spent.

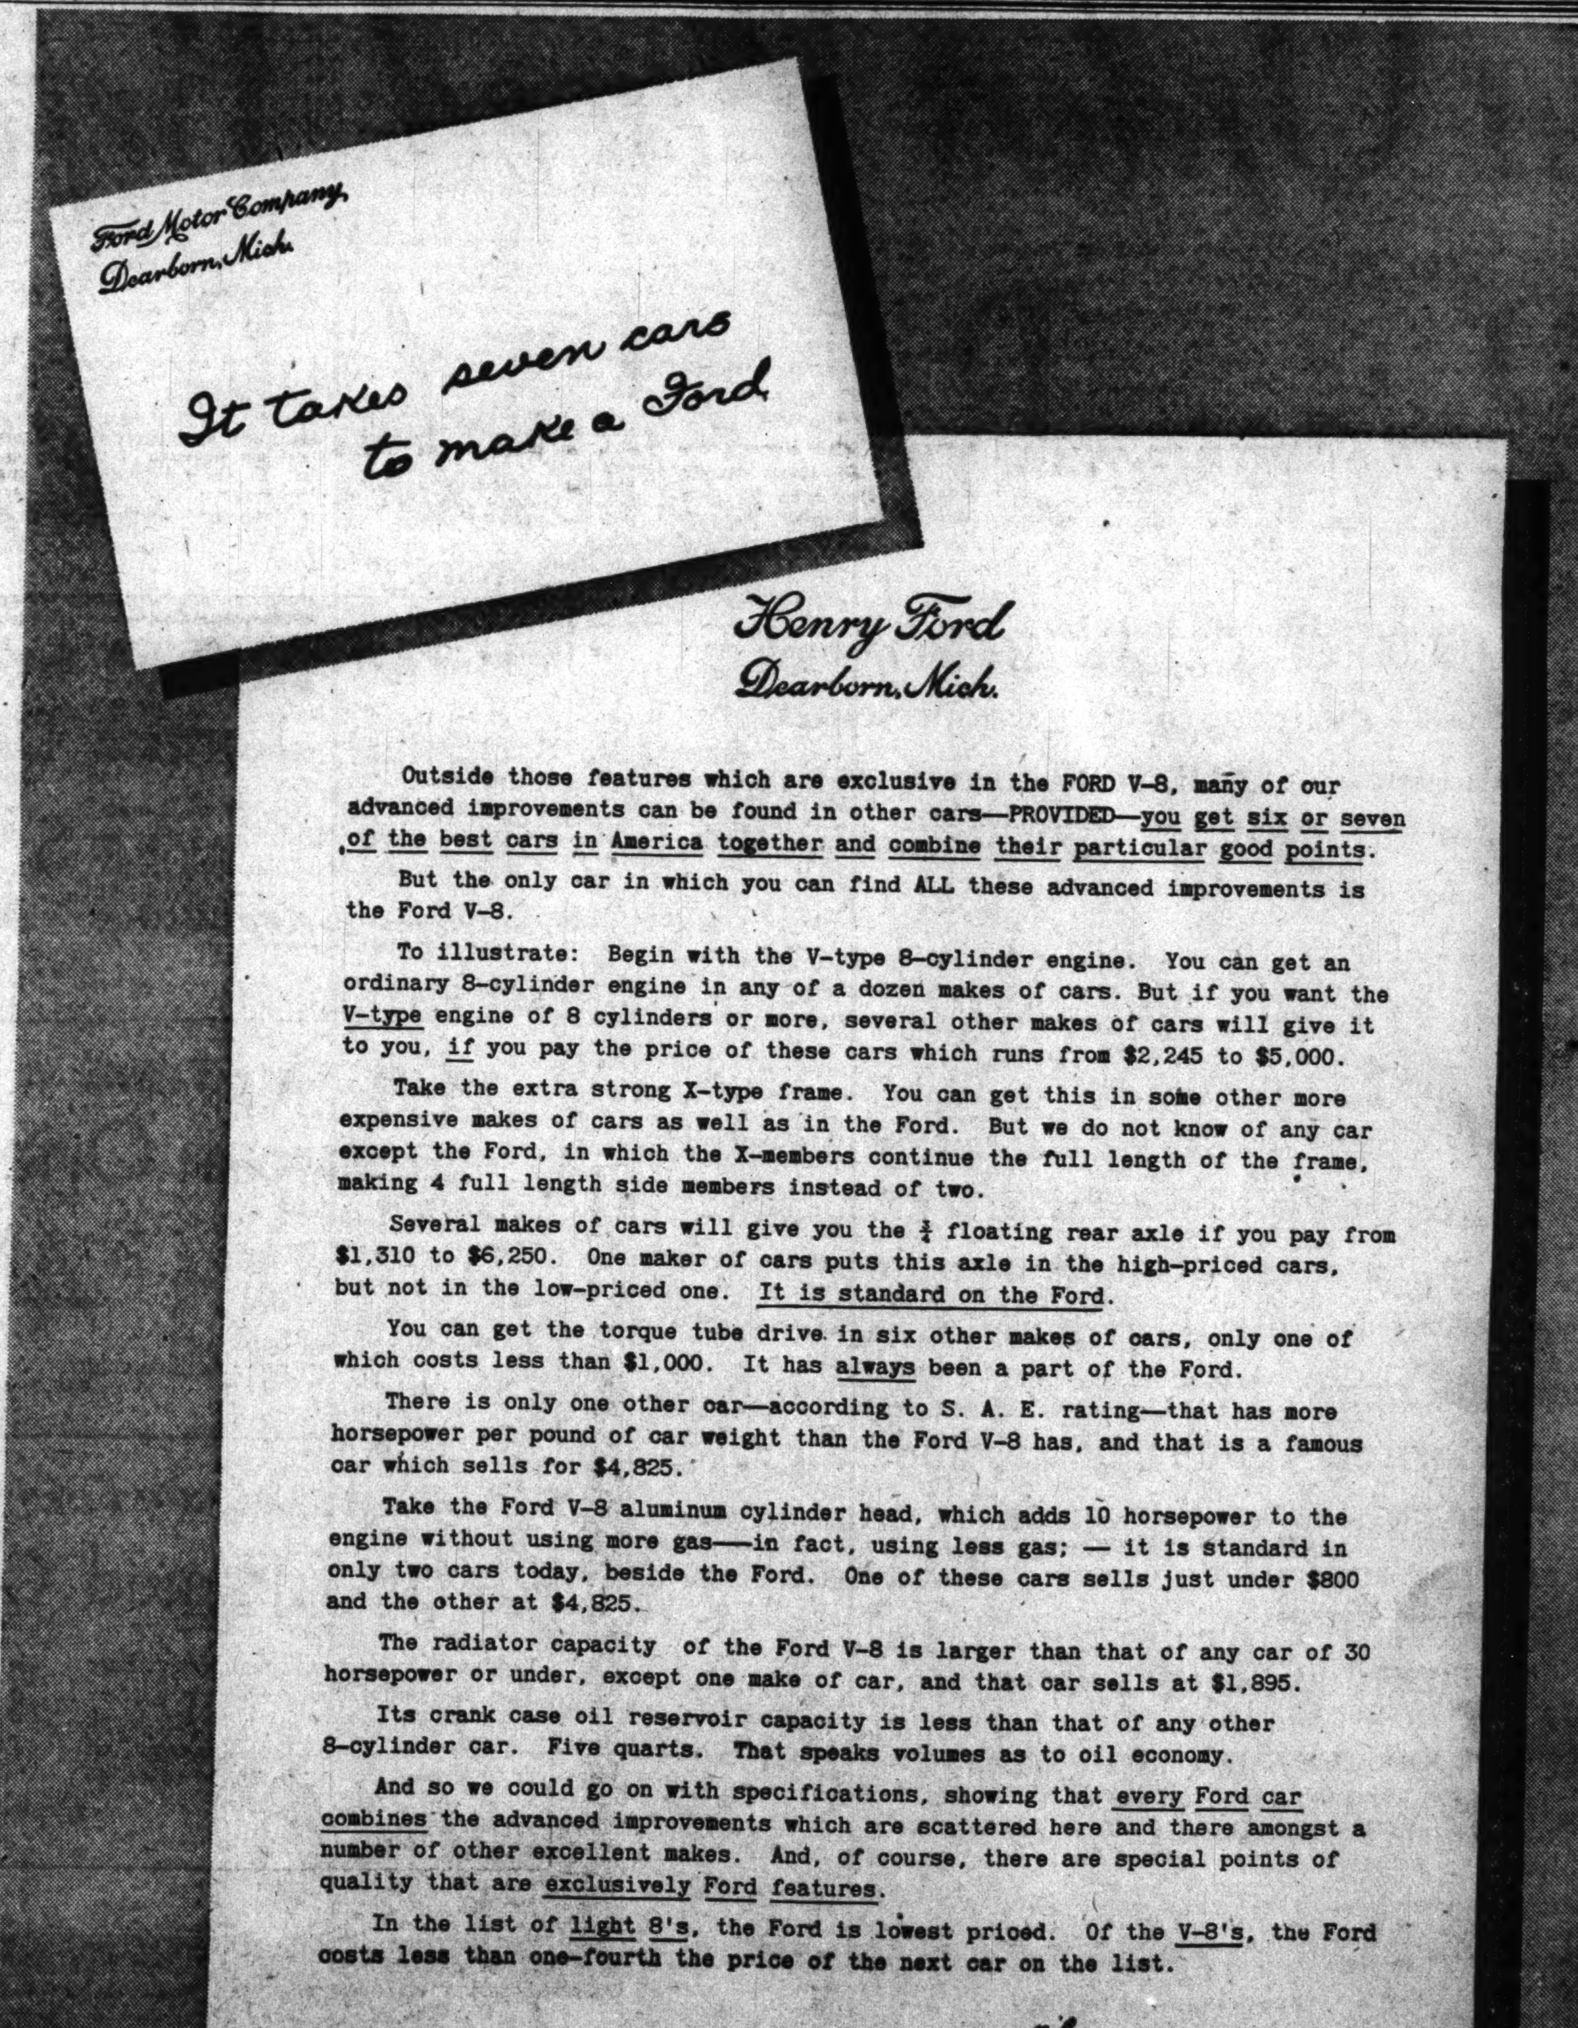
CLASSIFIED COLUMNS of The Washington Post



Ford Motor Company,

It takes seven cars to make a Ford

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

Outside those features which are exclusive in the FORD V-8, many of our advanced improvements can be found in other cars—PROVIDED—you get six or seven of the best cars in America together and combine their particular good points.

But the only car in which you can find ALL these advanced improvements is the Ford V-8.

To illustrate: Begin with the V-type 8-cylinder engine. You can get an ordinary 8-cylinder engine in any of a dozen makes of cars. But if you want the V-type engine of 8 cylinders or more, several other makes of cars will give it to you, if you pay the price of these cars which runs from $2,245 to $5,000.

Take the extra strong X-type frame. You can get this in some other more expensive makes of cars as well as in the Ford. But we do not know of any car except the Ford, in which the X-members continue the full length of the frame, making 4 full length side members instead of two.

Several makes of cars will give you the ¾ floating rear axle if you pay from $1,310 to $6,250. One maker of cars puts this axle in the high-priced cars, but not in the low-priced one. It is standard on the Ford.

You can get the torque tube drive in six other makes of cars, only one of which costs less than $1,000. It has always been a part of the Ford.

There is only one other car—according to S. A. E. rating—that has more horsepower per pound of car weight than the Ford V-8 has, and that is a famous car which sells for $4,825.

Take the Ford V-8 aluminum cylinder head, which adds 10 horsepower to the engine without using more gas——in fact, using less gas; — it is standard in only two cars today, beside the Ford. One of these cars sells just under $800 and the other at $4,825.

The radiator capacity of the Ford V-8 is larger than that of any car of 30 horsepower or under, except one make of car, and that car sells at $1,895.

Its crank case oil reservoir capacity is less than that of any other 8-cylinder car. Five quarts. That speaks volumes as to oil economy.

And so we could go on with specifications, showing that every Ford car combines the advanced improvements which are scattered here and there amongst a number of other excellent makes. And, of course, there are special points of quality that are exclusively Ford features.

In the list of light 8's, the Ford is lowest priced. Of the V-8's, the Ford costs less than one-fourth the price of the next car on the list.

The Story of the Game

By Shirley L. Povich.

Sports Editor of The Post, veteran of the road trips and the training camps, eye witness and reporter of the 50 world series battles since 1923. His lead stories on major sports events are known for the punch they pack. His pre-game and post-game comments will be authoritative, complete and entertainingly presented. Povich will head the impressive corps of Post staff writers who will cover the series.

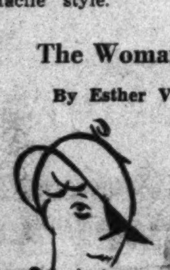
The Story of the Crowds

By Frank Getty.

Formerly sports editor of the United Press and now a writer of The Post's staff. Getty will bring a circumspect background into his stories of the crowds and the color. Trained in the treatment of the picture stories, he will be on the scene both at the Polo Grounds and Griffith Stadium, reporting the reactions of the thousands packed tier-on-tier in the stands, covering the dignitaries and the bleacherites with the same facile style.

The Woman's Angle

By Esther Van Sciver.



Chief of the woman's department of The Post, who will be specializing on the feminine interest. What they do, what they wear, what they see and how they react. Miss Van Sciver, trained feature writer and news reporter, will interpret the world series for the fair fans.

The Story of the Players

By Frank H. Young.

Eleven years a baseball writer of The Post staff, confidante of Donie Bush Bucky Harris, Walter Johnson and Joe Cronin. Young will be on the scene in the dressing rooms, before and after the game, bringing you the inner emotions of the ball players in victory and defeat. Telling you the locker-room stories and reporting the progress of the series from the managerial viewpoints, accurately and with authority.

G.W. Winner, 27-0, Over Catawba

7,000 See Colonial Team Make 20 First Downs as Leemans Stars.

Carolinians Are Helpless Before Defense of Big Local Line.

A BIG and rangy band of Texas cowpunchers from the plains of G street and sporting the colors of George Washington University, successfully opened their football season yesterday at Central High School Stadium, turning back Catawba College, 27-0, before a crowd that trickled over the 7,000 figure.

The attendance shattered all opening game records for G. W., and the score was identical with that of last year's game between the schools which the District eleven also won. A sweltering sun, suited for anything but football, added to the misery of the losers and the discomfort of the victors.

Completely Outclassed.

Although George Washington's play at times was ragged to the extreme, Catawba was completely outclassed. It was plainly evident that the North Carolinians sorely missed Dan Witmer, their ailing quarterback. Catawba made no scoring gestures, neither did it win a first down. George Washington amassed 20 first downs. The visitors' widely publicized unorthodox style of play was missing, too. They conducted themselves exactly as any other team would have under the circumstances.

Don Bomba's bone-crushing line plunges kept the ball moving toward Catawba's goal line in the first period. Stout resistance was offered by Voniewsky, Nash and Reid, the center trio of the opposing wall, and it was principally because of their work that G. W.'s first drive collapsed on the 3-yard line.

Leemans Is Here.

"Tuffy" Leemans, swivel-hipped, second string half back, garnered the lion's share of honors with his clever broken-field running. Leemans, together with Davenport, Plotnicki and Walsh, all supposedly second stringers, outshone the starting ball carriers. Davenport scored on a pass from Leemans, galloping 10 yards to the goal, and Walsh added another touchdown with a plunge from the 3-yard line.

Bomba, on a short line plunge, scored the initial touchdown of the game following an exchange of kicks early in the third period. "Nig" McCarver scampered 21 yards through a broken field for the second, after his pass to Bill Parrish had placed the ball deep in Catawba's territory.

Shibe's Boat Sets Record, Forced Out

Mishap to Ethyl-Ruth III Aids Reis Craft to Win Second Heat.

GEORGE REIS' Gold Cup champion, El Lagarto, won the President's Cup race yesterday by grace of power, skillful driving and the mechanical failure of the record-breaking Ethyl-Ruth III, which earlier in the day had established itself as a favorite. The Delphine VII was second in the scoring and the Imp, only other boat to complete in the final heat, third.

Going into the final heat, the El Lagarto, winner of the first two runs, needed only to finish in the three boat finale to clinch the race by two points. The Delphine VII might have won with a second or better had the El Lagarto not finished.

Horace Dodge, driving the Delphine VII, mistook the one minute warning gun for the starting signal and was half a lap around the course when the other two finalists accepted the starting gun and commenced a slow, uninteresting run. The Delphine VII was first considered as having started on her second time past the line, and was waved by the official flag into seven laps instead of the scheduled six.

Dodge Files Protest.

On the sixth lap the Delphine VII was almost a lap ahead of the other two boats. The Imp, which had led the El Lagarto until the fifth lap, had been passed by the Gold Cup Champion, which was second. Dodge completed the seventh lap, and was first awarded last place in the final heat, but he filed immediate protest, claiming that he had not been notified about the one minute starting signal, which he says is not used on other race courses. His start was further confused by the firing the five-minute gun six minutes ahead of race time.

At a meeting of the committee last night, Dodge's protest was sustained and he was awarded first place in the final heat, which gave him a total of 1,122 points towards the trophy, which Reis won with 1,161.

The El Lagarto, President's Cup holder in 1931, averaged 50.962 m.p.h. in this heat and a 45-mile average of 53.766 for the entire contest. The Imp's race average was 48.933 and the Delphine VII's 52.251.

Tricky Catholic U. Offensive Overpowers La Salle Eleven

13-Year-Old Girl Wins Georgia Golf Crown

Atlanta, Sept. 30 (AP).—Dorothy Kirby, 13-year-old Atlanta schoolgirl, today sprang a major upset by defeating the veteran titleholder, Miss Margaret Maddox, also of Atlanta, to win the Georgia women's golf championship. She won 2 up.

Miss Kirby had a medal card of 82 against 88 for Miss Maddox. She is the youngest champion in the history of the tournament and probably the youngest State champion in the country.

C. U. Tramples La Salle by 37-6 Score

Gearty Gallops 72 Yards to Touchdown; Long Pass Nets Foes Goal.

The Philadelphians, coached by the famous blocking star of Notre Dame several years ago, Marty Brill, put up a gallant fight, but the flock out Brookland way had the goods, both on the defense and offense. Running plays, especially designed to meet the apparent weak flanks, were frustrated with little or no gain; the forward passing attack, which the visitors were supposed to possess, was completely broken up. Only once did an Explorer heave brighten up the afternoon for Philly cohorts, and that was when Mark Knox let go a 50-yard throw to Capt. Ray Bahr, who galloped 30-odd yards for a touchdown.

After a steady march down the field at the start of the rumpus, which was thwarted in the shadows of the south goal line, the Catholics once more took the ball in midfield. On the opening down, Tom Gearty let one fly through the air to Red Fleming, good for 35 stripes.

Georgetown's Rally Beats Mounts

Hoyas Score All Points in Final Quarter to Triumph, 18-0.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY'S football team awoke late in the fourth quarter of a dragging game yesterday and scored a neat victory over Mount St. Mary's. The locale was Western High School's stadium and the score 18—0.

It seemed for more than three-quarters of the game that Coach Jack Haggerty's squad had indeed been de-emphasized. Of course, the fact that Mount St. Mary's had returned 10 goodly sized lettermen for another season of campaigning did not help the Georgetown cause to any extent.

But in the second half Georgetown gave every promise of coming into its own. Starting with the kick-off in the second half, Georgetown was soon knocking at the door through a sustained attack which fell short by three-quarters of a yard. Mount St. Mary's Mr. Hopkins kicked out 35 yards to Savarine, who returned 5, and Georgetown again was standing at the portals to fail once more, this time by a scant 3 yards just as the quarter ended.

Mount St. Mary's tried two running plays, and then came the break which started the Emmitsburg team on the downgrade. The Mounts kicked out 40 yards to Kennedy, substitute for Savarine.

Kennedy appeared to be well covered. But he sidestepped two well-meaning tacklers, skipped over to the side line and traveled serenely to Georgetown's first score under the Haggerty regime. Stanley's kick for extra point was blocked.

Parcells Makes Score.

A toss, Kennedy to Parcells, was good for 25 years, and Bradley made it first down on Mount St. Mary's 6-yard line. From there Parcells broke through for the second touchdown. Stanley's kick was low.

An intercepted pass tossed by the Mounts led to the third touchdown. Capt. Callahan snagged it and returned it 15 yards to Mount St.

Weaver Is Out As Pitcher in Opener

Cronin Says He Will Use Whitehill, Crowder or Stewart.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP).—The odds began to shorten today on the Washington Nationals, world series favorites, with the start of baseball's biggest show less than three days off, public support rallying for the Giants along Broadway and the barriers being let down to give old John J. Fan a better "break" at the box offices.

Joe Cronin's definite statement today that his pitchers for the opening game have now narrowed down to three possibilities—Wally Stewart, Al Crowder and Earl Whitehill—failed to strike any further fears into the camp of the New Yorkers, who have watched all three belted somewhat briskly at the Yankee Stadium within the last two days.

Giants' Spirits Rise.

The suspicion that the Washington hurling staff is either tired or, for other reasons, not exactly "on edge" has further strengthened the prospects for a close, hard-fought series. This development, plus the extraordinary faith placed in the ability of Carl Hubbell to southpaw the Nats into subjection in the opening game or at any other time he pitches, has boosted the home team's spirits.

The Nats, 8-to-5 choices for the past week, probably will be no better than 6 to 5 when the series

Record Is Set By Six Twin Killings

Brilliant Fielding Helps Weaver Blank Yanks in 6-Inning Shift.

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Sept. 30 (Spl.).—The Nats, new champions of the American League, continued to use the once mighty Yankees for world series practice today and apparently the Nats were practicing mostly on double plays.

Moving around the infield with the grace and smoothness of gazelles on ball-bearing roller skates, the Washington infield turned in half a dozen double plays, tying the major league record and breaking the American League mark.

Experience No Trouble.

In the process the Nats had no trouble beating the Yankees, 7 to 2, finishing their season's series with a margin of 14 victories and 8 defeats against the world's champions of 1932.

Monte Weaver, who pitched the first six sessions, didn't need all that help from his infielders, for he allowed the celebrated Yankee sluggers only three hits. Thomas, who hurled the last three innings, wasn't quite so effective and allowed five, including Babe Ruth's thirty-third home run of the season.

Nats Get Nine Hits.

Meanwhile, the Nats made nine safe blows off the veteran itinerant, George Uhle, and the bespectacled Bostonese, Danny MacFayden. Four runs were gained off Uhle in the first frame by miscellaneous means. Briefly, Myer walked, Goslin was safe on an error by Farrell, Manush singled, Cronin walked, Crozetti made a wild heave of Kuhel's grounder and Bluege single. Everybody batted before the inning ended and thereafter nothing was very important except the matter of how many double plays the Nats would turn in.

Goslin and Manush were the only two Washington players who put in a full day's work, all the others giving way to their understudies in the sixth or seventh innings. The Yankees couldn't get anywhere at all against the regulars and nowhere of importnace against the reserves, though they saved themselves from a shut-out after the second-stringers took over the not very difficult task of protecting a seven-run lead.

Uhle's First Defeat.

This was the only defeat suffered by Uhle since he joined the Yankees. He has won five.

Buddy Myer received credit for two triples, but one of them was a gift from Babe Ruth, who had the ball in both hands but didn't hold it.

The clearest summation of the coming series so far was offered by a fan who said: "All the Giants have is a screwball pitcher, one .300 hitter and a telegram."

Equipoise Second as Osculator Breaks Record for Havre de Grace Handicap

Whitney Star Beaten by Length

Winner Always Leads; Is Third Victor of Day for Meade.

HAVRE de Grace Race Track, Md., Sept. 30 (AP).—C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, champion of American thoroughbreds, closed his glamorous racing career a fighting runner-up in the $10,000 added Havre de Grace Handicap, feature of the final program of the Harford Association's fall meeting here this afternoon.

But the gallant son of Pennant and Swinging can retire to the lush pastures of his owner's Brookdale Farm with his head unbowed, for W. R. Coe's Osculator, which won the $8,325 prize, had to shatter the stake record which had stood for 15 years.

Osculator, leading all the way, blazed over the mile and a furlong in 1:49 4-5, one-fifth of a second faster than the old mark jointly established by Cudgel and Crusader. The Coe colt, was a rank outsider in the field, paying $40.40 straight, $12.20 to place and $6.20 to show.

Mate Finishes Third.

A. C. Bostwick's Mate, one of Equipoise's chief rivals since their 2-year-old season, was third, and the Wheatley Stable's Dark Secret, which handed Equipoise his first defeat ot the year in the Belmont Gold Cup recently, fourth in the field of nine.

Jockey Don Meade, hero of the 1933 Kentucky Derby, rode his third winner of the day on Osculator and thereby clinched his hold on the $500 Burke gold watch, to be presented to the leading jockey at the meeting. Osculator was Meade's twenty-first winner here.

Osculator ran truly and well. He carried a feathery impost of 104 pounds, 28 less than Equipoise. Meade shot him to the front in the run to the first turn, rated him cleverly in the van through the middle reaches, saving every inch of ground next to the rail. When straightened out in the front stretch the Coe colt had enough left to hold a length advantage at the end.

Equipoise Escaped Spill.

Meanwhile, Equipoise, more docile than usual at the post, got away well, but his lack of early speed got him into close quarters next to the rail. Disaster was averted early when, just passing the stand for the first time, Watch Him, racing lapped on the Whitney star, stumbled and went to his knees before recovering.

Equipoise escaped, luckily, and Workman jammed him up on the inner rail. He was fourth at the half-mile pole and a quarter of a mile from home was rattling at Osculator's heels. Straightened out in the front stretch, Workman went to the whip. Two cuts and Equipoise spurted briefly. Then two more cuts, but this time Osculator had his advantage. Workman was hand riding powerfully through the final sixteenth, but the 22,000 straining fans could see that the Brookdale star would never overhaul the flying Coe colt.

Mate's Race Creditable.

Mate turned in creditable performance. He pressed Osculator's pace most of the way and held on well under a drive. Dark Secret was within striking distance all the way and had no excuses.

Winooka, champion Australian race horse, breezed through the front stretch before the running of the feature. A great strapping animal, the speedster from "down under" drew a wild ovation from the huge crowd.

As he galloped along under heavy wraps from Edgar Britt, Australian jockey, the amplifiers announced a challenge from Messrs McDonald and Matthews, his owners, to match the Australian horse against any horse in America, "preferably Equipoise."

"Winooka's challenge is dedicated to Australian breeding," continued the challenge. "We are willing to meet any American horse at six or seven furlongs during the month of October."

Aurora Four Captures U. S. Open Polo Title

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Aurora, with Elmer Boeseke, jr., riding wild, today won the United States open polo championship, defeating John Hay Whitney's Greentree four, 14-11, in a spectacularly contested final to the 1933 tournament.

Boeske, playing back for Aurora, rode through to score seven.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—KINDACORN, $7.20, $4.40, $3.20; FLUFFY LEE, $5.20, $3.80; LONE HAND, $4.80.

KINDACORN, taken under early restraint, moved to the leaders readily when shaken up, assumed command in the closing furlong and came out nicely. FLUFFY LEE, prominent from the start, raced WESTY'S LAD into defeat, but faltered after gaining a brief lead. LONE HAND weakened after a bold effort when straightened into the home stretch. ARAB showed a good effort. JIMMY D had no excuses. WESTY'S LAD tired gradually.

SECOND RACE—Five and a half furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 2:54. Off at 2:55½. Winner, E. K. Bryson's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—PHARATIME, $14.40, $5.00, $4.40; FORTIFICATION, $3.00, $2.80; BIFF, $8.20.

PHARATIME worked his way up fast after the opening furlong, swung to the outside of the leaders and, closing fast, was up in the last sixteenth. FORTIFICATION, hard hustled from the start, raced DUSTINA and SLIPPER KING into defeat, but weakened in the final drive. BIFF, prominent from the start, fought it out with good courage. KING'S MINSTREL raced clear all the way and finished gamely. SLIPPER KING tired during the stretch drive. CHATTERDOO had a rough trip. DUSTINA weakened. WISE WAYS had brief early speed.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:25. Off at 3:30½. Winner, C. C. Smithson's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GENERAL LEJEUNE, $8.40, $4.80, $3.20; BLACK TARGET, $7.40, $5.40; VESTED POWER, $5.20.

GENERAL LEJEUNE, working his way into contention between his field, came around THE GEN to take command when straightened into the home stretch and just lasted to stall off BLACK TARGET. Latter, hard ridden from the beginning, came again after suffering interference and dropping back at the turn. VESTED POWER finished full of run on his own courage. THE GEN, rushed hard to assume command, had nothing left when the final drive came. PRINCE TOKALON closed with a tremendous rush on the outside. PRINCE ABBOT raced well. BARASHKOVA showed a good effort. PRINCESS PEROXIDE had early foot. The others were outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; the Washington Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:59. Off at 4:01. Winner, A. L. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHARACTER, $5.80, $3.00, $2.10; FLYING HOUR, $4.20, $2.20; PAIRBYPAIR, $2.20.

CHARACTER, having much speed and a rapid early pace, came over on FLYING HOUR when moving to the front at the stretch turn and, continuing stoutly, was under punishment to draw out slowly at the end. FLYING HOUR, hustled into a brief lead, showed good speed and held on well after being crowded. PAIRBYPAIR was hard ridden the entire trip and closed gamely. FINGAL, slow to get going, finished full of run. PRINCE WICK was overmatched, but had nice speed in the early stages.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $10,000; the Havre de Grace Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:39. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OSCULATOR, $40.40, $12.20, $6.20; EQUIPOISE, $4.60, $4.20; MATE, $13.20.

OSCULATOR, taking command going to the first turn, was steadied along until reaching the final elbow; was shaken up stoutly when straightened into the home stretch and held EQUIPOISE safe. Latter, on the inside of DARK SECRET and within striking distance of the leaders, was placed to punishment at the final furlong pole, but was unable to seriously menace the winner. MATE, going strongly and forcing a good pace, continued stoutly for the closing drive. DARK SECRET was strongly handled the entire trip and had no excuses. TAMBOUR could not better her position when hard driven. WATCH HIM stumbled and almost fell directly in front of the judge's stand. He recovered nicely, but was not good enough. SUN ARCHER was squeezed back going to the first turn when WATCH HIM stumbled. DARK HOPE stopped.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:09½. Off at 5:10½. Winner, Mrs. R. T. Flippen's br. h. (5), by Hourless—Viola Guild. Trained by T. Flippen. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 2-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:15, 1:40 3-5, 1:53 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HILLSBOROUGH, $7.60, $3.60, $2.80; STONE MARTIN, $3.40, $2.60; TUFFY G, $2.80.

HILLSBOROUGH, following close to BRIGHT BIRD early, responded strongly for the final drive; luckily secured racing room next the inner rail when straightened into the home stretch and outlasted STONE MARTIN in the closing stages. STONE MARTIN, rated close up, took a brief lead at the final furlong pole, but could not resist the winner. TUFFY G, as usual slow to get going, finished with a belated rush.

SEVENTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good (from gate). Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:40. Off at 5:48. Winner, Starmount Stable's ch. f. (3), by Wildair—La Religie. Trained by J. M. Milburn. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48 1-5, 1:13 4-5, 1:40 2-5, 1:44 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SOUER BLANCHE, $4.60, $3.20, $2.60; THE DOCTOR, $6.40, $3.60; IRISH MAIDEN, $3.40.

SOUER BLANCHE, given a mild breathing spell when reaching the final turn, came stoutly in the last quarter mile and, wearing THE DOCTOR down, was slowly moving clear. THE DOCTOR, going in his best form, shook off GRACE BUNTING and held on well when challenged. IRISH MAIDEN came with good courage in the last stages.

King's Colt, Limelight, Takes Duke of York

Kempton, Park, England, Sept. 30 (AP).—King George's 4-year-old colt, Limelight, today shouldered top weight of 133 pounds and justified his favorite's role by galloping to a length and a half victory over 1½ miles in the Duke of York Handicap. He paid 4 to 1.

W. H. Yeatman-Biggs' Shrewton was second, and A. Barlay's Celadon third, another length and a half back. Sixteen ran.

Ball Slides Down Pole.

L. V. Hitchman, Seattle golfer, playing the Rainier course, struck the very top of the flagpole with a 25-yard approach but made a par 5 when the ball slid down the pole like a sailor down a rope and plopped into the hole.

The NEW YORKER is "HOME" to the CHAMPIONS

STOP WHERE THE SENATORS STAY
WHEN YOU COME TO SEE THE SENATORS PLAY

WHEN the pennant-winning Washington team meets the Terrymen on their own grounds, their stopping place will be the New Yorker. They're shrewd, these Senators! They know all the good hotels, and they certainly know New York's best!

So if you're traveling up to Manhattan to root for your home team when they face the Giants, take a tip from the wisest players in the league and make the New Yorker your headquarters.

No matter how you come from Washington—what route you take—the New Yorker is convenient. Just a block from Pennsylvania Station. And close to all the transportation that leads to the Polo Grounds.

You'll be near all the stores and theatres, too. Handy to the sightseeing spots. With four popular-priced restaurants, and your choice of the twinkling dance music of Barney Rapp and his orchestra, or the soothing meal-time melodies of George Scherban and his Russian Gypsies.

'We're Ready For Series,' Says Cronin; Nats in Finale Against A's Here Today

Prim to Hurl Schedule's Last Tilt

Civic Bodies to Present Trophy to Team and Honor Players.

"WE'RE ready. I wish the series was starting tomorrow."

That is what Joe Cronin had to say last night as he led his Nats into the Capital from New York, where they had just mopped up the last two games of the series with the Yankees after a four-game losing streak.

Today his Washington ball team, with Rookie Pitcher Ray Prim in the box, meets the Athletics in the grand finale of the American League season. The lone importance attached to the game is its bearing on the season's series between the two clubs. If the Athletics win today, they will be the only club over which Washington can not show a margin for the season.

Testimonial Planned.

Prim is slated to pitch the entire game, which will be preceded by a testimonial arranged by District civic bodies, which will present a silver trophy to the team, and individual miniature gold baseballs to the players.

Cronin was highly enthused as he detrained last night, flushed with the success of the team in New York, where they batted at a high rate and fielded sensationally.

"They're hitting the ball again," said Cronin. "They pounded the Yankee pitching in all three games. Those long batting drills we held in Washington during those three off-days put us back in our stride. I wish the series was starting tomorrow.

"They're in great fielding form, too. Those six double plays they made today shows that. We're full of fight and playing the way I want the club to play. I couldn't ask any better spirit or playing form on the eve of the world series. It looks as if we're all set right now.

"We'll be practicing at the Polo Grounds on Monday, getting the range of the fences, and those angles in the outfield. The balls take funny bounces off those short fences and our outfielders will be familiarizing themselves with all of that. We'll be using the National League ball all day Monday."

Hurlers Stay in New York.

The big four of Cronin's pitching staff—Crowder, Weaver, Whitehill and Stewart—remained in New York until the Nats return tonight immediately after the game.

Cronin is still shrouding in mystery the identity of the pitcher who will start the first game on Tuesday against Hubbell, the announced selection of Manager Terry, of the Giants. Known as a confirmed baseball gambler, Cronin will surprise none if he changes from his logical first-game selection, Crowder, acknowledged to be the best money pitcher on the team.

Bisons Beat Red Birds In Fifth Contest, 7 to 3

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 30 (U.P.).—The Buffalo Bisons pounded four Columbus pitchers for 10 hits tonight to defeat the Columbus Red Birds, 7 to 3, in the fifth game of the little world series.

Peterson to Louisville; Marcum Now Athletics'

Philadelphia, Sept. 30 (AP).—Pitcher Jim Peterson was released by the Philadelphia Athletics today to the Louisville Club of the American Association, in completion of the deal by which Pitcher Johnny Marcum came to the Athletics.

Louisville, given the pick of three players, chose Peterson over Tony Freitas and Bobby Coombs. Peterson is a former University of Pennsylvania star.

Tigers Bunch Four Hits And Beat Tribe, 3-0

Detroit, Sept. 30 (AP).—After Gordon Lee held them hitless for seven innings, the Detroit Tigers bunched four hits in the eighth for three runs and a 3-to-0 victory over Cleveland here today. Davis, Hayworth, Rogell and Fox hit in succession to bring in the tallies.

(Herewith is another of a series dealing with the respective players of the Nats and Giants.)

STRICTLY from a statistical viewpoint, the Giants will have a right-field edge over the Nats in the coming world series in the battle between Goose Goslin and Mel Ott. Figures, however, have been known to lie, for they fail to take into consideration such factors as ability to come through in the pinches—and that's where the Goose has shone in the past.

True, the Giants' surprise win of the National League flag might be called a pinch as applied to Ott, and no one cay say that he was unequal to the test. While hitting less than .290, his drives propelled more than 100 runs over the plate. Twenty-three of them were good for the circuit, this total being more than twice the size of Goslin's.

Goslin Has Passed Test.

The Goose, however, has been tried and not found wanting. In both the 1924 and the 1925 series, he poled out three circuit clouts, while his respective stick averages were .344 and .308. Ott, on the other hand, will be playing in his first world series and so is facing his first acid test of this kind. He may be at home in the New York park and must be listed as a real threat at bat, but he probably will find that it will be much harder to get round-trippers in the Nats' big stadium.

Ott, who started as a catcher with the Giants when only 16 years old, has developed into a first-class flyhawk—better than Goslin. The difference, however, is not great, and it will be at the plate where these two put up their real battle.

Dave Harris and Frank O'Doul are alternates for this position, and both pack dynamite in their bats. Harris has proven most handy when southpaws are facing the Nats and probably will get several chances in the coming series. Neither player may be rated on his present league average, as both have proven their mettle in the past. O'Doul led the National League in 1929, with a luscious .398, and again last season, when he traveled at a .368 gait. Harris' forte has been as a pinch-hitter.

No matter which one of these is used by either manager, no one need worry, but that right-field will be properly patrolled and that its representatives at the plate will be heard from.

Davis' 2 Homers Let Phils Beat Braves, 2-1

Boston, Sept. 30 (AP).—Virgil Davis, clouting catcher, connected for two homers today to give the Philadelphia Nationals a 2-to-1 victory over the Braves in a ten-inning tilt.

Post's Baseball Contest Ends; Thousands Enter

HUNDREDS of last-minute entries swelled the total number of contestants in the popular Post World Series contest. A score of trained checkers are now busy separating and tabulating the blanks so that everything will be in readiness to determine the winner.

Careful record has been kept of the time of receipt of every entry, and each day's harvest will be separated into 100 divisions, which can be quickly checked against the result of the initial world championship game between the Nats and Giants. It is expected that the lucky winners will be determined within a few hours after the game is finished.

Another record-breaking batch of entries is expected this morning, but all such will be carefully checked to see that they are postmarked before last midnight, the deadline for the contest. Any postmarked after that hour are null and void under the rules.

White Allays Nat Fear of Hubbell

Feels Rule of Screw-Ball Will Wane as Enemy Gets Used to It.

WELL qualified to comment concerning the world series, particularly concerning pitchers, is G. Harris (Doc) White, former athletic director of the Washington high schools, who is the same "Doc" White who pitched the "Hitless Wonder" Chicago White Sox into the pennant in 1906, and helped them to beat the Cubs in the world series of that year.

"I have never seen Hubbell pitch, and haven't kept in close enough contact with the game since leaving it to make my opinions authoritative," says White, who in his big league days performed on the same team with Big Ed Walsh and against the famed Tinkers-Evers-Chance combination, "but from what I read, his 'screw ball' must be very much like Christy Mathewson's 'fadeaway'—in reverse.

Broke Low and Inside.

"Christy, as you know, was a right-hander, and his 'fadeaway' broke low and to the inside of a right-hander. As I understand it, Hubbell's 'screw ball,' delivered from the left hand, breaks low and to the inside of a southpaw.

"While I was with the old Philadelphia Nationals, we found out one thing about Mathewson's 'fadeaway'—it had to leave his hand about waist-high to be most effective. Thrown higher than that, it didn't work so well. Leaving the hand at waist height, it broke into a 'ball' at the plate—not a strike. After we found that out and learned to wait for the waist-high ones to sink below the knees, we had much less trouble with Mathewson's delivery, as we could usually hit the ones that were released high enough to be called strikes over the plate."

"Any pitched ball can be slapped for a hit, if it is connected with properly," he opines. "Hubbell's pitching may worry the Nats for one game, but as the series progresses, and they become more familiar with his delivery, his effectiveness will be lessened."

Started Career in '01.

White, who is now athletic director at Wilson Teachers College, started his big league career in 1901 with the Philadelphia Nationals. Following the rift in the National League, he joined the American League's White Sox in 1903, and remained with Chicago until 1914, when he retired. He has pitched in three world series games, in two of which he went the distance and in one of which he finished for a moundsman who had been knocked out of the box. His series record credits him with two wins and one loss. He also is a former Georgetown University mound ace.

White set an all-time record in 1907 by pitching 55 consecutive innings without issuing a pass. That same year he pitched a 17-inning 1-to-1 game against Washington, allowing only 6 hits. Against him Walter Johnson worked 7 innings. Burns relieved Johnson and went to the eleventh, when he was relieved by Hughes. The White Sox got 13 hits off the combined pitching strength of the Washington team, but couldn't win the game.

Ruth Foresees Nats Victors In Series

"They've Got the Power," He Declares, Fearing Hubbell, However.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP).—Babe Ruth stuffed a wad of tickets for the world series games into his pocket today, shook hands with one and all at the business offices of the New York Giants, and then proceeded to pick the Washington Nationals to win the baseball championship battle.

"They have got the power," said the Babe, referring to the American League standard bearers. "Maybe not so much as the Yankees had last year, but enough to worry the Giants and give them the edge. They are strong defensively, too, those Nats. We found that out.

"But I do not underestimate the Giants, and the fact they have a great pitcher in Carl Hubbell. If he beats the Nats often enough, the Giants can win. If he loses that opening game, it will be just too bad, but I wouldn't be surprised to see the series go six or seven games."

Recalling his own days as a world series pitching hero, the Babe was asked about his intention to take the mound against the Red Sox tomorrow at the Yankee Stadium in the closing game of the season.

"Yes, I'm going to start in the box," said Ruth, "but I'm not a pitcher now, I'm just a thrower, and I don't know how long I can last."

Mackmen Lose Pair To Red Sox, 2-1, 12-1

Philadelphia, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Boston Red Sox gave the Philadelphia Athletics a double defeat today, winning the first game, 2 to 1, and the second, 12 to 1. The doubleheader closed the American League season here.

Giants Defeat Dodgers, 4-2, in Fast Contest

Brooklyn, Sept. 30 (AP).—The New York Giants gave a demonstration of the kind of baseball that won them the National League championship today as they defeated the Dodgers, 4 to 2.

They got only eight hits off Van Lingle Mungo while Brooklyn nicked Fred Fitzsimmons for nine. But the Giants coupled their blows effectively with Mungo's bursts of wildness while big Fitz was untouchable in the pinches. The Giants also turned in several sparkling defensive plays.

Alert Navy Gridmen Avenge '32 Defeat, Whipping Strong W. & M. Eleven, 12-0

Middies Use Two Teams In Attack

Walkup Dives Through Center in 2d Period for First Score.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 30 (Spl).—Playing more alert football all the way, and making the most of two out of three opportunities that presented themselves, the Navy eleven today inaugurated its 1933 season in more encouraging fashion than for several years by defeating a strong and veteran aggregation from William and Mary College, of Williamsburg, Va., 12 to 0. The margin of victory was just about what the Navy board of strategy had calculated upon, and in more than one way erased the stunning 6 to 0 defeat which the Virginians handed the Tars last year.

The Middies used two complete teams, and a few more substitutes on the side, to subdue the Williamsburg lads, and they accomplished the task in a fashion that left no brief for argument.

Walkup Gets Score.

The Tars accounted for a touchdown within two minutes before the end of the second period, after the Indians had made a valiant stand to stem the terrific assault, 1 foot from their goal line. Ben Walkup dived through center to make the counter, after Quarter Back Becht lunged through the same quarter to register a first down. The second touchdown came at a like stage of the third period, but under different conditions. This session was replete with punting, in which Larson and Clarke, the Navy kickers, held an advantage over Shade, of the Indians. The visitors had stopped one assault by taking the ball on downs after the Middies advnaced to the 7-yard line. But soon afterward Billy Palese got off a rather poor punt and Navy again had the ball 30 yards from the Indians' goal line. Again the Virginians halted Navy's running attack, but a 25-yard pass, Baumberger to Borries, turned the trick. Borries pulled the ball down just as he stepped across the goal mark.

The Middies reeled 15 to the Indians' 5, and the ratio of yardage gained was better than 2 to 1. Rabbit Rankin, midget half back, was a star for Navy. Despite his poundage of less than 150, he was hard to bring down because of his shiftiness afoot. Bill Clarke, Borries, Becht and Chung-Hoon, other Navy backs also did some flashy work, while Capt. Murray, Harbold, Brooks and Zabriskie were stalwarts in the line-up. Shade and Worrell shared honors with Palese in ball carrying for the Virginians, while the ponderous Stewart and Capt. Quirk put up a great game at tackles.

Stanford Wins From Uclans, 3-0

25,000 See Corbus Kick Placement Goal.

Stanford Stadium, Palo Alto, Calif., Sept. 30 (AP).—Stanford's rejuvenated Indians opened their Pacific Coast Conference campaign today with a 3-0 victory over the University of California at Los Angeles Bruins, gained by the margin of one field goal before 25,000.

For the balance of a bitterly-fought contest the oval seesawed up and down the field, almost entirely in Bruin territory.

Three times the home guards reached to within a few scant yards of scoring turf only to lose the ball.

The three tallies came from the place kick that husky Bill Corbus steered through the uprights not long after the opening kick-off.

Tulane Upset, 13-6, By Texas A. & M.

Greenies' Only Score Made In Final Quarter.

New Orleans, Sept. 30 (AP).—Texas A. and M. of the Southwestern Conference upset Tulane's Green Wave, 13-6, in a bitterly fought battle here today.

Clifford Domingue, Aggie quarter, led the attack for the first touchdown. He set the ball up on Tulane's 25-yard line, where a pass put it on the 4-yard line. Here Domingue shot over right guard to score, then kicked goal.

In the third quarter Bill Couser, subbing for Domingue, caught Monk Simon's kickoff and ran it back 50 yards to the 22-yard line. Passes, the last Fowler to Stringfellow, scored the second touchdown.

In the last quarter, Kyle, of Tulane, took a 30-yard pass from Roberts and put the ball on the Aggies' 30-yard line. Bruno plunged over the goal line for the Greenies' only score.

Fordham Rams Win Under Crowley, 52-0

New York, Sept. 30 (U.P.)—Speedy Jim Crowley's hard hitting Fordham Rams, using the Notre Dame system, today walloped a stubborn Albright eleven from Reading, Pa., 52 to 0, before 12,000 sweltering fans at Fordham Field.

This marked Crowley's debut as coach at Fordham. The former Michigan State pilot's efforts were plainly reflected in the Rams' skilful blocking and running game.

Delphine VII Gains 2d Place in Race

racing career of John Shibe, Philadelphia baseball magnate, struck his entry, the Ethyl-Ruth III, in the second heat when she was within striking distance of a foothold on the coveted award.

All boats beat the gun in that heat and circled to pass the starting line again. Delphine VII got away first on the true start, Ethyl-Ruth III, second; El Lagarto, third, and Imp, last. F. G. Ericson, at the wheel of the Shibe entry, gave her the gun and jumped into a substantial lead in the first lap. The Delphine VII and the El Lagarto staged a thrilling battle for second place, which was finally gained by the latter craft on the upper turn of the second lap.

Breaks Record for Lap.

The Ethyl-Ruth, the reconstructed Miss Philadelphia which cost the life of William Freitag in the 1931 President's race, in the meantime, was functioning beautifully and stepped up to a 60.810-mile-an-hour third lap to break the President's Cup race lap record of 58.102, set by the El Lagarto in 1931. Having assumed a commanding lead, Ericson cut the gun considerably. On the sixth and last schedule trip around the course, just as she was about to lap the fourth place Imp, the Ethyl-Ruth III's oil line broke and pressure came down from a normal 47 to 38.

Frantic, but unavailing efforts were made to repair the damage, but the Ethyl-Ruth III was out of the race for good.

Betty III disintegrated like the one-hose shay in the Potomac free for all. Just as she went over the starting line one of her steps was torn loose and as the race progressed the bottom began to drop out. The steering wheel came loose in the hands of the driver, and the craft ran amuck, grazing a cruiser anchored outside the course. The Betty III finally sunk, but her driver, Walter Eckerly escaped injury.

Mercer Holds Army Team To 19-6

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept 30 (AP).—A furious first period assault in which "Texas Jack" Buckler, a 160-pound stick of dynamite from Waco, demoralized his opponents with a series of dazzling runs enabled the Army gridders to unveil their 1933 campaign with a 19-to-6 victory today over a scrapping team from Mercer University.

Except for Buckler's individual feats of brilliance, it would have been nip and tuck for Uncle Sam's cadets. The Waco wonder scored their first touchdown after a 37-yard dash through the entire Mercer team in the opening minutes of play and made the second possible shortly thereafter with a succession of off-tackle smashes that carried the ball to the apron of the invaders' goal line.

From there on, for three full quarters, the boys from Macon, Ga., gave Lieut. Garrison Davidson's charges all the battle they could handle, and in the closing period practically fought the soldiers off their feet, falling short of touchdowns only after two spectacular drives into Army territory.

At the close a crowd of 10,000 could only stand and cheer the plucky scrap put up by the Mercer eleven as a whole and the individual brilliance of one of its members, one Robert E. Lee, jr. It was the namesake of the famous Southern military leader who paved the way for Mercer's lone touchdown in the second period with a brilliant 58-yard run after receiving a pass, and it was he who was on the receiving end of a succession of tosses from Trommerhauser that twice threatened the Cadets' goal in the waning minutes of play.

Cornell Wins, 48-7, In First of Year

Ithaca, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Cornell's football forces sent St. Lawrence into defeat in the opening game on Schoellkopf Field today, 48-7, with the Larries going into the air in the fourth quarter to score an unexpected touchdown.

Otherwise, St. Lawrence was powerless before the punishing running game of the Ithacans, but it took the Cornell reserves to roll up the majority of the seven touchdowns. The varsity, playing nearly three periods and scoring only twice, gave way to substitutes, who promptly scored three touchdowns in eight minutes in the third period.

The St. Lawrence score was spectacular, coming on third down. Sam Glinsky tossed a 15-yard pass to Warren, another back, who raced unmolested 55 yards for the score.

S. California Routs Loyola Eleven, 18-0

Los Angeles, Cailf., Sept. 30 (AP). It took the University of Southern California gridiron giants almost three periods to get started today before they could crush Loyola University, 18 to 0, for their third straight victory this season.

Sixty-five thousand persons saw Coach Tom Lieb's Lions stubbornly fight off the powerful Trojans until late in the third quarter.

A clipping penalty which gave Coach Howard Jones' eleven the ball on the 1-yard line marked the turning point of the contest. Three times Loyola turned back the vaunted Trojan attack, but on the fourth down Homer Griffith dived over the line to score.

Gordon Clark, half back, and Bill Howard, third sub at quarter back, made the other touchdowns.

Late Pitt Rally Beats W. & J. Gridmen

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 30 (AP).—A band of courageous footballers from the ivy-hung halls of old Washington and Jefferson stormed the battlements of the Pitt Stadium today and outplayed a more highly regarded Pitt eleven for three quarters, only to go down to defeat, 9 to 0, before a final, desperate, powerhouse attack by the aroused Panthers.

The game stand of the Red and Black kept the crowd of 10,000 fans, out to witness last year's Eastern champions open their season, in a bedlum of excitement. It was the seventeenth victory against 12 defeats and 2 ties for Pitt in their long series with their once bitterest rivals.

A few seconds later Weinstock again stepped into the spotlight, snatching one of the President's desperate passes in his own territory. After the ball had been advanced to the Wash-Jeff 38-yard stripe, young Howdy O'Dell, Iowa's pride and one of several seeking to fill the shoes of the departed Warren Heller, skipped manfully around right end for a touchdown.

This time Weinstock failed in his mission and his try for the extra point went awry.

Until that field goal by the full back, however, Pitt had little over which to crow. It was Wash-Jeff that made the scoring threats, and it was Wash-Jeff that was able, when breaks went against them, to come back in even more vicious fashion to throw the challenge of the Panthers in their very teeth. For until the fourth quarter, Pitt never was closer to the opposing goal than the 26-yard stripe.

V. M. I. Gridders Crushed by Duke

Greensboro, N. C., Sept. 30 (AP). Dukes' Blue Devils crushed the Virginia Military Institute Cadets, 37 to 6, in the opening game of the Southern Conference season, played under the arc lights here tonight.

North Carolina Wins.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Sept. 30 (AP).—North Carolina nosed out Davidson, 6 to 0, with a touchdown in the last period today after fumbling away earlier chances to score. A crowd of 8,000 saw the Tar Heels' opening game.

Northwestern Is Upset by Iowa, 7-0

SOLDIER FIELD, Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—Iowa's Hawkeyes, beaten underdogs of Big Ten football warfare for four long years, snapped the championship hopes of a highly touted Northwestern team with an astounding 7-to-0 victory today.

Blanked since 1929 in conference competition and rated as just another underdog this season, the Hawks battered the Wildcats into almost feeble submission, outplayed them easily, and then clinched a long-sought victory in the final period as Joe Laws raced down the sidelines for 32 yards and the only touchdown of the battle at Soldier Field.

Sophomore Is Hero.

Twenty-five thousand spectators, among them Iowa's governor, Clyde Herring, watched the game. Despite his victory dash, it wasn't Laws who was the hero. It was a 190-pound sophomore named Dick Crayne. The husky Hawkeye ran the amazed Wildcats breathless with lightning dashes, and probably would have dashed over for four touchdowns except for a soggy field. He gained 119 yards from the line of scrimmage in 28 attempts—more than half of the yardage picked by the entire Iowa team.

The third touchdown of the first half and the second of the period came when Gearty snagged a La Salle pass and dashed 55 yards for a score.

Hardly a minute had lapsed in the second half when Tom Gearty, on the second play of the period, crashed through the center of the line for a beautiful 72-yard run down the center of the field with perfect interference to bring the score to 24 to 6. It was the longest run of the game. Oliver's placement was good.

Bob McVean was rushed into the fray to keep up the touchdown parade. The Birds lost the ball in midfield. Knox on the very first play sent one of his long heaves into the arms of Ed White, Catholic center, who carried the ball to the La Salle 20 from the 35. Finn's pass to Bob McVean was good for 21 and then Mac took it over from the seven.

The final tally came late in the fourth, when Finn zipped another heave to McVean, who with perfect interference, sped to the 12. McVean hit center for 5 and on the next punched it over off tackle.

Ursinus Gridders Hold Villanova to 7-7 Tie

Villanova, Pa., Sept. 30 (AP).—An unexpectedly strong Ursinus College football team held the vaunted Villanova eleven to a 7-to-7 tie today in a surprising early season upset.

Villanova countered in the third period and Ursinus pushed over the line late in the fourth quarter.

Georgia Tech Downs Clemson; Score, 39-2

Atlanta, Sept. 30 (AP).—Georgia Tech's Golden Tornado, giving at least partial fulfillment to preseason forecasts of greater power than it has shown in recent years, blew Clemson down, 39 to 2, this afternoon in weather better suited to baseball than to football.

North Carolina State Bows to Georgia, 20-10

Athens, Ga., Sept. 30 (AP).—Georgia defeated a hard fighting North Carolina State football team in the opening game of the season for the Bulldogs here today, 20 to 10. A scorching sun necessitated frequent substitutions.

Veterans Net Final.

Daniel H. Pratt and Felix M. Silva became the first Veterans' Administration net doubles champions when they defeated C. L. Johnson and John Bibb, 6—3, 2—6, 6—3, in the finals of the fifth annual Administration tournament.

Alabama Defeats Oglethorpe, 34-0

Denny Field, University, Ala., Sept. 30 (AP).—Alabama's big Crimson team today splashed to an easy 34-0 victory over a plucky Oglethorpe eleven before an opening season crowd of approximately 12,000.

Rain started in the first period and continued throughout the game, but before the field became slippery Alabama exhibited a fine running attack, with two junior half backs, Howell and McDanal, carrying the ball.

In seven running plays after Oglethorpe had punted on receiving the kick-off, Alabama scored, with Howell slanting off right tackle for the last 12 yards.

Coach Frank Thomas kept his first string in the game for two full periods and in the final period sent many reserves into the line-up.

Tech Gridders Rout Handley High, 26-0

WINCHESTER, Va., Sept. 30 (Spl.).—McKinley Technical High School, of Washington, demonstrated championship form here today when it crushed through a strong Handley High School defense to win the annual football game between the two institutions, 26-0, on Handley Field.

Led by Hess, Heatwole, McMahon and Pisani, the Techmen lashed an offensive which proved of value throughout the contest, enabling the visitors to score in every quarter.

Tennessee 27-0 Victor Over Va. Poly

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 30 (AP).—A group of brilliant back-field stars racing behind almost perfect interference led the Tennessee Vols, of the Southeastern Conference, to an easy 27-to-0 victory over the Virginia Polytechnic Institute eleven here today on a sun-scorched gridiron.

A crowd of 15,000 fans—the largest opening day turnout in the history of Tennessee football—saw the contest.

The victory was a bitter one for the Vols, however, as they lost for this season one of their aces, Herman (Breezy) Wynn, smashing full back, who was carried from the field in the final quarter with a broken ankle.

Georgetown Beats St. Mary's by Rally

Mary's 15-yard line. From that point Savarine flipped a pass to Parcells, which was good for the third touchdown. Russo's kick was wide.

Mount St. Mary's had a slight edge in the first half, and several times had the ball in Georgetown territory, but the running attacks of both teams had a tendency to bog down at critical points. The only high light from the standpoint of the visitors in the second half was Reilly's 59-yard return of Russo's kick-off after the second touchdown. He took the ball on his own 5-yard line and stepped through a broken field to Georgetown's 41.

Dartmouth Routs Norwich Team, 41-0

Junior, Playing in First College Contest, Hero.

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 30 (AP).—A fourth team back who never played in a college game until today stole the show as Dartmouth in a last period burst of speed rolled over Norwich 41 to 0, on Memorial Field here today before 9,000 fans.

Norman Rand, Dartmouth junior from Salem, Mass., was the Indian hero as he scored two of the six touchdowns and shot a long pass to Sammy Fishman, regular quarter back, for a third. Rand only went 5 yards on his first score, but ran through the entire Norwich team on a 19-yard dash for the other.

Maryland Wins Opening Grid Tussle

St. John's College Eleven Is Beaten, 20 to 0; Widmyer Stars.

IN the twenty-ninth renewal of their long rivalry, University of Maryland football eleven dealt St. John's College, of Annapolis, a 20-to-0 defeat yesterday afternoon in Byrd Stadium at College Park before a crowd estimated at slightly greater than 3,000. It was the fifteenth victory for the Old Liners in the long series. Both teams were making their debut this season.

Established as a pregame favorite, Maryland scored early in the first quarter, and except for one time in the second period, never was in danger. The Johnnies trailed at half-time, 0-6. The third quarter was scorless, but the Old Liners clinched the decision with a brace of touchdowns in the final 15 minutes.

Widmyer Is Star.

Earl Widmyer, Maryland's flashy halfback, was the brightest individual performer of the contest. Twice he tossed the goal line for 6-pointers, once after racing 35 yards with a forward pass, and again on a line smash. He added one extra point with a placement kick. Injured late in the game and carried unconscious from the field, it was later learned that he was not seriously hurst.

Offensively, Maryland rang up 11 first downs against 5 for the Annapolis eleven. Honors were even in the first half, with each team registering 4.

The Old Liners scored in the first period. After a line buck netted three yards, Nelson shot a pass to Widmyer, who was racing down the right side of the field. The Maryland halfback gathered in the ball on the St. John's 35-yard line and eluding two would-be tacklers soon crossed the goal-line standing up. He missed the placement try for extra point.

Johnny Threat Killed.

Early in the second period, Cassassa, St. Johns tackle, received a fumble by Sacks on the latter's 47-yard line. Kilmore registered first down on the 36 yard mark. Two forward passes, Kilmore to MacCartee, netted 29 yards, the ball being brought down the Old Liners' 7-yard line. At this point Maryland braced and stopped the visitors on downs. It was the only serious threat of the afternoon by the Johnnies.

With the ball on his 30-yard line, Widmyer got away for a 20-yard gain to midfield in the third quarter. A series of line smashes advanced the ball to St. John's 36-yard line, and a pass, Nelson to Bucky Buscher, was good for 20 yards more.

Widmyer took the ball to the 7-yard mark and Sachs made the first down with an off-tackle thrust. Nelson went to the 1-yard line as the quarter ended. On the second play of the last period Widmyer found a hole in the center of the line and Maryland's second touchdown resulted. Widmyer also counted the extra point with a placement kick.

Later in the quarter, on a forward pass from Nelson to Benner, the latter caught the ball on the 15-yard line, and ran the remaining distance for the Old Liners' third and final touchdown. Bucky Buscher made the extra point on a placement.

Hufty and Stewart Join Jones and Shugrue in Congressional Golf Semifinals

Four Battle For Title Today

Semifinals in Morning,; Finals Scheduled for This Afternoon.

Stoddard, Thomson in W.G.C.C. Finals; Play for Crown Today.

PAGE HUFTY, defending title holder, and Luther Steward, jr., twice former champion, forged into the semifinals of the Congressional Country Club golf championship yesterday and are expected to clash in the finals this afternoon.

Hufty won both of his matches in handy fashion, trimming George Sutton, 5 and 3, and A. B. Clark, 7 and 6, Steward, participant in the recent National Amateur, crushed 15-year-old Billy Dettweiler, 6 and 4, and smothered H. C. Dagley, 5 and 4. Against Dettweiler, Steward finished only 2 over par, after leading the kid star, 4 up at the turn.

Hufty Plays Jones.

In the semifinals this morning Hufty will meet Billy Jones, while Steward will oppose Dr. J. J. Shugrue.

Hufty and Steward met in the finals last year, with the former winning an exciting match. History may repeat itself.

Championship flight—Page Hufty beat George O. Sutton, 5 and 3; A. B. Clark beat H. J. Richardson, 1 up; Billy Shea beat R. E. Karcher, 3 and 2; W. W. Jones beat J. Sheppard, 6 and 5; J. F. McCarron beat Dr. Don Johnson, 2 and 1; Dr. J. J. Shugrue beat V. A. Sisler by default; H. C. Dagley beat J. O. Rhyne, 4 and 3; Luther Steward, jr., beat Billy Dettweiler, 6 and 4.

Second round—Hufty beat Clark, 7 and 6; Jones beat Shea, 1 up, 19 holes; Shugrue beat McCarron, 4 and 3; Steward beat Dagley, 5 and 3.

Second flight—B. L. Taylor, jr., beat R. A. Keilty, 3 and 2; M. Mahoney beat W. H. Kilbourne, 4 and 3; E. J. Harding beat Neil Burkinshaw, 3 and 1; Francis X. Emmett won by default; Dave Newman won by default; S. C. Cromwell beat C. M. Weigle, 2 and 1; Dr. Bruce L. Taylor, sr., won by default; A. H. Plant, jr., won by default.

Second round—Taylor beat Mahoney, 8 and 7; Emmett beat Harding, 6 and 5; Cromwell beat Newman, 5 and 4; Taylor beat Plant, 2 up.

Third flight—F. E. Johnson beat C. W. Dudley, 4 and 3; W. H. Grimes won by default; H. A. Mihills won by default; Victor Cahill beat Dr. J. L. Barnhard, 3 and 2; G. F. Mikkelson beat T. B. Conlyn, 2 and 1; Dr. O. U. Singer beat Dr. M. E. Donohue, 6 and 5; Earl Chesney won by default; W. J. McEvoy beat O. H. Wendt, 3 and 1.

Second round—Johnson beat Grimes, 3 and 2; Cahill beat Mihills, 2 and 1; Singer won by default; Chesney beat McEvoy, 3 and 2.

Fourth flight—Guy Mason, E. F. Kohman and Fred Newland won by default; P. L. Gore beat W. L. King, 1 up; T. S. Grape won by default; R. R. Rommell beat W. D. Osgood, 5 and 4; A. K. Shipe beat C. H. Giroux, 3 and 2.

Second round—Kohman beat Mason, 4 and 3; Newland, bye; Grape beat Gore, 1 up 19 holes; Rommell beat Shipe, 4 and 3.

Fifth flight—J. M. Littlepage won by default; P. M. Yager beat R. V. Offutt, 9 and 7; C. A. Carlson won by default; Frank Hines beat C. B. Des Jardines, 4 and 3; C. S. Abell won by default; W. G. Mish beat F. H. Butcher, 2 and 1; R. A. Conn and F. G. Awalt won by default.

Second round—Littlepage beat Yager, 4 and 2; Hines beat Carlson, 6 and 4; Abell beat Mish, 3 and 2; Awalt won by default.

Heavy favorite to win, J. W. Harvey, jr., was eliminated in the semifinals of the Manor Club championship yesterday by Clark W. Stoddard, 5 and 3. Stoddard today will clash for the title with David L. Thomson, who entered the finals by whipping E. J. Carver, 5 and 4.

Championship flight—C. W. Stoddard beat J. W. Harvey, jr., 5 and 3; David L. Thomson beat E. J. Carver, 5 and 4.

Second flight—H. K Beck beat B. D. Gamble, 2 up; F. R. Krumm beat Col. C. G. Strom, 2 up.

Third flight—C. A. Metzler beat Perry McLean, 2 and 1; A. B. Alley beat A. M. Boulc, 2 up.

Fourth flight—C. R. Giddings beat F. M. Grogan, 3 and 2; M. R. Colbert beat C. S. Buchanan, 2 up.

Miller Advances.

Johnny Miller, club champion, won his postponed match from John Green, 4 and 3, yesterday, to enter the semifinals of the Beaver Dam championship. Miller meets Jesse Bagget today, and Martin F. McCarthy will clash with J. L. Townsend.

Women golfers of the District are preparing themselves for the next event on the calendar—the Times Trophy. This will be held Tuesday at Beaver Dam. Entries, closing at noon today, should be sent to Mrs. Douglas Tschiffely. Mrs. Tschiffely's phone number is Adams 9042. Only golfers with handicaps from 10 to [illegible] are eligible to receive the trophy, although any one, regardless of handicap, may compete.

Mrs. J. F. Gross, of Indian Spring, is the defending champion. The entrance fee is 50 cents.

An effort will be made by Columbia and Chevy Chase to effect an all-District finals in the Maryland State Golf Association team championship. Columbia today clashes with Hillendale Club at the latter's course, while Chevy Chase will play host to Rolling Road.

The Middle Atlantic P. G. A. match play championship will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at Chevy Chase.

Woodmont Golfers In Baltimore Match

Woodmont Country Club will send a 13-man and 8-woman golf team to Suburban Country Club today to match strokes with the Baltimoreans in return matches.

Earlier in the season Woodmont's men bowed to Suburban, while the feminine players triumphed. A special match also will take place between the pros, Tom Hudgins, Woodmont, and Ralph Beach, Suburban.

Those making the trip:

Tom Hudgins, Howard Nordlinger, Byron Ackerman, Melvin Kraft, W. G. Ilich, Gilbert Hahn, Bob Baum, Fulton Brylawski, Louis Harris, Albert Steinem, Leopold Freudberg, Morris Simon, Ralph Goldsmith.

Mrs. Ralph Goldsmith, Mrs. Leon Schloss, Mrs. Theodore Peyser, Miss Bertha Israel, Mrs. Gilbert Hahn, Miss Janice Loeb, Miss Vera Rieskin and Mrs. Martin Baum.

District Bowlers Win.

Last box spares in the final game by Walson, Litchfield and Pricci gave Convention Hall bowlers a 19-pin victory over the Lexingtons, of Baltimore, last night. The winners totaled 3,081 for the five games, against 3,012 for the losers.

Blue Coal Nine Could Tie For Title

ONE of the closest and bitterest sandlot campaigns in the history of the Capital City League may end today when St. Joseph's A. C. crosses bats with the Griffith-Blue Coals on the Ellipse at 3 o'clock. Today's fray is the last of the regular schedule. Just as the Miller Furniture tossers had to fight to the last ditch to earn the first half title, so are contenders for honors in the second series battling for the pennant on the final day.

Everything is at stake for the Griffs. If they win they go into a tie with the Stanton Cleaners for the flag. If they lose, the Stantons, who lead the race by half a game, win the crown and the right to meet the Millers in the play-off for the city championship.

Dor-A Sets Stage.

Dor-A, a team that played brilliantly in the first half and then executed a neat flip-flop in the second, set the stage for today's dramatic proceedings. Allie Bowers' crew hung a decisive 10-2 defeat on the Stantons last week just as Al Clark's boys prepared to sieze the crown. A determination to fight every inch of the way kept the Griffs in the race after they lost to the Stantons earlier in the season, so when the latter faltered the Griffs were on the job.

Harry Milburn will toe the mound for the Blue Coals. Opposing him will be either Larry Schneider or "Grassy" Grazzini. St. Joseph's may be out of the running, but nothing would please the Plaza nine more than a victory over the coal dealers.

Midget Clubs to Meet.

While the unlimited teams are battling, the midget clubs will go into the second round of their elimination series to decide which of them is going to wear the second-half crown. Two games are listed, Montrose A. C. vs. Potomac Fish Co. and Eastern A. C. vs. Savoy. The winners will clash next Sunday for the title.

Shortening of Odds For Series Likely starts. Hubbell is a 5-to-4 favorite to pitch the Giants to victory in the opener at the Polo Grounds, Tuesday afternoon, regardless of Washington's first pitching selection.

It was still a wide open guess as to whether Cronin and his boss, Clark Griffith, will start Crowder Tuesday or rely on one of the two Nat lefties, Stewart or Whitehill.

"Your guess might be just as good as mine," said Cronin, after admitting that Monte Weaver, the young right-hander, had been eliminated from first-game consideration. "By working Weaver today against the Yankees you can conclude we will not try to use him before the second game. But that doesn't mean we do not consider him in good form. Our thought is that one of the three veterans will be our best bet at the start."

If the Nat stars work in the order they were used against the Yankees, it will be Stewart, Crowder and Whitehill. But the lobbyists were strongly inclined to pick Whitehill, the former Detroit ace, who has the best winning record of any member of the Washington staff.

"Don't be misled by the way our pitchers have been treated here by the Yankees," continued Cronin. "They were just out there to get the necessary work, not to pitch their heads or arms off in a game that didn't mean anything. The thing I am happiest about is that we are getting our batting eyes sharpened up. Did you notice the way we combed those Yankee pitchers?"

Speaking of Tennis . . .

By Bill Shreve.

THE ranking committee of the Washington Tennis Association soon will decide the local rankings for 1933.

Just why anyone should accept a position on this committee has always been a puzzle. After the rankings have been announced the committeeman are as popular as a baseball umpire calling a bad decision against the home team. They are accused of everything from being just plain dumb to accepting bribes.

If there is one thing that a majority of tennis players are jealous about it is their ranking. No member of the upper crust of society was ever angered so much at failing to receive an invitation to the social event of the year as a tennis player who was ranked [illegible] when he knew that he should have been ranked 139.

Few Will Be Satisfied.

Only one thing is certain about the rankings—no matter how they turn out, very few will be satisfied. The members of the committee receive neither pay nor honor. They put in many hours of work for a lost cause, and they get the blame and the angry looks.

Quite frequently misunderstandings come about by the players not knowing what data and records are used in making up the rankings. Only tournaments sanctioned by the Middle Atlantic Association of the U. S. L. T. A. and those which have a representative local field are used in making the rankings. League play is not considered, nor is any kind of informal play such as challenge matches for teams.

Uses Tourney Results.

The committee does not speculate as to whether one player is superior to another. It uses only the results of tournament play. It is possible that members of the committe may be of the opinion that a player ranked sixth is superior to a player ranked fifth, but because the record of the player ranked fifth is better in the tournaments in question the ranking holds.

The tournaments that were used as a basis for the 1932 rankings were the City of Washington, the District of Columbia, the Public Parks and the Wardman Park. The Capital City League tournament also was taken into consideration though to a lesser degree than the first four.

May Include Two More.

Rankings for 1933 will be based upon play in these same big four, and possibly the Government Employes tournament and the Washington Grove will be included. Whether these last two will be counted in will be one of the first questions that the committee decides. Neither was a sanctioned tournament, but they both had fields that were sufficiently strong to warrant their inclusion in the list.

The No. 1 position for 1933 will give the committee no trouble. Dooly Mitchell will win it as he did in 1931 and 1932 without a struggle. The Georgetown boy won the City of Washington, the District of Columbia, and the Wardman Park, the three tournaments he played in. He went through the season without a loss in tournament competition.

Welsh Should Get Place.

The second position in the rankings will be more difficult to decide, but Barney Welsh should get the place. Welsh won the Public Parks tournament and went to the semifinal of the Wardman tournament, being forced to default and return to school at that point. Barney also defeated Ralph McElvenny at Washington Grove in the finals to eliminate that threat from the second position. The only other contender of the Rockville boy's position is Tom Mangan, who had made an excellent showing up to the Wardman tournament. His upset defeat by Hy Ritzenberg in that event eliminated his chances of rating right behind Mitchell.

Burl Is Seeking Revenge Over Schwartz

Twin City Bout Tuesday Is Expected to Be Full of Fireworks.

WHAT is expected to be one of the snappiest fistic exchanges of the open air season is scheduled for Twin City arena Tuesday night when two-fisted Eddie Burl and ring-wise Benny Schwartz come together in 10-round warfare.

Completely bafled by Schwartz's dazzling boxing and all-around class their last time out, Burl was soundly trounced by the Baltimore boy Having added a healthy wallop and several formidable victims to his list since bowing to Schwartz, however, Burl declares he will avenge that defeat via a knockout.

Petey Sarron and Dick Welsh both have been upset victims at Burl's hands during the past six months, while Billy Landers, Norfolk's "blond ripper," was wiped out via a knockout.

Caesar, new to these parts, will be making his Twin City bow under Ralph Murdock's management.

Paul Heston Bows In Tennis Tourney

Rye, N. Y., Sept. 30 (AP).—Two overwhelming favorites, Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter, today advanced to the final round of the seventh National professional singles tennis championship a the Westchester Country Club today.

Richards, three time winner of the title and top seeded player, swept over Hobert Murray, the Sand Point Club pro from Long Island, by scores of 6—1, 6—1, 6—4. Hunter, who used to play alongside of Big Bill Tilden in the Davis Cup doubles, had a longer route against Paul Heston of Washington, D. C., but won out in fine style, 1—6, 6—1, 6—2, 7—5.

The singles final will be played tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. (E. S. T.), followed by the doubles final which sends Richards and Ted Hericha, of New York, against Hunter and Charles M. Wood, of Bernardsville, N. J.

Harmony Sets Pace In Masonic League

Harmony is in first place in the Masonic League with eight wins against a single loss. Preston Ellis' 353 was high for his team in their clean sweep over Lebanon.

Petworth, with four men, took all three from Federal, mainly through the efforts of Homer, who rolled a 380 set. Another 380 set was nearly wasted when Charlie Phillips toppled that amount for King David against Naval, but his team only managed to grab a single game.

McMillan Gets Mat Chance At Steele

A RASSLE bout long in demand here, the matching of Jim McMillan and Ray Steele, finally has been closed. Falling into line with the spirit of world series week Matchmaker Joe Turner is to stage this major attraction at the Washington Auditorium Thursday night.

Opening his fall indoor venture, Turner presents two of the finest workers in the mat game today. Pastmasters as showmen and equally as adept at honest-to-goodness wrestling, a great exhibition is promised.

Generally ranked as "crown prince" of his profession, Steele meets another outstanding title menace in McMillan. Famed for the masterful execution of his "flying tackle" and a crowd pleaser from the word go, McMillan will be prepared to loose his finest article of mixing against the rugged Californian.

Steele Popular Here.

Steele is popular here following a string of open air conquests which was climaxed by his spectacular 2-hour draw with Jimmy Londos, and will be enthusiastically backed as he goes to bat. The big Californian, in his go with Londos, impressed many Washingtonians as the man who eventually will succeed the gorgeous Greek.

In a semifinal of 45 minutes George Zaharias, hard-boiled Greek, mingles with another of Jack Pfeffer's mat curios, listed as Zeniaki, the so-called "Siberian Wild Man."

Karl Davis, the lad who slugged Referee Benny Bortnick and automatically punched himself into disqualification last week, has been rematched with Cliff Olsen, Swedish whirlwind, in the standout of three-time limits. Two additional brevities are being arranged.

Despite the show's cost ladies escorted will be admitted free, 25 cents being asked of children under 16.

Erana-Silva Capture Filipino Tennis Title

The Erana-Silva doubles team yesterday won the Filipino championship by defeating the title holders, Rulloda and Eugenio, 6—2, 1—6, 2—6, 6—1, 6—2.

Erana will play Rulloda in the singles finals this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Monument courts. Erana reached the final round by trouncing Piniera, 6—2, 6—3, while Rulloda won from his doubles partner, Eugenio, 6—0, 6—8, default.

Tri-State Skeet Title Won by Maj. Hodges

Foremost exponents of skeet shooting of Washington, Maryland and Virginia vied yesterday for the tri-State championship at the Montgomery Skeet Club on East-West highway.

Maj. C. Hodges, of Washington, won the individual championship and the Montgomery Skeet Club the team championship. The Towson, Md., Gun Club was second and the Warrenton Skeet Club third in the team shooting.

Army-Navy Women In Championship Play

First-round matches in the Army and Navy Country Club women's golf championship will begin tomorrow morning, with Mrs. David H. Clark, medalist, strongly favored to win the title.

Pairings follow:

First flight—Mrs. D. H. Clark vs. Mrs. J. S. Upham, Mrs. D. O. Hickey vs. Mrs. W. P. Holtzman, Mrs. R. Lee vs. Mrs. E. A. Noyes, Mrs. J. Dedicke vs. Mrs. J. E. Davis.

Second flight—Mrs. F. L. Slater vs. Mrs. C. P. Clark, Mrs. J. Rogers vs. Mrs. B. McCandlish, Mrs. D. K. King vs. Mrs. E. Levey, Mrs. L. H. Hewitt vs. Mrs. Wright.

Third flight—Mrs J. C. Lee vs. Mrs. Victor Soster, Mrs. H. Kogbe vs. Mrs. Brinson, Mrs. J. Conklin vs. Mrs. L. V. Frasier, Mrs. Hodgson vs. Mrs. McCormack. Cormak.

Fourth flight—Mrs. V. Meyer vs. Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Nimmer drew bye, Mrs. Calver vs. Mrs. Noble, Mrs. Taylor, vs. Mrs. Miller.

Scribes to Eat, Drink—and Golf Some Digging of Divots to Fade Under Pleasant Sight of Food and Beer.

THE second annual National Press Club golf tournament will be held tomorrow at Indian Spring Country Club, and, strange as it seems, the members are coming out not to admire the scenic beauty of the course or attempt to add to the troubles of the greenskeepers, but for something far more important than either of these.

Free beer and free food—all day—will be the attraction, and just the thing to occupy the appetites of a batch of 75 would-be golfers.

Kibitzers—Hark!

A feature of the tournament is the large entry in the classification of kibitzers or honorary caddies. This kibitzer committee, headed by George O'Connor, is awarding a loving cup to the most able kibitzer. Other prizes will be the President's Cup, donated by Bascom N. Timmons; a set of golf sticks, zipper kit bags, and the Lydia E. Pinkham Trophy, given to the golfer who exhibits the most physical endurance in compiling the greatest number of strokes.

Entries will be accepted until midnight tonight.

Pairings and starting times:

Dick Lunn Placed at Top of List in "10 Best" District Golf Selections for 1933; Peacock Choice for Second and Pitt for Third.

By Dave Herman.

DICK LUNN, 18-year-old Chevy Chase star, is this column's choice as the outstanding District golfer for 1933. On the basis of competitive records for this season, Lunn is given the top post over nine other golfers in the writer's annual "10 best" selections. While he may not be the best golfer day in and day out, Lunn unquestionably proved his shot-making ability and mettle in three important events, and thus is given the call over the 1932 leader, Roger Peacock, of Indian Spring.

Lunn recently capped the climax of his season's play by winning the District championship after a stirring 18-hole play-off with Peacock. The matter of leadership actually hinged on the outcome of this battle. When Lunn thundered home with his Garrison finish to tie Peacock at 302, it was a case of the better man winning the next day.

DICK LUNN.

And this strapping 190-pounder, with icy nerves and a beautiful golf temperament, went out the next day and carried off the historic District trophy by a margin of one shot.

It was the same Dick Lunn they said a few years ago never could attain anything in golf. They said he was too clumsy and that he lacked the "stuff," but Lunn demonstrated he could take it and that he could win, even with the odds against him.

Records Decisive.

In selecting the "10 best" golfers for 1933 the writer has tried to be as impartial as the scales of justice. Bear in mind, however, that the records for this year were considered and that there were a number of good golfers who would have been ranked higher were it not for the fact that they participated in few, if any, important tournaments.

1—Dick Lunn (Chevy Chase).

2—Roger Peacock (Indian Spring).

3—Harry Pitt (Manor).

4—Maury Nee (Columbia).

5—Martin F. McCarthy (Beaver Dam).

6—Luther Steward, jr. (Congressional).

7—John Shorey (Kenwood).

8—Miller B. Stevinson (Columbia).

9—Maury Fitzgerald (Kenwood).

10—John F. Miller (Beaver Dam).

Honorable mention — Maj. Richard K. Sutherland (Army and Navy), Billy Dettweiler (Congressional), Louis Fuchs (Indian Spring), Craig McKee (Indian Spring) and Tom Belshe (Indian Spring).

Big and strong, Lunn promises to go far in the golf game. He has powerful hands and wrists, laces out tremendous tee shots, plays his irons crisply, and is a mighty good putter.

The youngest golfer ever to wear the District crown, Lunn won the Chevy Chase invitation championship this past spring by decisioning Nee in the finals. The remarkable manner in which he played his spoon shots on the fifteenth and nineteenth holes of his battle with Nee left an indelible impression in the minds of the several hundred spectators who followed the match.

The new District kingpin equaled Nee's course record of 67 while winning his club championship a few days after taking down the invitation. Told that he needed a 74 to qualify for the sectional trials for the National Amateur, Lunn made a whipping finish in his afternoon round after skyrocketing to an 81 in the morning. It was a great comeback.

That he can putt is evidenced by his brilliant 30-footer for a deuce on the seventeenth hole of his play-off with Peacock. It was the shot that won him the title.

This column's choice by a wide margin last year, Peacock played disappointingly in three tournaments, but was a veritable scoring machine in two others. A former Duke University captain, Peacock fared poorly in the Midle Atlantic at Rolling Road. He failed to qualify.

Won at Congressional.

Roger played his shots safely to clinch third place in the national amateur trials, but over on the Kenwood battle ground he was erratic with his tee shots.

Yet, when Peacock is on his game no amateur in this section can match his smoking pace.

The writer has awarded third place to Harry G. (Moose) Pitt, who would have found himself at the top had he participated in the District championship. A former District title holder, Pitt won the Baltimore Country Club invitation for the third time, retiring it permanently, and the Manor invitation, a championship that had eluded him for years.

The 18-year-old Nee is placed fourth Medalist in the interscholastic championship and beaten in the finals by Jack Munger, the boy sensation of the 1933 national amateur, Nee was a finalist in the Chevy Chase invitation and semifinalist at Manor and Congressional. He got as far as the quarter finals of the Maryland State event.

Martin McCarthy slides into fifth place in the "10 best" selections by virtue of qualifying for the National Amateur and making the grade in the three invitation tournaments.

Medalist and finalist in the Congressional invitation and National Amateur qualifier, Luther Steward won sixth place. John Shorey lost to Pitt in the first round of the Middle Atlantic, was a semifinalist at Manor and Congressional, and thus is placed seventh on the list. Shorey filed his entry too late to enter the amateur trials here.

Outranks Fitzgerald.

Miller B. Stevinson has been one of our truly outstanding golfers for years. He showed plenty of old-time skill in placing fourth in the National Amateur trials. He is given the edge over Maury Fitzgerald, who soared to dizzy heights by going to the semifinals of the Middle Atlantic. Fitzgerald, however, qualified for match play in both the Congressional Manor and Maryland tournaments.

Tenth place goes to John R. Miller, 1932 "champion of champions," who placed fourth in the District, and got as far as the semifinals of the Chevy Chase invitation.

One of the best golfers in this section, Maj. R. K. Sutherland, did not make the select group. Sutherland took part in only the District championship.

Walter R. McCallum will battle Reese Hair, and G. C. Gruver will meet Calvert V. Dickey in the semifinals of the Washington Golf and Country Club championship today.

McCallum Beats Fowler.

McCallum yesterday eliminated Ralph Fowler, conqueror of the champion, 2 and 1 in a stirring match, while Dickey put out C. H. Doing, 2 up.

In the second flight, G. W. Woods entered the semifinals by whipping A. H. Walker, 3 and 1, while J. F. Myers beat J. T. McGovern, 2 and 1. G. S. Applegate beat O. T. Thacker, 3 and 1 in the third flight.

Craig McKee, lanky Iowan, and J. J. Lynch forged into the finals of the Indian Spring Country Club championship yesterday, and will battle for the crown today. McKee defeated Dr. H. L. Smith, 1 up, and Lynch trimmed Louis Fuchs, 3 and 1. The 36-hole finals will start at 9:30 a. m.

Winners in the various flights will be honored at an informal banquet tonight at 7:15. Several hundred members are expected to attend.

A father was eliminated by his son in the quarterfinals of the President's Cup tournament at Chevy Chase yesterday. W. Beverly Mason, jr., defeated W. Beverly Mason, sr., 3 and 2, to enter the semifinals. Joining him in the round before the finals were G. E. Elliott, who beat A. E. Reeside, 5 and 4, and Dr. Thomas M. Foley, who conquered Frank Reeside, 2 and 1 in 36 holes.

Motorcycle Champs In Hill Test Here

Nationally known motorcycle riders will compete in the National Motorcycle Club's annual hill-climbing contest, scheduled October 15, at Harlow's Farm. The local chapter of the organization is sponsoring the event.

Joe Petrali, national champion; Woodsy Castonguay, Clem Murdock, Willard Wolfe, Warren Baum, Bernard Shanner, and Howard Mitzel are among those who will participate. Local riders will compete in the Class C contests.

Washington Gun Club Tops Baltimore Team

The visitors won the five-man doubles contest by 1 target, but the host team proved superior in the singles. R. B. Bond topped the field with 75 straight.

Health Chiefs Unite to Help U. S. Children

Secretary Perkins Will Direct New Drive; Thousands Suffer.

The child of the depression will have his share in the national recovery program when the Child Health Recovery Conference opens next Friday under direction of Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins.

Four years of depression, four years of uncertain food supplies, of uncertain living conditions, of no medical treatment and of living in home swhere only discouragement and despair have a place, have taken a heavy toll of the Nation's children.

Statistics prepared by the Children's Bureau show malnutrition has materially increased in the past four years and that during recent months conditions have grown much worse.

Plan Campaign of Aid.

It is to combat further onslaughts of bad food and unstable living conditions that doctors, dentists, child specialists and welfare workers will gather here. The tentative agenda of the conference includes discussion of a concerted drive through existing welfare and relief organizations to remedy so far as possible nutritional conditions throughout the country.

About one-fifth of children in the United States under 16 years are showing, in one form or another, effects of the depression, according to an estimate by Dr. Martha M. Eliot, director of the child hygiene division, Children's Bureau.

However, Grace Abbott, director of the bureau, says:

"I hope a Nation-wide effort to determine what is the nutritional condition of our children will show smaller percentage."

Depression effects are widespread, according to Dr. Eliot. They are not confined to lack of food.

Thousands Show Scars.

During hard times, jobless fathers had to forego all medical attention for their children to keep as much food as possible coming in. Infected tonsils and adenoids, bad teeth, malformed bones were allowed to go unattended. Today, Dr. Eliot believes, there are thousands of children whose bodies are permanently scarred by four years of neglect.

The phsychological effect of homes where fathers despaired of finding work, where mothers gave up the fight to maintain a fair standard of living, and where older brothers and sisters talked of nothing but where they might make an extra penny or two, was very great on children who were entitled to a normal and healthy development during the four years.

Harry L. Hopkins, Federal relief administrator; Dr. Hugh S. Cumming, surgeon general; Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics, and representatives of practically all State boards of health and State relief agencies will take part in the one-day conference.

Vandegrift Directs Y.M.C.A. Campaign

James P. Shick Will Assist in Membership Drive.

John L. Vandegrift, assistant vice president of the C. & P. Telephone Co., was announced yesterday as general chairman of "Founders Week" membership campaign of the Central Y. M. C. A., to be held during the week of October 11. He will be assisted by James P. Schick, president of the National Mortgage & Investment Corporation.

These men headed the membership campaign last year, during which enrollment records were broken. The campaign will be conducted with a recruiting organization and rally meetings. The goal is 600 new members.

Girl Lives Third Day in Iron Lung

Paralysis Victim Begins to Gain Strength.

Battling partial parlysis of her respiratory system, the aftermath of an attack of infantile parlysis, Miss Peggy Duncan, 21, Chevy Chase, Md., yesterday passed her third day in the artificial lung at Children's Hospital.

She had regained sufficient strength to remain out of the respirator for several 10-minute periods and to take nourishment unassisted.

Miss Duncan enrolled at Brenau College, Gainesville, Ga., this fall. She was brought home Wednesday.

Her physicians last night, for the first time since she was stricken 10 days ago, commented favorably on her chances for recovery.

Boy, Injured by Auto, Recovering in Hospital

Frank Tana, 12, 1812 Third street northeast, is recovering at Sibley Hospital from injuries received Friday when he was struck by an automobile driven by W. S. Hill, 1317 Eleventh street northwest, police said.

Hill denied it was a hit-run accident as reported by police and pointed out he had taken the boy to the hospital in his own car.

King Threatens Force To Get Bread Cost Data

Force in obtaining figures on bread costs from D. C. bakers was threatened yesterday by Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee.

Senator King demanded more speed from the bakers in producing the figures, requested some time ago by Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert E. Lynch, investigating bread prices here.

Street Skating Becomes Real Traffic Problem

Parks Service Posts Vacant Technically

Temporary Appointments Expire; Permanent List Delayed.

More than 3,000 employes of the Office of Public Parks, Buildings and Reservations, including the Park Police, building guards and charwomen, technically are without jobs today because their permanent appointments have not been approved.

All forces needed today and tonight will continue to function voluntarily, it was said. Buildings will be cleaned and police protection continued with the expectation that the workers' appointments will be approved tomorrow.

In the Shipping Board a somewhat similar situation arose, but was met by giving temporary appointments to 92 persons. More than half the employes of the Office of Parks and Buildings affected are in Washington.

Temparay Appointments.

When the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks was merged with the Park Service, all employes of both units were automatically dropped. Later it was ordered that all should be reappointed until September 30. At this time the employes to be kept would be appointed permanently.

Early last week the permanent list was made up by Arno Cammerer, director of the office. It was sent to Secretary of the Interior Ickes for approval, and relayed to the White House for further approval. Late yesterday the approval had not been returned.

It is understood unofficially that all but about 25 employes of the office are on the list for permanent appointment. These 25 represent the economies made possible by the consolidation. No fear was expressed by officials that the approval of the permanent appointments would be held up.

Shipping Board Status.

In the Shipping Board also all employes were dropped when that unit was transferred to the Department of Commerce. In this case, too, it was ordered that all should be reappointed until September 30, when permanent appointments would be made of the necessary workers. Feeling that more time was needed to select these permanent employes, the Commerce Department reappointed all of them yesterday for a further two months.

Tear Gas Bomb Falls, Marines Only "Weep"

Six'n Brigade Marines had the situation well in hand when reinforcements arrived.

Occupants of their reading room at 458 Indiana avenue northwest were routed to the street yesterday when a carpenter knocked a tear gas bomb from a table.

When the Fire Rescue Squad arrived the building was being aired and the occupants were wiping their eyes.

Pet Cat of Bondsmen Buried With Honors.

They buried Cleopatra last night. A bouquet of flowers valued at $50 was placed on her grave in the rear of the office of Patrick O'Connor, bondsman, 406 Fifth street northwest.

Cleopatra, pet cat of all members of "Bondsmen's Row," opposite Supreme Court, was killed yesterday by a hit-and-run driver. Twenty bondsmen, each of whom claimed Cleopatra as his own, attended the burial.

Four in Farmer Fraud Get Jail

Court Tells Commission Men They Also Must Make Restitution.

Four defendants convicted of defrauding Maryland, Virginia, New Jersey, New York and Wyoming farmers were sentenced to three months in jail and ordered to make restitution, the Department of Agriculture announced yesterday.

The prisoners, all Philadelphia commission merchants, included Joseph Hoffman, Benjamin Rotter, Fred A. Wright and Mane Skaler. Federal Judge Walsh in a Pennsylvania district court, denied requests for suspended sentences after the four entered guilty pleas.

The prosecution charged the commission merchants, tried under the produce agency act, received eggs, turkeys, beans, cauliflowers, peas and onions from farmers, sold them and failed to pay the producers.

Bride Denies Backing Swede Liquor System

Declares He Is Committed to No Plan for Control in District.

Corporation Counsel William W. Bride yesterday denied he advocates adoption of the Swedish Bratt system of liquor control for the District.

"I am not an advocate of any particular system, he said. "My duty is merely to be prepared to advise those who will determine the question as to the merits and objections of each system. I am committed to no plan and welcome any suggestion.

His statement followed a warning by Representative Fred A. Britten, of Illinois, yesterday that he would oppose establishment of a District system modeled after the Swedish plan.

Tomorrow or early this week Bride will confer with Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, on the matter of drafting a liquor-control act for the District.

Policeman Injured In Arrest Attempt

Elmer Rabbitt, 28, 524 Eighth street northwest, park policeman, was taken to Emergency Hospital yesterday with injuries received when he attempted to arrest a 17-year-old suspect on Hains Point during the boat races.

The youth, Wilton C. Dinges, of Takoma Park, attacked Rabbitt, when caught attempting to break into parked cars, according to police.

W. R. Earl, a fellow officer of Rabbitt's, came to his rescue and arrested Dinges, who was held at Fourth Precinct Station for investigation.

New Driveway Planned For Crittenton Home

Plans for a new driveway into the Florence Crittenton Home on Conduit road, necessitated by the grading of the adjacent highway, were discussed at a meeting of the board, held at the home of Mrs. John Boyle, jr., acting president in the absence of Mrs. Thomas E. Robertson.

Mrs. F. B. Stephenson, chairman of the grounds committee, said the driveway plan has been held up pending work on Conduit road. Now that this work has started, the grounds committee is authorized to go ahead with the work. The committee, in addition to Mrs. Stephenson, consists of Mrs. C. C. Caywood, Mrs. Charles T. Bassett, Mrs. B. T. Webster and Mrs. F. G. Awalt.

3 Held in Raid For Narcotics In Hotel Room

Drugs Valued at $1,000 Found With Needles and Opium Pipes.

A raid on a room in the Ambassador Hotel by Federal narcotic agents yesterday brought the arrest of three men and seizure, according to the officers, of narcotics valued at $1,000.

Breaking down the door of the room, which they said they had been watching for two weeks, the officers arrested Julian K. Smith, 46; John Clifford Bates, 21, of 1855 Calvert street northwest, and George Andrew, Brawley, 22, of 1630 R street northwest.

Detective Sergt. D. H. Jones, chief of the police narcotic squad, who conducted the raid with T. E. Middlebrooks and T. E. Maxwell, Federal narcotic agents, said the men had been under surveillance for weeks.

A complete assortment of hypodermic needles and opium cooking apparatus was seized with a narcotic, which officers described as heroin.

Sergt. Jones said all members of the ring, which has been receiving its supplies from New York, have not been apprehended and more arrests are expected shortly.

The men were questioned at police headquarters before being booked at First Precinct station for further investigation.

Rezoning Considered For Brewery Project

The Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission will hold a hearing Thursday night on the proposed rezoning of Beaver Heights in preparation for establishment of a brewery.

The commission will decide feasibility of changing from residential to commercial lots 9, 10 and 11. The request was made by the Greater Beaver Heights Realty Co., in behalf of the Carbeck Co., a Washington brewery.

Auto Victim Believed Dying; Driver Is Held

Robert Carroll, 52, of 4213 Grant street northeast, employe of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., was in critical condition at Casualty Hospital early today after being struck by an auto at Fifteenth and H streets northeast.

Police were holding Edgar Kowell, 28, colored, 316 South Capitol street, said to be driver of the car. Carroll was not expected to live.

Woman, 60, Hurt by Car Operated by Man, 73

Mrs. Mary Luskey, 60, of Little Sisters of the Poor Home, is in Emergency Hospital with cuts received yesterday when she was struck down by an automobile as she was crossing Fifth street and Indiana avenue northwest.

Police said the car was driven by Joseph C. Good, 73, of 491 Maryland avenue southwest.

D. C. Chiefs Back Halloween Plans

Leaders Say Celebration Is Wholesome Event.

Characterized as a "wholesome event," reducing petty pranks and offenses, the third annual citywide Halloween celebration on Tuesday night, October 31, was indorsed yesterday by the chairman of the District Commissioners and the superintendent of the Metropolitan Police.

Maj. E. W. Brown said the celebration "contributes to orderliness throughout the city." He assured cooperation by the Police Department. Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the Board of Commissioners, described the celebration as "a diverting spectacle."

Edgar Morris is general chairman of the celebration. First meeting of the committee will be held at 4 p. m. Tuesday in the office of the Greater National Capital Committee.

Dr. McHale Will Speak To University Women

Dr. Kathryn McHale, director of national headquarters of the American Association of University Women, will speak on "Some News Notes on the American Association of University Women" at the first tea of the season tomorrow at 4 p. m. at the clubhouse, 1634 I street northwest. Mrs. William John Cooper, president of the Washington branch, will introduce the speaker.

Mrs. William Lee Corbin will be hostess, assisted by Mrs. Dudley Willard, Mrs. Oscar R. Rand, Mrs. Charles James and Miss Ruby Nevins. At the tea table will be Mrs. Robert C. Howard, Miss Mildred Dean, Miss Helen Atwater and Miss Fay Bentley.

Arthur Worden Held In Thompson Death

Arthur Worden, 50, colored, 1200 block of First street southeast, was charged with murder yesterday at the Fourth Precinct station after a coroner's jury held him for the Grand Jury in connection with the death Tuesday of Wilfred Thompson, 52.

Thompson died at Gallinger Hospital shortly after he was found unconcious on First street between N and O streets southeast. According to police the dead man had been beaten by Worden.

Thief Chase

Rock Creek Park Folk Out in Night Dress.

Five shots fired by a policeman in a five-block chase of an auto thief through a Rock Creek Park residential district early today brought many residents to the street in their night clothes.

Policeman L. H. Peterson, of the Tenth Precinct, was called to the home of J. H. Schafhausen, 1662 Irving street northwest, by neighbors, who reported that a car stolen from the garage at that address yesterday was being returned. The Schafhausens are out of town.

A youth, who had apparently just driven the car into the garage, bolted when the officer arrived. He finally escaped by running through a home on Eighteenth street, according to Peterson.

New Deed Gives Home Owners 90 Days' Grace

Loan Corporation Favors 60-Day Redemption Clause in Form.

The way was paved for release of loans to 35 distressed home owners here yesterday when directors of the Home Owners Loan Corporation approved the new deeds of trust forms for use by the local office.

Marking a precedent in local real estate, the deed of trust carries a redemption clause which will give the borrower a 90-day period of default before foreclosure can start, and a 60-day period in which to redeem his property after foreclosure.

Inclusion of this clause is expected to result in introduction of legislation at the next Congress making the redemption clause a privilege of all home owners in Washington.

The local loans with one exception are not cash loans. Mortgages are being taken over by the corporation in exchange for its bonds. The borrowers will be given 15 years to amortize the loans. A moratorium on principal may be granted in justifiable cases up to a maximum of three years.

Credit for introduction of the redemption clause is given to Charles A. Jones, promoted manager of the local office, and Paul J. Frizzell, former assistant manager, who is taking his place.

Mortgagees of the relieved homes will receive $250,000 in bonds in exchange for their mortgages. Interim certificates will take the place of the bonds until the latter are printed.

Gas Hearing Waits on New Utilities Head

Gen. Patrick Gets Praise From Associates at Farewell Ceremony.

Failure of President Roosevelt to appoint a successor to Maj. Gen. Mason M. Patrick, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, yesterday, led to another postponement of the gas valuation hearing scheduled to open tomorrow.

As only one commissioner would have sat at the hearing, the commission announced it would be postponed, subject to call on two weeks' notice.

Gen. Patrick yesterday bade farewell to the commission staff at a ceremony presided over by B. M. Bachman, chief accountant.

The work of Gen. Patrick was praised by Riley E. Elgin, vice chairman, and Engineer Commissioner Gotwals. Dr. Luther H. Reichelderfer, chairman of the board of District Commissioners, expressed the good wishes of his associates.

Higher Taxicab Fares Make Drivers Smile

Elated taxicab drivers last night saw Washington's far-flung 20-cent zone reduced by new rates which bear promise of restoring living wages, long missing from the hacker's lot.

While passengers will pay slightly more for their taxi rides henceforth, the increase will go solely to the drivers of the cabs. In drafting the new rates the signing companies allowed drivers to receive all the increase in revenue, it was disclosed.

Although it was generally conceded the number of hauls under new rates likely will be reduced, it was felt the hackers would benefit materially in income. The loss will be more than made up, officials said, by elimination of long return trips for only 20 cents fare.

New 30-Cent Zone.

The rates center principally on establishment of a new 30-cent zone within the former limits of the 20-cent area. The new 20-cent zone will be bounded by D street southwest to Florida avenue on the north, and from Twenty-second street on the west to Eighth street northeast on the east. The 30-cent zone embraces the area between these limits and the previous boundary of the 20-cent zone. Beyond are 50 and 70 cent zones.

In many instances cab companies have lengthened the outlying zones to give passengers advantages in exchange for the new rates. In all cases only 20 cents will be charged if a cab remains in one zone on a run. Another advantage of the new system is elimination of differing rates by different companies. Confusion is removed by the new rates, officials said.

Richmond B. Keech, people's counsel, who has waged a long fight to better conditions for hackers, reported drivers were enthusiastic about the new rates.

Estimated Gain Shown.

Keech reported one hacker had computed his actual runs of one night on the basis of the new rates and found he would obtain $2.15 more for his work.

No definite figures as to what hackers actually have been making on the old rate exist, Keech said, but is was generally conceded "the hacker's life is not a happy one." Long hours for little pay has been the general rule.

Company officials were equally pleased with the prospect as they felt it would make drivers more contented.

Help Caucus Held For East Capital

Social Work Heads Meet at Charities Branch.

Leaders of social work, representing churches, schools, parent-teacher associations, the Police Department and other welfare groups, met with the East Washington branch of the Associated Charities yesterday at the branch office, 701 A street southeast. Mrs. E. H. Griffith presided.

Miss Louise O. Beall, assistant secretary of the Associated Charities, discussed plans for the winter. Miss Winifred A. Muffin, in charge of the new East Washington office of the emergency relief division, spoke.

Mrs. Mary V. Lewis, chairman, made a report for the East Washington Conference. Miss Janet Hall, secretary, made a report for the Transeastern Conference, which meets in Anacostia.

The secretary, Miss Helen P. Story, in her annual report, stated 108 residents of East Washington had given volunteer service to the Associated Charities in various ways from October, 1932, to June, 1933.

Auto Brigade Aids In Church Work

Persons unable to attend St. Luke's Episcopal Church at Bladensburg because they lack transportation will be called for and taken home by the Men's Club of the church.

Under the leadership of Basil Pickett, chairman, the social service committee is forming an automobile brigade.

The committee includes Dr. Embert A. LeLacheur, Magruder Rea and the Rev. Robert Lee Lewis, rector of the church. The committee plans to do welfare and other social service work.

H. S. Wood Will Head Hygiene Committee

Herbert S. Wood has been named chairman of the committee on education of the Social Hygiene Society and will undertake, as the first task of the committee's fall program, to prepare a new health course for secondary colored schools. Dr. G. David Houston, principal of Armstrong High School, is committee chairman in charge of the development.

On the committee with Wood are G. C. Wilkinson, assistant superintendent of schools; Prof. D. W. Willard, of George Washington University; the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy, Miss Esther Scott and Dean Lucy D. Slowe.

Dr. E. J. Scott to Talk At Legion Convention

Dr. Emmett J. Scott, secretary of Howard University, yesterday was invited to address the American Legion convention at Chicago this week, the Associated Press reports. This, he said, will be the first speech "delivered by a colored citizen from the platform of an American Legion convention in behalf of colored veterans." Scott was a special assistant to the Secretary of War during the World War.

Visitors Laud Charm of New Post Homes

Beauty of the Houses Is Enhanced by Fine Trees in Front.

Entering the third week as Post Model Homes, with three homes already purchased, the group of four semidetached "budget balancing" homes in Tunlaw terrace continue to win the plaudits of crowds of visitors. These homes at 2121 to 2129 Tunlaw road, one block south of Thirty-seventh street and Wisconsin avenue, are offered by Waverly Taylor, Inc., the owners and builders, at $8,750, a most unusual value, according to competent authorities.

Many comments have been heard regarding the beauty of the architecture, the refinement of the details, the obvious thought that has been given to the unique plan and the quality and completeness of the equipment.

One of the outstanding features offered is the opportunity to balance the family budget through the purchase of one of these homes. This is possible through rental of the studio suite on the ground floor, consisting of a large room opening from the entrance hall, a private bath and commodious storage closet.

The studio room is paneled in knotty pine and has an oak floor, early American mantel and sand-finish plastered ceiling. Its size and convenient location, its privacy and comfort, will make it desirable for any young employed couple, Georgetown University students, young business men or as an artist's studio.

Private Entrance to Studio.

Waverly Taylor, architect of these homes, is well qualified by his long training and experience in home building to know what the homeseeker of today wants and to anticipate his desires. The Georgian architecture lends itself admirably to the English basement entrance. This plan provides a private entrance to the studio suite and direct entrance by inside stairs to the owner's living room, dining room and kitchen on the floor above.

Both the living room and dining room have cross ventilation, concealed radiators and numerous electric outlets. There is a real fireplace with colonial mantel in the living room and a radio outlet connected to a concealed antenna.

There is a large side porch, fully screened with aluminum screen wirecloth, which will not rust or stain the woodwork from weathering. This porch opens off the dining room, through a French door and is high above the street, affording great privacy.

Kitchen Cooling System.

The kitchen is fully equipped, with double drainboard sink and cabinets below, a vanity cabinet with Venetian mirror and electric clock. There is a modern table-top range with hood and electric light above, built-in kitchen cabinet, electric refrigerator, broom closet and several storage cabinets. A ventilation system has been installed to draw in a constant current of fresh, cool air through the kitchen and exhaust hot air at the ceiling.

On the second floor are two large bedrooms with a cedar closet in each. In the hall is a linen closet with built-in clothes hamper.

The bathroom is beautifully tiled with pale-green wall tile, black trim and black and white floor. The fixtures are refreshingly modern and there is a towel closet with mirror door.

The ceiling space above the second floor is insulated with Cabot's double-ply quilt, for comfort in the summer and to prevent heat loss in the winter. In addition, there is a unique ventilating system to insure constant cross-ventilation.

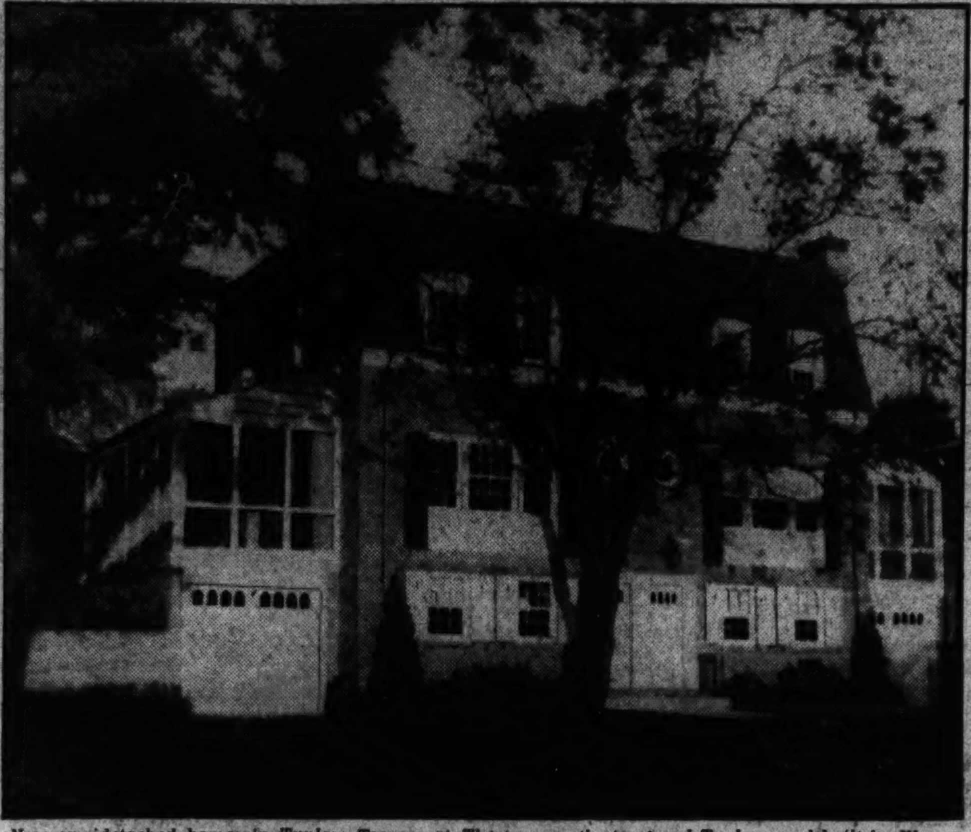
Fine Trees Add Charm.

There is a service room in the basement, with laundry tubs, domestic hot water heater and heating plant. A door at one end opens into an area with steps leading to the rear yard. At the side of the house and under the porch is an attached brick garage, with entrance from the front. The garage door is the convenient overhead type and was especially designed to match the front door in detail

The rear yards form private gardens with an interesting garden wall in the rea. These will be not only safe places for children to play but delightful, shaded spots on summer afternoons. In front of the houses there are several fine walnut and locust trees that add much to the beauty of the homes. The beautiful walnut tree shown in the accompanying picture is one of those from which Tunlaw road derived its name, by spelling "Walnut" backwards. The front yards have a slightly rolling terrace and are finished with a low brick retaining wall at the sidwalk.

The houses will be open for inspection daily from 9:30 a. m. to 9:30 p. m. They can be reached by driving out Massachusetts avenue to Observatory Circle, following the circle around to Davis street thence to Wisconsin avenue and south on Thirtyseventh street, about two blocks south of Mt. Alto Hospital. From the downtown area they can be reached by way of Q street through Georgetown, thence north on Thirty-fifth street and Thirty-seventh streets through Burleith to the corner of Tunlaw road.

Attractive Fronts of "Budget Balancing" Model Homes



New semidetached homes in Tunlaw Terrace at Thirty-seventh street and Tunlaw road built by Waverly Taylor, Inc., and sponsored by The Washington Post. These "budget-balancing" homes are so designated because of the low price of $8,750 and the studio suite on the first floor which may be rented to supplement income.

Unique Plans Mark Homes At Foxhall

Lightbown Development Is Distinguished by Electric Features.

Cooper Lightbown & Son have featured in their latest development in Foxhall, at Foxhall road and P street, the General Electric kitchen. Mr. Lightbown, who has constructed many palatial residences in Palm Beach, has designed and built these homes, incorporating many distinctive features not usually found in residences of moderate price.

Foxhall, known for the unusual character of its homes, is ideally located on a high elevation with adequate transportation facilities, is close to schools, stores and churches and is easily accessible from the city. The architecture of these new English brick homes is marked by a variety of treatment with slate roofs, stucco bays, green shutters and rustic, concrete, covered porches, adding individuality to group design. The homes are set back on terraced lawns with brick retaining walls, and enjoy an attractive view of the city.

The first floor contains a large living room with open fireplace and mantel, cozy dining room and General Electric kitchen, papered in Sanitas with built-in cabinets and trimmed in cream and orange with a harmonizing linoleum pattern on the floor. In the basement is a finished recreation room with heating plant, laundry, servant's toilet and, in some homes, a built-in garage.

Beauty and Convenience.

The second floor contains three attractive bedrooms with spacious wardrobe closets and a tile bath in cream and black with built-in fixtures and Sanitas walls.

The beauty and convenience of the General Electric kitchen is one of the high points of interest to the housewife and the builders have realized the strong sales advantage of this feature.

The large G-E Monitor Top refrigerator is of modern design with steel cabinet and porcelain finish. The G-E Hotpoint electric range eliminates all guess work, uncertainty and hit-or-miss methods of cooking.

Sound construction is evident in the many quality features in these new Foxhall homes. Insulation, concealed radiators, copper screens downspouting and weatherstripping hardwood floors and furred walls

Model Home Handy Presents Contains Many New Features

Furnished Chevy Chase Dwelling Praised by Visitors.

Public reaction has been favorable to the furnished model home presented by Levin P. Handy. Visitors to this attractive dwelling at 3408 Garrison street, in Chevy Chase, D. C., have been generous in their praise. The house is open for inspection daily until 9 p. m.

The home is furnished by Hutchison's, Inc., and the draperies are by John F. Ligon. It is of all-brick construction with slate roof. It is arranged on the popular center-hall plan.

The house is desirable by reason of its large rooms, two colored tile baths with shower, tub and linen closet. There are three bedrooms, two having cedar closets.

The kitchen is the latest in arrangement and equipment. It contains a closet unit and a double sink, extending the length of the room.

Among numerous features are an attic, copper screening and metal weatherstripping, electric refrigeration, automatic storage water heater, porch off the living room, space for recreation room and a two-car garage. The front is adorned with evergreens.

To view this, drive out Connecticut avenue to Fessenden street, turn right one square to Thirty-fourth street and north one short square to Garrison street.

The dwelling, according to Mr. Handy's office, established the newest standard of value for the year in that it is a home of the $20,000 class and, in a $20,000 type neighborhood, offered at $11,950.

How to Judge Windows Told By Government

Details of Construction Explained to Assure Best Results.

There are many interesting points about the windows of a home. These are enumerated by Nelson S. Perkins in his work, "How to Judge a House," published by the United States Department of Commerce. Much has been written about windows with regard to appearance, light, wall space and ventilation. Now for some of the details of their construction:

The exposed portions of the frame and the sash preferably should be heartwood from such durable species as red cypress, genuine white pine, redwood, edge-grained Douglas fir or Southern pine, but other woods, although often less durable, may be used.

In most cases window sash will be of the common double-hung type, where the lower sash slides up and the upper one slides down. The choice between double-hung sash and casements is largely a matter of the most appropriate window for the type of house. With casements you can utilize the full window opening for ventilation.

Ventilation Made Easy.

One advantage of double-hung windows, however, lies in the ease with which ventilation can be effected in bad weather. On even stormy days you can ventilate without danger of water beating in to ruin draperies. Such windows readily are screened and usually are fairly weather-tight.

Since, however, there is always a certain amount of play between windows and frames, it is economical to have them weather-stripped. The extra cost may be repaid by the saving in fuel and by the added comfort on cold, windy days.

This applies also to doors, and most particularly to casements. Interlocking metal weather strips should be placed around the edges. Weather stripping should not interfere with easy operation of doors or windows. Open and shut every window and door in the house to be sure they all work properly and there is not too much play in the sash.

The meeting rails, where the upper and lower sash are locked together, may have a joint that is straight, stepped, or beveled. The latter two bring the sash together when the window is locked and give the most weather-tight joints. The under side of the lower sash should be thoroughly puttied and painted to exclude moisture from the wood. Most commercial mills of today make window frames and sash of good water-tight construction.

Other Precautions Told.

It is a good idea to raise shades of all windows to assure yourself there are no cracked windowpanes, and the shades operate correctly.

You may find some casement windows in the house you are inspecting. These are hung to open as doors and often are intimately allied with the style of architecture. If they swing inward, they are extremely hard to make water-tight, so look carefully for signs of leaks and stained woodwork or plaster.

A rain drip along the lower rail, or horizontal member of the sash, is necesssary to turn water running down the sash away from the joint between the window and the sill. Outswinging casements require special types of screens, placed on the inside. If these are not included, you will be wise to inquire as to their cost before buying the house. Wood casements are preferably 1¾ inches thick, the same as exterior doors.

With wood sash, examine the window sills and the sash for any signs of decay. If steel sash is used, check over carefully for signs of rust and for bent window frames which admit drafts. Light a match to find out if you can detect a draft around the windows and also along the base board of exterior walls. Stains or discolorations on the walls around the window trim probably have been caused by dust and soot blowing through cracks and crevices in window framing.

Note the kind of glass in the windows. Is it clear and flawless, or do you see wavy or distorted lines when you look at distant objects? Also see if the putty which holds the glass is applied neatly and thoroughly around the pane and is painted.

Building Permits.

Permits to build issued last week by the Office of District Building Inspector Oehmann included those for the following structures:

Maier Development Co., two-and-one-half-story brick residence at 1925 Minnesota avenue southeast; cost, $18,000.

Federal Trade Board to Hold Mortgage Quiz

Hearings on Exemption Act Start Here Tomorrow.

Request of the National Association of Real Estate Boards for broader exemptions for mortgages under the securities act and for cutting unnecessary red tape in qualifying mortgages for exemption will come before the Federal Trade Commission. The hearing will be held here tomorrow morning, beginning at 10 o'clock.

It will be upon regulations promulgated by the commission July 27.

The regulations, exempting the ordinary, small first mortgage from the need of registration at Washington under the act, were issued following a request for mortgage exemption made by the association in a brief filed July 20.

Unnecessary difficulties presented in actual practice by the regulation, as reported by members of the association in various types of mortgage activity, were reviewed at a meeting called at association headquarters September 19.

The association, in its brief of July 20, held that mortgages, which are not specifically mentioned in the act, were not intended to be covered, and should, by a well-recognized principle of law, be held not covered. It asked that, in any case, mortgages and trust deeds not exceeding $100,000 valuation be exempted from registration on the basis that such registration is not needed in the public interest.

Levin Handy's Model Home Wins Applause

Garrison Street Exhibit Has Handsome Furniture and Rich Draperies.

Washington's latest furnished model home, at 3408 Garrison street northwest, has attracted much attention. The exhibit is by Levin P. Handy, the furnishings by Hutchinson's, Inc., and the draperies by John F. Ligon.

The living room is furnished with a Charles of London sofa and chair to match. Both pieces are covered with a very fine grade of green tapestry. In contrast to the green suite, you will find a fireside wing chair covered in gold damask and solid mahogany.

One finds a very lovely Duncan Phyfe tilt-top table in solid mahogany, bound in satin wood, also a solid walnut table coffee table by Duncan Phyfe. A secretary desk of Gov. Winthrop period and mahogany is in the center of the room. The radio is of the latest type Philco model with remote control.

There are several novelty end-tables worth notice as well as an assortment of lamps.. Over the mantel there is an American Victory mirror which is a replica of a convex mirror given to George Washington by his soldiers. The rugs are domestic oriental of deep rose.

Fine Venetian Mirror.

In the dining room there is a very beautiful mahogany suite, consisting of a Duncan Phyfe table, chairs with blue haircloth seats, a Sheraton buffet with a tilt-top server to match. Over the buffet hangs a round Venetian mirror with a beautiful scroll frame in gold. The rug is a domestic, Oriental of Persian design.

The master bedroom contains a very handsome six-piece twin bed suite, finished in walnut. There is a bureau, a vanity dressing table and a bench. The floor is covered with handsome hooked rugs of shade and color to match the general color scheme of the draperies.

The guest room contains a five-piece curly maple suite, consisting of a double bed, dresser and chest of drawers. The rugs are oval and of Colonial, woven chenille, corresponding with the draperies and general color scheme. The lamps are of hobnail type with parchment shades trimmed with blue tassels.

Draperies Lend Charm.

The third bedroom is a Colonial reproduction in mahogany, consisting of a four-piece solid suite. There is a four-poster bed with open-end footboard, a lowboy of the knee-hold type with a Chippendale mirror hanging over it; a tall, narrow chest with a portable mirror on top.

The hobnail lamp on the bedside table corresponds with an old, hammered brass lamp with a glass chimney which is a reproduction of an old oil lamp on the lowboy. The rugs in this room are oval chenille, mottled colors with green predominating.

The living-room draperies are made of various colored brocades with taupe predominating. There are glass curtains and bungalow net. In the dining room the draperies are made of various colored brocades blending from dark to a lighter shade of blue. In the master bedroom are green satin draperies.

All draperies are made with French pleats and make a most attractive appearance in this home.

Home District Plan Outlined For Dr. Sachs

Proposal Is Told in Detail in Letter Received From Herbert U. Nelson.

A new home district plan has been outlined in a memorandum addressed by Herbert U. Nelson, Chicago, executive secretary, National Association of Real Estate Boards, to Dr. Alexander Sachs, National Recovery Administration.

To encourage home building and home buying, it is shown, some new plan or factor is needed which will assist in creating a homelike neighborhood atmosphere in cities. While zoning ordinances have been designed to do this, they have been superimposed on existing uses, have made too many allowances for nonresidential uses and, as a consequence, largely have failed of their purpose. As a result, cities are filled with blighted districts and with ruined or only partially developed subdivisions.

Under the home district plan it is proposed to set aside certain areas or neighborhoods in or near cities for single-family residences only. Each home district would be subject to a central corporate control both as to its planning, development and its maintenance.

Requires Legislation.

This will require new State legislation. Such a State statute would provide:

1. That when a majority of the property owners, owning a majority of the area in a district consisting of contiguous properties not less than 20 acres in extent and capable of becoming a home district, petition the State housing or local planning authority for the privilege of forming such a district, the matter shall be reviewed by such authority and if approved the district shall come into being and shall be delimited or defined.

2. That petitioners within the district shall proceed to organize a home district corporation, the character of which shall be clearly defined in a statute. This corporation shall, according to specified procedure, appraise all of the property in the district, both that of petitioners and nonpetitioners.

3. That the corporation shall have the right to issue first lein nonconvertible, tax exempt bonds on all the property on which it holds title, such bonds to be offered to mortgagees in exchange for their present mortgages and also to be sold for the purpose of securing funds for development.

4. That since the purpose of the district is to create a homogeneous neighborhood of homes, all nonconforming uses within the entire district, both that of petitioners and nonpetitioners, shall cease within a period of ten years.

Plan for Development.

5. The corporation shall proceed to make a plan for development of the entire home district, indicating necessary public spaces, replanning of streets, grouping of homes.

6. The corporation shall then negotiate with nonpetitioners and with the owners of property devoted to nonconforming uses, seeking to exchange second lien bonds for such properties.

7. Such corporation shall continue to own and operate all the property in the district when eventually acquired for a period of at least 25 years and as long thereafter as the majority of its stockholders desire.

8. The home district corporation shall have the right to conduct such community services as the stockholders desire and as would be in conformity with local city charters, typical services being collection of garbage, maintenance of streets, sidewalks, lawns, playgrounds, parks, &c.

Fair and Sound Basis of Home Values Is Urged

"The average man can no more discern real property values in a period of depression than he can see the skyline of a city in a fog. At present time current market price of every parcel of real estate in the United States is far below the trend of real estate values for the past two decades.

"This does not mean that the long-time value of real estate is correctly reflected by these prices. The property can not be measured by means of present-day selling prices.

"The greatest need of all home owners today, greater than emergency financing, urgent and vital as we know this to be, is a restoration of a fair, sound basis of residential values. This is the main essential to a recovery of normal market activity in residential property. Responsibility for accomplishing this rests primarily upon the appraiser."

Arthur J. Mertzke, economist to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, so states in an article on valuation principles as applied to residential property to appear in the current issue of the Journal of American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

"Unable to distinguish between prices and values, popular attitude toward real estate tends to go from one extreme to the other," Dr. Mertzke states. "In a period of depression, the true appraiser has the pleasant task of seeing beyond the illusion of the moment and pointing out vital elements of real estate values which emerge, unharmed, from every period of depression. To make appraisals of this character requires understanding and courage."

A present-day appraisal of a home made by comparing selling prices of neighboring properties "has no validity beyond the date it is made," Dr. Mertzke asserts. "Under no circumstance should such an estimate be labeled to convey the impression that the figure arrived at represents the value of the property for a term of years."

'David Harum' Plan of Realty Valuation Hit

Price Too Often Accepted for Value, Securities Group Informed.

Securities commissioners meeting at Milwaukee in annual convention were given a detailed account of the new American Institute of Real Estate Appraisal of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, heard also why real estate valuation must not be so based, as too often in the past, "upon the result of a David Harum scene between Tom, Dick and Harry."

The account, by Philip W. Kniskern, of New York, was read in Mr. Kniskern's absence by John P. Hooker, Chicago.

"We have too often accepted price for value, without sufficient breakdown to eliminate conditions—as for example whims, trading ability and what not—that affect price but are utterly lacking in influence upon real values," the institute president brought out.

As the new Home Owners Loan Corporation proceeds with organization of its appraisal staff, in at least two States the entire local membership of the institute as such has been taken boldly into its group of approved appraisers, Mr. Kniskern said.

With determination of true normal value of homes now the key of the whole loan corporation program, and appraisal the crux of the whole national movement toward home financing, the institute is giving the coming issue of its quarterly journal largely to methods and aids in appraising single family residences under today's conditions.

District Lawyer Traces Blue Eagle to Bible

Nathan B. Williams, Washington lawyer, found it in Revelations, Chapter 13, verses 16 and 17. The quotations are:

"And he caused all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand, or on their foreheads.

"And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name."

Deposit Insurance Firm Of U. S. Leases Offices

Leasing of office space in the National Press Building by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, as first forecast in The Washington Post on September 28, has been confirmed, as Chief Justice Wheat of the District of Columbia Supreme Court has approved a petition of Lawrence B. Campbell, receiver of the National Press Building Corporation, filed through his attorney, Walter M. Bastian, to lease space to this new Government organization.

Information is that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation will lease an entire floor of the National Press Building and probably additional space after removal of present tenants now in this space to other locations in that building.

All-Gas Home Joins Quality With Design

Charming Bungalow at Randle Highlands Has Every Convenience.

U. S. Randle, developer and owner of Randle Highlands, in his newest operation has featured his latest model home at 1804 Twenty-eighth street southeast, as an "all-gas home." This brick dwelling of English design with slate roof, concrete-covered front porch and wing with stucco half-timbered gable, has beauty of design in a residence of moderate price.

Of bungalow type, it varies from the conventional. The spacious living room, with open fireplace, connects through an archway with the bright dining room. There is a modern kitchen, completely equipped, white tile bath with built-in fixtures, and two attractive bedrooms.

A disappearing stairway leads to a floored attic, which may be converted into an extra bedroom or used for storage space. There is an entrance from the kitchen to a service porch. The large, concrete cellar contains laundry trays and heating plant. The home is set back on a terraced lawn, beautifully landscaped with a winding flagstone walk.

Refrigerator a Feature.

The kitchen, with built-in cabinets grouped about a one-piece porcelain sink with drainboard, modern gas range and Electrolux gas refrigerator, is so arranged as to provide maximum efficiency for the home manager. The walls and cabinets are in green and buff with black trimming.

The Electrolux gas refrigerator introduces a new principle of freezing, whereby a tiny gas flame does all the work.

For laundry, kitchen and bath an abundant supply of hot water is always on tap from the automatic gas storage water heater. Even temperature is maintained by means of a positive snap-action thermostat, and its operation is marked by the utmost economy.

In this home the purchaser also may have an automatic gas house-heating boiler, the most modern and convenient heating unit. Thoroughly insulated with thermostat pilot protected from moisture and dirt, it is silent, economical and automatic with a constant supply of fuel, eliminating all inconvenience and care. Room temperatures are controlled through a room thermostat, which may be set at desired temperatures day and night.

A House of Quality.

In every detail of design, construction and equipment highest-quality materials and skilled craftsmanship were used to achieve a home outstanding in every respect. Insulation, hardwood floors, copper screens, weatherstripping and a host of other features used in homes much higher in price show the desire of the builder to give the purchaser the benefit of the best home construction.

This "all-gas home" at 1804 Twenty-eighth street southeast is reached by driving out Pennsylvania avenue to Twenty-eighth street southeast and turning right. Representatives are in attendance daily until 9 p. m.

Racine Library Holds Priceless Editions

Among the valuable books are a first edition of Martin Luther's writings and sermons, printed in 1565 in London; lectures on the "Fourth of John," by Ashby-De la Zouch, published in London in 1628; and a first edition of the works of Martin Luther in German, published in 1531.

Bisons Drill Hard For St. Paul Battle

Coach Verdell is sending his Bison squad at Howard University through a fast pace to round them into shape for a clash with the St. Paul Tigers, of Lawrenceville, Va., October 14.

Skelton, Hart and Batch, newcomers, are giving strong competition. Batch is making a spectacular bid for quarter, having demonstrated rare form in kicking and passing.

Jackson, Joe Sewell and Capt. "Tarzan" Johnson will be mainstays in the back field, "Showboat" Ware not having presented himself as yet. Verdell is short of veteran material on the line, having only Cole, Magruder and Tom Walker, last year's centers, and Chandler and Magruder to bolster the front wall.

Prisoners Escape Jail Using Garbage Can

Athens, Ohio (U.P.).—Garbage cans have their uses, even if they are used to escape from a county jail. Willard Grimes and Bert Vargo, inmates at county jail here, employed a garbage can to escape. Grimes hid in the can; Vargo carried it outside the jail yard. There both fled.

Farms Still Run On Feudal System

600-Year-Old Methods in British Parish.

The only parish in Britain where this system is continued is divided into three great fields, owned by Lord Manvers, and the tenants plow, sow and reap scattered strips of land in each field exactly as their forefathers did in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries.

A man who drives the cattle on and off the common land is the pinder, elected periodically—an office that dates back to the twelfth century. A family living in the village until a few years ago had actually acquired the surname of Pinder.

The village was first mentioned in the Domesday book, although its establishment dates from Saxon times, when the three-field system of farming is thought to have been introduced to this country.

Gruver Houses Set New Mark In Building

Group of Thirty-ninth Street Homes Praised for Quality.

Few residential offerings have proved as popular as the latest of B. H. Gruver. These houses mark a new high point in fine construction. Their present showing in the Glover Park Heights section draws groups of visitors daily. The presentation is featured by a sample house at 2448 Thirty-ninth street northwest.

These homes are full of interesting features, enhancing their quality. They are 18 and 20 feet in width and contain eight rooms, two baths and a recreation room. They are of all-brick construction and have concrete front porches and beautifully terraced yards with brick retaining walls.

They contain spacious living rooms, large dining rooms, sun parlors with built-in book shelves and perfect kitchens with the complete cabinet equipment, including Quality insulated ranges and Westinghouse refrigerators.

Half Block From School.

The homes are beautified with natural trim throughout. They are outfitted with cedar closets, colored tile baths and large recreation rooms with stippled walls. They are thoroughly screened, metal weather-stripped and equipped with built-in garages.

Their location in the 2400 block of Thirty-ninth street northwest is in a high, healthful section of select homes, 10 minutes from Dupont Circle and a half-block from a new school. They are reached by driving out Massachusetts avenue to Wisconsin avenue, north to Calvert street and left to Thirty-ninth street.

Rapid Sales Forecast.

Rapid sales are forecas for these homes, as they are "B. H. Gruver Built." This term means excellence in construction and planning. Mr. Gruver's successful career as a builder of thousands of homes backs the trademark. The remaining reasons are to be found in many details of refinement and equipment.

Mr. Gruver has been one of the foremost builders of homes for more than a quarter of a century, and has established entirely new standards of value. He has produced substantial savings to the purchaser in these homes, surpassing the long established standards of his organization.

What Today Means

"Libra."

If October 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 to 9:30 a. m., from 2 to 3 p. m. and from 6:45 to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 10 to 11:15 a. m., from 5 to 5:30 p. m. and from 9 to 10 p. m.

Influences operating on this date will quite possibly prove of a disturbing nature. Parents will be troubled about their children, and often with reason, for the little ones on this day will be less apprehensive of danger than is usual. Matters of detail will be slighted and badly handled. Servants will be awkward.

The child born on this October 1 will be inclined to have frequent outbursts of temper. He can never be counted on to behave properly, and often, when good actions are highly desirable, he will fail terribly.

If October 1 is the date of your birth, there are probably few people that come your way that you really like. Most of them you treat with cool and often cutting indifference. Toward those you really like, you can be most gracious and cordial. You realize your own faults and shortcomings, readily admit them and do your very best to overcome them. You will not find it so easy to make up your mind about your life work; more than likely many avenues will be open to you for which you have ample qualifications, but you lack the power of decision. Even after you have made up your mind on any set course of action, there is little probability of your continuing along that line.

Born on October 1 you are perhaps inclined to think too much of those of the opposite sex; particularly is this true of the men who seem to look on themselves very often as "lady-killers." Many of these women are attractive, but they are at times prone to overestimate themselves and leave themselves open to rude awakenings. It is possible that you will not see the serious side of life until you have married and become a parent. Your parental responsibilities you will not slight.

Home Building Plan Is Offered To Aid Idle

Executive of Realty Board Asks Use of Public Credit.

A memorandum on the use of public credit for home building has been prepared by J. C. Nichols, chairman, Land Development and Home Builders Committee, National Association of Real Estate Boards, Hugh Potter president-elect of the association, and Herbert U. Nelson, its executive secretary.

Land development and home building employment normally, in many cities, represents from 40 to 60 per cent of all construction labor. It gives more continuity of employment than any other type of construction and together with house equipment affects more crafts, manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers, Mr. Nichols explains.

Mr. Nelson placed before administration officials recently a proposal for new State legislation to authorize home districts, by which blighted areas, now found in practically all cities, might be reclaimed as single family residence districts. This plan has been under development for more than a year.

Conditions for Loans.

It is suggested that loans be made for home building on the following conditions:

1. Loans to be made only to individuals and companies able to show good business standing, successful experience, and high quality of past work.
2. Homes built to be sold by the builder under appropriate lease or contract arrangement and title to be held by the builder as security for the advances from the Government.
3. Loans to be made up to 15 years and to be amortized to 50 per cent of original amount.
4. Building sites, as far as possible, to be contiguous and arranged in accordance with a community, neighborhood or group plan.
5. Preference to be given to projects in which no extensive land assembly is necessary.
6. Sites not to exceed $2,000 in the final sales price to the home buyer, except in very unusual cases.
7. Home sites to contain not less than 5,000 square feet and to have not less than 40-foot frontage.

Value of Improvements.

8. Preference to be given projects where street improvements are already installed and utilities immediately available.
9. Sites to be restricted to single family dwellings for 25 years and until owners by majority agree to change.
10. Preference to be given projects where home owners are organized for maintenance of neighborhood amenities, control of architecture and protection of neighborhood values.
11. Value of improvements to be at least two and one-half times the value of the site.
12. Dwellings to be single family, free standing, modern, well-built and of good design.
13. Home builder should make reasonable showing as to need and probable market for dwellings and be able to provide junior financing.
14. Building lines, side yards and percentage of land coverage should be in keeping with the best practice of the community.

New Views.

Taken From the Christian Science Monitor.

All who at this period attempt to follow the rapid flow of new opinions and theories must be aware of a mental flurry comparable to the sensation of being out of breath. Diverse phases of the complex human problem are engaging the attention of thinkers in many lands. As one glances over the fields of art, medicine, theology and what is termed science, amazing changes of outlook may be noted. Premises once considered immovable are veering; positions long tenaciously held are being proved untenable; conclusions regarded as final are being overturned. Long-established forms of government have in some instances been swept away, and some notable changes in the social order are manifest. Many today feel themselves in a changing world and are inclined to fear the strangeness.

In the beautiful thirteenth chapter of I Corinthians, Paul writes, "Whether there be prophecies, they shall fail; whether there be tongues, they shall cease; whether there be knowledge, it shall vanish away." Henry Drummond, analyzing this chapter in his book, "The Greatest Thing in the World," points out that Paul shows the transitory nature of the things of earth, and leads thought on to the sublime conclusion that "Love never faileth." He comments thus: "A schoolboy today knows more than Sir Isaac Newton knew; his knowledge has vanished away. . . You buy the old editions of great encyclopedias for a few cents; their knowledge has vanished away. . . And in every branch of science it is the same. . . There is a great deal in the world that is delightful and beautiful. . . great and engrossing; but it will not last. . . . But what is certain is that Love must last. God, the eternal God, is Love."

Those assured of this great fact know quietness of heart and temporal changes consequent on the passing into oblivion of many phases of an old order. Those who know something of Christian Science are not only undisturbed but full of hope and good cheer. "Mistaken views ought to be dissolving views," writes Mary Baker Eddy in "Miscellaneous Writings" (p. 290), "since whatever is false should disappear." The very fact that former beliefs and theories no longer satisfy, that they have not stood the test of emergency, is proof that they were not posited on Truth. Viewed in this light the present world upheaval, then, is a reason for gratitude and rejoicing, for it proves that through all vicissitudes human thought must continue to strive for a solid basis for its hope, until it finds rest in God.

But what of the future, to which many may be looking with apprehension? Mrs. Eddy, who foresaw Truth's destruction of error, and the disturbance incident thereto, in conditions such as are now testing the courage of mankind, had so clear a vision of the verities of being that she could write in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" (p. 66): "Trials are proofs of God's care. . . . Each successive stage of experience unfolds new views of divine goodness and love."

So the forward look should not be a fearful peering into imaginary darkness, but an upward look of joyous anticipation. Travelers cheerfully brave rough roads and hard climbing in order to win a vantage point from which to behold a beautiful view; and pilgrims on the ascending road of experience will find themselves more than compensated for any seeming hardship by the loveliness of spiritual views constantly being revealed to their clearer gaze. This is true in its most practical sense, as many grateful hearts can testify. Some who in recent years have encountered hardships previously undreamed of declare with sincere gratitude that in every situation, no matter how difficult, there has come to their awakened thought a fresh and sweet realization, a new view of the divine care which is far more tender than that which we associate with the protection of earthly parents. This has resulted from the better understanding of the nature of God brought to them by Christian Science.

The Apostle Paul had planned a missionary journey to Rome, but it was a roundabout way that took him there, and he reached the famous city as a prisoner. But in the long way traveled toward the place of his desire, how many wonderful views he has of God's infinite love and power! That night in the Philippian prison, when he and Silas, their feet in the stocks, sang praises and "the doors were opened, and everyone's bands were loosed!" The rescue from shipwreck and the protection from the bite of the viper at Melita! Paul must, indeed, have rejoiced as he reviewed these experiences in the quiet of the prison.

So, today, those walking in the clear light of Christian Science will not regret the overturning of human plans, nor hesitate on the brink of unfamiliar experiences; for to them the future signifies further unfoldment of the knowledge of God, a better understanding "of Him whom to know aright is Life eternal" (Science and Health, Pref., p. vii).

Permit Reports In 774 Cities Show Increase

Building Operations in August Gained 6 Per Cent Over July.

Building permit reports received by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor from 774 cities having a population of 10,000 or over indicate an increase of 6 per cent in the number of total building operations, but a decrease of 2.2 per cent in indicated expenditures for total building construction in August, as compared with July.

New residential buildings decreased 12.9 per cent in number, while indicated expenditures for such buildings decreased 11.3 per cent.

There was an increase of 7.3 per cent in the number of new nonresidential buildings comparing August with July and indicated expenditures for this type of building decreased 4.8 per cent.

There was an increase of 8.2 per cent in the number of additions, alterations and repairs, while indicated expenditures for this type of operation increased 10.3 per cent.

Comparing permits issued in 344 cities having a population of 25,000 or over, in August, 1933, and August, 1932, total building operations, while showing an increase of 2.2 per cent in number, registered a decrease of 14.4 per cent in indicated expenditures.

There was a decrease of 7.4 per cent in number but an increase of 4.7 per cent in indicated expenditures for new residential buildings.

New nonresidential buildings decreased 15.3 per cent in number and 41.3 per cent in estimated value.

There was an increase of 9.1 per cent in the number of additions, alterations and repairs. Expenditures for these repairs increased 21.7 per cent.

Permits were issued during August, 1933, for the following important building projects: In St. Louis, Mo., for a municipal office building to cost $3,100,000; in Endicott, N. Y., for factory building to cost $298,000; in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., for a hospital building to cost over $220,000; in Muskegon, Mich., for an amusement building to cost $280,000, and in Royal Oak, Mich., for a church to cost $250,000.

New Roosevelt Theater Adds To City Beauty

Electric Cooling System and Score Board Are Among Features.

The Roosevelt Theater, which opened within the past few days, in the heart of the Ninth street theatrical district, is a well-designed structure and a distinct contribution to Washington's architecture.

The building is 92 feet long, with a 33-foot frontage, seating 500, with 136 seats in the balcony. B. E. Freund was the architect, while D. E. Nichol was the builder.

It is a fireproof structure of steel and concrete and is modern throughout. The interior is trimmed in brown, white and green, while the exterior lobby is in white and walnut.

The chairs have red leather upholstery. Aluminum lighting fixtures give an attractive glow, and there are individual lights on every seat.

The theater has an electric cooling system and an indirect heating system. There is also a double entrance to the balcony, and on the mezzanine a ladies' lounge and men's smoking room.

In addition to R. C. A. sound apparatus, the Roosevelt boasts an electric score board which can be operated at the same time the picture is on the screen.

Stocks Resume Advances as Month Closes

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Stocks bade good-by to September and the third quarter with a smart closing rally today, although prior to the late trading prices had declined.

Short selling earlier this week, however, appeared to have given the market a backlog of potential support and presumably it was covering by recent sellers that in large measure accounted for the final upswing.

Several leading shares bogged down noticeably as the market rounded out its first hour. Consolidated Gas of New York made a new low for the year, under 40.

Gains of 2 Points.

New York Central and American Telephone both gave up around 2 points. But the latter rallied easily when pressure lifted, rising from 115⅛ to 120¼ for a net gain of 2¾. Central got back all but a nominal fraction of its loss and gas was up more than a point net.

Metal shares received a high polish from speculative buying. Homestake jumped 10, American Smelting more than 7, Kennecott, McIntyre, Dome, Alaska Juneau and Cerro de Pasco 1 to 3. U. S. Steel, American Can, Du Pont, General Motors, Western Union, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Chrysler, Case, Texas Corp., Ohio Oil and Sears Roebuck improved fractions to about a point and a half. Rails as a group were dull and steady. Sales totaled 1,008,380 shares, around the volume for recent Saturdays.

Markets heard various reports as to what the administration planned to do about the dollar; one suggestion was that the President would talk on currency matters soon, perhaps next week, but nothing definite developed.

Decline in September.

Stocks declined during September, thus moving counter to the trend which had been anticipated by those who were looking for post-Labor Day demonstrations of bullishness. The Standard Statistics-Associated Press composite lost just 10 points, ending the month at 78.1, compared with the July peak of 96.9.

That market performances reflected disappointment over slackening business conditions, problems incident to code operation and the waning hopes of currency inflationists is obvious, brokers are pointing out. The situation this fall is unusual in that it embraces so vast an experiment as NRA and the confusions which have arisen from monetary uncertainties.

Dollar exchange eased, but the changes were hardly of sufficient size to be significant. Our currency, as measured by the French gold franc, lost around 5½ cents during September on the basis of today's closing quotation, which represented a gold value of 65.22 cents. Earlier in the month it receded to nearly 63½ cents, then rallied as prospects for currency inflation dimmed.

The Mirage of Devaluation

Lowering Dollar Gold Content Does Not Raise Wages

By Ralph West Robey.

In spite of the dollar having been devalued in effect 35 per cent in the last five months, the majority of the people in this country still believe that a reduction of its gold content will give each of us a correspondingly larger number of dollars. Practically all of the current statements on stabilization reflect this view, regardless of whether they are made by those favoring quick deflation at the present level of 65 cents, or those who think we should go still farther and have only a 50-cent dollar.

Unfortunately it is not this easy to double the wealth of every one, and those who are working for a reduction of the dollar gold content on the assumption that it is, simply are following a mirage. Unless they realize their error, one of these days they will find that they had been misled and have supported a program directly contrary to their own interest.

They will find, in other words, that reducing the gold content of the dollar has just the opposite effect of what they now believe. They will discover that not only does it fail to give most of us any more dollars, but as well that it makes those dollars we have worth less—that, instead of enabling us to buy more goods and improve our standard of living, it undermines our purchasing power and makes it necessary for us to restrict our consumption.

Basis for Public Misunderstanding Is Simple.

The cause of this wholesale public misunderstanding of the effects of reducing the gold content of the dollar is comparatively easy to outline. The public has been told that a "dollar" in reality is just so much gold, the specific amount being 23.22 grains. Conversely, that in this country 23.22 grains of gold is a "dollar." Further, that this merely is the result of a law passed by Congress. All of this, in a technical sense, is true. Under normal conditions one can convert either any dollar into 23.22 grains of gold, or any 23.22 grains of gold into a dollar, as a result of the statutory provisions governing our currency.

Proponents of reducing the gold content of the dollar, however, do not stop at this point. They go ahead and draw conclusions that are completely unwarranted. Thus, they say that since a "dollar" is 23.22 grains of gold solely through legislative act, if Congress reduces the amount of gold by one-half, or to 11.61 grains, there obviously will be twice as many dollars. If one has $100 now, accordingly, they conclude, it is evident that with such a change he will have $200. This is so simple, they say, that they can not see how anyone can doubt it. Further, that the only reason we hesitate to take such action is because we have made a "fetish" of a dollar with 23.22 grains of gold in it.

Fails to Consider Most Significant Factor.

It is true that this line of reasoning is simple. That is its principal trouble. It is so simple that it completely leaves out of consideration the obvious fact that none of us has any gold—that in this country we use paper currency and checks and deposits for all of our business transactions. If this factor is included in the reasoning entirely different conclusions about the gold content of the dollar are reached.

Assume, for example, that one has $100. It makes no difference from the point of view of the argument whether this is in currency in his pocket, on deposit in a commercial bank, or in a savings bank. Under our old system these dollars could be taken to the Treasury and converted into 2,322 grains of gold—the equivalent of $100. With a reduction of the gold content of the dollar by 50 per cent and a return to the gold standard, they would be convertible into 1,161 grains—the new equivalent of $100, but still just $100.

Of course, if the $100 was in gold in the first instance as a result of the holder having hoarded gold, he would have an amount of metal equal under the new law to $200. Granting the Government was willing to take the metal at the old price, accordingly, he would have twice as many dollars as before the devaluation. The rest of us, however, still would have just our same old $100, with the difference that as a result of people becoming frightened by such currency tinkering and marking up prices, it would buy less.

When one hears some one preaching reduction of the gold content as a means for making us all have twice as many dollars, it is fitting to ask whether he is a gold hoarder, directly or indirectly, or just a person who, in his economic thinking, is trying to set a new record in hurdling the obvious.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Lead—Demand has picked up sharply, reflecting consumer buying well into the future. The more active market has stirred talk of an advance in quotations, which still hold at 4.50 cents a pound, New York, and 4.35 cents, East St. Louis.

Rice—Markets are strengthening in the South, acording to reports to local trade interests. Rough rice has been moving in good quantities into mill hands.

Flour—Fluctuations in wheat during the past few days have had but little effect on the flour price structure. Sellers continue to report a quiet consumer interest.

Salt—It is reported that wholesale grocers are showing an active interest in fine salt, apparently in connection with preparations for increasing stocks before adoption of the code, which may bring higher prices.

Cocoa—Trading in the spot product remains inactive, but some trade quarters hear that manufacturers' inquiries are increasing. Warehouse stocks of cocoa beans approximate 904,600 bags.

Furniture—Shipments by manufacturers during August were greater than in any month since October, 1931, according to Seidman & Seidman, accounts to the industry.

Clearing House Statement.

New York, Sept. 30 (A.P.).—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House shows: Total surplus and undivided profits, $734,692,700 (unchanged); total net demand deposits (average), $26,614,000 (decrease); time deposits (average), $4,851,000 (increase); clearings, week ending today, $2,837,127,649; clearings, week ending September 23, $3,136,152,449.

Wool Market.

Boston, Sept. 30 (A.P.) (U. S. Dept. of Agriculture).—Early in the past week some fairly good sized sales were closed in the wool market, but later demand was not quite so keen. Some houses, however, continued to transact a fair volume of business, especially on greasy combing domestic wool. Prices were very firm to slightly stronger, although the rising tendency was checked somewhat as the demand slackened. The market continued cheerful despite slower trade as some letup had been expected to follow the heavy buying of the past month.

British Tresaury Receipts.

London, Sept. 30 (A.P.).—Great Britain's treasury returns for the first half of the current financial year, completed tonight, showed a big improvement in the country's finances.

Revenues totaled £275,736,842 (about $1,296,000,000) and expenditures, £324,327,997 (about $1,525,000,000). Current deficit of £48,590,155 (about $228,374,000) is the lowest recorded in many years.

Bonds Decline One-Tenth in Quiet Trading

Fixed Income Loan Dealers Hug Side Lines; Sales, $4,152,000.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Dull and irregular price movements marked trading in bonds today as uncertainty continued to surround the Government's future fiscal program.

Most followers of fixed income securities generally hugged the side-lines while waiting for developments and sales totaled only $4,152,000, par value, the lowest Saturday aggregate in several weeks. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues eased one-tenth of a point.

While the utilities and industrials maintained a fairly even tone, some of the rails exhibited uneasiness. Carrier liens off fractionally to a point or more included some of Alleghany Corporation, Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, Erie, Southern Pacific, Southern, Iron Mountain and Wabash. Loans of Wabash, Pennsylvania, Missouri Pacific, Chesapeake Corporation and St. Paul rallied moderately.

Minor gains were recorded by bonds of Atlantic Refining, Bethlehem Steel, Texas Corporation, Standard Oil of New York and others. U. S. Rubber 5s gained 2¾ points. Issues of Consolidated Gas, Postal Telegraph, International Telephone, St. Joseph Lead and Warner Bros. eased.

There was little activity in the foreign section. Some obligations of Argentina, Dutch East Indies, France, Italy and Switzerland improved. Cuban government 5½s lost 2½ points following reports of further unsettled conditions in the republic. The Australians were off a point or more and the Germans were a bit lower.

United States Government maturities were mixed. Liberty 3½s and first 4¼s were slightly firmer, but most of the Treasuries sagged a trifle.

Oleomargerine Curbs Sought In Marketing

(Associated Press.)

Establishment of a uniform price relationship between oleomargarine and butter and limitation of manufacture of oleomargarine strictly to ingredients grown within Continental United States were proposed yesterday in a marketing agreement presented to the Farm Adjustment Administration.

It was submitted by the Institute of Margarine Manufacturers and included a statement that the industry desired to put oleomargarine manufacture on a domestic basis.

The institute said the use of foreign fats and oils in recent years had amounted to 135,000,000 pounds annually, which has had the effect of eliminating beef and pork fat, cottonseed and peanut oils from the margarine market.

The proposal stated that "on and after January 1, 1934, the manufacturers agreed they would use no fat or oil ingredient in manufacture of oleomargarine except animals and vegetables raised within the borders of the continental United States."

McCombs Is Made Berkshire Agent

J. E. "Bill" McCombs, one of the best known insurance men in the city, has been appointed general agent of Berkshire Life Insurance Co., of Pittsfield, Mass. Mr. McCombs will take over the agency today. For the past ten years he has been a special representative of Mutual Life Insurance Co., of New York.

He was born at Trinidad, Colo., a mining town, and began his business career selling newspapers on the streets of Denver. At night he ushered in the "opera house." The other usher was the late Lon Chaney, motion picture star.

Mr. McCombs went to Cripple Creek in the gold rush and tells many interesting tales of his experiences as a youngster in a mining camp. Another youth who was in the Cripple Creek camp and has made his mark is Lowell Thomas, well known reporter and radio announcer.

Mr. McCombs is a prominent member of both the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association and the Life Insurance Club, of Washington.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Associated Gas & Electric Co. announced today that deposits of its debenture bonds under the "plan of rearrangement of debt capitalization" had "shown a marked increase in the past two weeks." The number of holders who have deposited was said to be "rapidly nearing 30,000."

Hiram Walker & Sons, Ltd., has completed plans for building a wine plant at Peoria, Ill. The site, covering 20 acres, was acquired last summer and building contracts have been awarded, said W. J. Hume, president. The initial investment will exceed $2,500,000. Contingent on repeal of the eighteenth amendment, expenditures for several additional mills are contemplated.

There were 21 favorable dividend changes during the past week compared with 36 in the previous week, the Standard Statistics Co. reported today. The gain is well above the average of the past several months. Unfavorable revisions numbered 20 compared with 14 the week before.

American Gas & Electric Co. and subsidiaries report for the 12 months ended August 31 net income of $9,982,598, equivalent after preferred stock dividends to $1.82 a share on the common. This compares with $13,297,590 or $2.69 a share for the 12 months ended August 31, 1932.

British Shipper Urges Smaller Atlantic Liners

That an important element in British shipping circles is not in favor of trying to compete with the record-breaking super-liners now operating on North Atlantic routes is indicated in a report to the Commerce Department from its London office.

A prominent operator, the report shows, speaking before a group of British shipping men, advocated the construction of 21-knot cabin ships for the North Atlantic passenger trade as more logical and profitable than the building of larger vessels capable of higher speed.

Referring to the records recently made by the Bremen, the Europa and the Rex, the operator expressed the opinion that effective competition with them would require British lines to consider the construction of ships capable of at least 30 knots and preferably 35 knots.

To build one such vessel, he pointed out, would cost as much as three cabin ships, 700 feet in length with a speed of 21 knots. The latter could, of course, be operated much more economically, with the additional advantage of diversion to cruising routes during period of light transatlantic traffic. Very fast ships, on the other hand, would not be suitable for any service except the express routes between New York and Europe, he stated.

The development of transatlantic wire and wireless communications service, the speaker stated, has considerably reduced the number of quick business trips made by American and European executives, and the conditions which have prevailed during the past four years have induced many travelers to take advantage of the saving which they can effect by crossing in cabin ships.

Admitting that the country and the steamship company holding the speed record across the Atlantic derived much prestige and advertising value from it, the operator declared that he nevertheless questioned the wisdom of British ship operators making the large investment required to build and operate ships capable of establishing comparable records.

Curb's Prices Driven Higher After Decline

Strength in Mining Issues Aids Recovery; Sales, 120,000 Shares.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—The curb market encountered a short flurry of selling near the end of the first hour today which forced sales down fractions to more than a point, but pressure soon lifted and metals and oils led a quiet rally which canceled most of the losses.

Strength in mining issues was coincident with the heavy demand for metals on the big board. Bunker Hill & Sullivan gained 3 in light trading, while Newmont canceled a fractional decline to rally 2 at the finish. Lake Shore Mines gained 1.

In the petroleum group Standard Oil of Indiana added a sizable fraction, while Gulf and Humble oils gained around 2 each.

Electric Bond & Share was a firm spot in the power group, opening a point higher. The issues met some selling midway in the session, but closed near the initial quotations. American Gas & Electric eased a major fraction.

General Tire & Rubber lost 6 points in a small transfer, while other inactive industrials easing a point or more included Aluminum Co. of America, Celluloid Corporation, Pittsburgh Plate Glass and Safety Car Heating. Transfers approximated 120,000 shares, compared with 154,000 for last Saturday.

Canadian Pig Iron Yield Is 35,233 Tons

Canadian pig-iron production in August totaled 35,233 long tons and registered the largest output of any month since July, 1931, according to advices to the Commerce Department from Commercial Attache H. M. Bankhead, Ottawa.

Of the total, 20,742 tons of basic iron were made for the further use of manufacturers, 10,540 tons were made for sale, and 3,951 tons of malleable iron were made for the market.

Canadian production of ferroalloys increased 42 per cent in August, the tonnage being 1,796 compared with 1,266 tons in July, and 871 tons produced in August, 1932. Production of steel ingots and castings amounted to 48,659 tons, a very small decrease from the preceding month. Of this amount 46,979 tons of ingots were made for further use by producers. Most of the 1,680 tons of castings were made for sale.

ANNUAL STATEMENT

At the close of business on September 30th, we placed to the credit of our members dividends amounting to

$269,546.92

During the year we added to our SURPLUS PROFITS the sum of $22,842.07

Thus Showing as of the Above Date
ASSETS of
$5,863,333.70

Loans in Force $5,701,362.76
Surplus and Undivided Profits $257,440.34

We take great pleasure in submitting this statement for your consideration. The past year has been most critical and extremely difficult for many financial institutions. We are happy, however, that the Building and Loan Associations have weathered the storm and once again proven their dependability and safety as a depository for savings.

This institution has for nearly a half century continued to serve the people of Washington. Its progressive and at the same time conservative management has at all times enjoyed the public's confidence. Paying an annual dividend of at least 5%, it has been selected by thousands of thrifty Washingtonians for their savings account.

We invite your consideration.

After deducting interest charges, net income totaled $6,785, against $90,426 for the same period last year, a decrease of $83,641.

Safe Deposit Men Named by A. B. A.

Three important committees of the safe deposit section, District of Columbia Bankers Association, were announced yesterday.

The monthly meeting of the section was held last week in the board room of American Security & Trust Co. Earle M. Amick, an assistant vice president of Riggs National Bank and chairman of the section for this year, announced the appointment of the following committees:

Standardization of safe deposit practices committee: A. E. Fisher, Riggs National Bank, chairman; Francis E. Robey, Bank of Commerce & Savings; C. M. Ashton, Munsey Trust Co.; Miss Mary J. Pierce, Columbia National Bank.

Standardized safe deposit forms committee: Harry P. White, American Security & Trust Co., chairman; Clifford Yeomans, McLachlen Banking Corporation; W. Clarence Miller, National Bank of Washington; Charles W. Haas, Union Trust Co.

Educational and publicity committee: Mrs. Frances O. Berry, Hamilton National Bank, chairman; James B. Skinner, Liberty National Bank; J. E. Woltz, National Metropolitan Bank; J. Earl Whaley, Washington Loan & Trust Co.

Idle Freight Cars Reduced to 398,541

Class I railroads on August 31 had 398,451 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced today.

This was a reduction of 4,806 cars compared with August 14, at which time there were 403,257 surplus freight cars. Surplus coal cars on August 31 totaled 105,915, a decrease of 9,205 cars below the previous period, while surplus box cars totaled 236,850, an increase of 7,349 cars compared with August 14.

Reports also showed 24,328 surplus stock cars, a decrease of 2,846 compared with August 14, while surplus refrigerator cars totaled 11,892, an increase of 257 for the same period.

Another Clarksburg Oil Well Has Been Opened

Clarksburg, W. Va., Sept. 30 (Spl.).—Still another oil well has been struck in the Lost Run field in Ritchie County. It is the Richard Farm Co.'s No. 4 well on the Corley Bell farm, which turned out 1,200 barrels the first 24 hours. This is the third new well exceeding 1,000 barrels daily to be brought in in this immediate vicinity.

A gasser testing 1,108,000 cubic feet daily has been struck on the W. H. Westfall farm on Addison's Run, a mile and a half east of Cairo in the same county.

Production of Gold Boosted in August

Output totaled 1,994,000 fine ounces, as compared with 1,992,000 in July and 1,925,000 in June. Production in the United States was 181,000 ounces, a gain of 5,000 from July. June output was 143,000 ounces.

Canada's August total was 250,000 ounces, the same as in July, but a decrease of 11,000 ounces from June. South African mines turned out 935,000 ounces, compared with 930,000 in the previous month.

Mexicans Hail Trade Upturn Led by Silver

A definite feeling of optimism prevails among Mexican business men as a result of the advance in the price of silver, Commercial Attache Thomas H. Lockett advises the Department of Commerce.

So extensive and vital is the metal industry to Mexico, he points out, that its activity or curtailment immediately reflects its results upon the entire business system of the country.

Mingled with the present feeling of encouragement, however, is the uncertainty of the future demand and price of silver, a situation which is causing the mining companies to proceed with caution.

Mexican output of silver in the first seven months of the current year, amounting to 1,263,178 kilos, slightly exceeded the figure for the corresponding period of 1932. It is believed, the report states, that the mining of silver in Mexico will slowly increase during the remainder of the year, attended by the same caution as is now displayed.

Prevailing prices of silver do not permit a profit upon the production of the metal commensurate with the investment of the mining companies, it is stated in Mexico.

Staunton Rate Hearing Will Start Tomorrow

Staunton, Va., Sept. 30 (Spl.).—Seeking reparations on coal rates from April, 1930, through March, 1933, the City of Staunton will be given a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission, sitting in Roanoke, on Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

City Manager Willard F. Day will present this municipality's claim, based on a coal freight rate reduction by the commission of from $2.39 to $2.10 per ton from the West Virginia fields to Staunton.

Financier and Business Man Must Aid NRA, Economists Say

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—Not only must the consumer do his part to produce prosperity, but the financier and business man must be stimulated to action, Wall street economists say.

Business in the things the consumer buys normally totals only about half of the business of the country, and in depression, the lull in these lines is small compared to the slump in "producers goods," such as machinery and buildings.

It has been estimated, says the Guaranty Trust Co., that in 1929 production of producers' goods amounted to $40,000,000,000, as against $30,000,000,000 in consumers' goods.

It is for this reason that Washington authorities are expressing concern over the decided lag in such industries as building and construction and are pushing public works programs.

Some Wall street economists say that recovery to date, inasmuch as it has been largely in the consumers' good lines, has reversed the process experienced toward the end of past depressions.

Cheap credit has in the past, they say, finally given impetus to general recovery through stimulating enterprise in the building of houses and factories and the equipping of plants.

Some acknowledge that a start with the consumers' goods industries may also be successful, through increasing purchasing power and improving the general economic structure until the other industries fall into line. To date, however, the response from the heavier lines has been disappointing.

Stagnation of the market for new securities and the general feeling of uncertainty over financial affairs are held responsible in Wall street for this situation. It is for this reason that the street is urging Washington to announce a definite monetary program.

New Paris Quota Rules Hit U. S.-Latin Imports

Paris, Sept. 30—Further drastic quota restrictions issued are likely to curtail imports into France from the United States and Latin America, particularly Argentina, according to the Associated Press. The ministry of agriculture radically cut quotas on foodstuffs for the fourth quarter of the year. As an example, the total imports of apples and pears were reduced from 68,000,000 pounds to 26,000,000 pounds, which is slightly above the present quota from the United States alone. Other foodstuffs hit include meat, grain and butter.

Buyers of Oil Lift Prices Ten Cents

Tulsa, Okla., Sept. 30 (AP).—The reward that midcontinent oil men were promised for further reduction in production of crude oil materialized today when virtually all of the purchasers of Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and New Mexico put into effect a 10 to 11 cents a barrel advance in prices.

Based upon a daily production of 1,776,200 barrels a day for the midcontinent field, the increase in crude oil prices added $177,620 a day to the oil men's income.

When offices closed tonight, nearly a score of purchasers had announced that they had met the advance, basing prices on three gravity schedules. The Texas Co. took the lead with its posting of 28 to 28.9 gravity at 84 cents a barrel for Oklahoma, with a 2 cent differential per degree up to 40 gravity and above at $1.08 a barrel.

Virginia Pays Out More Than State Receives

(Associated Press.)

Payments of the State government of Virginia for the year ended June 30, 1932, were shown yesterday in a Census Bureau report to have been $294,489 more than total revenue receipts.

However, the total payments for the year—$42,493,034—included $10,479,054 for permanent improvements. The total revenue receipts were $42,198,545.

The actual cost of operating the general departments of government was $31,071,256 or $12.77 per capita. In 1931 the per capita was $12.70. The remainder of the amount paid out was for permanent improvements and $942,724 for interest on the public debt.

One of the biggest items in the cost of government was highways. A total of $15,889,639 was reported spent on that work—$6,890,953 for maintenance and $8,998,686 for construction.

Per capita receipts were $17.34. Property and special taxes, the biggest source of revenue, declined, due, the report said, principally to decreased inheritance and income tax collections. In 1932 they represented 18.9 per cent of the total revenue compared with 22.8 in 1931, and 41.2 in 1917. The per capita of property and special taxes was $3.28 in 1932, $4.31 in 1931, and $1.96 in 1917.

The funded or fixed debt of the State was $26,343,219 on June 30, 1932. Of this amonut $5,428,000 was for highways.

C., M., St. P. & P. Ry. Waits Steel Price Cut

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad announced today it would purchase 50,000 tons of rail and 14,000 tons of fastenings, on reduction in steel prices.

Business Pushed By Lincoln Service

Francis J. Crilley, vice president and superintendent of loans of the Lincoln Service Corporation, reports the corporation and its subsidiary companies show a substantial increase in September over any previous month since they began business in 1931.

This company has shown a steady increase in volume of business done since its inception. For the quarter ended September 30, 1933, business showed an increase of 33 per cent over the quarter ended June 30, 1933.

Means Sought To Increase Peanut Prices

(Associated Press.)

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration is making a thorough study of possible means of boosting peanut prices.

Virginia and North Carolina growers who have suffered from extremely low prices for several years, asked the study and already plans are before the administration for relieving them.

One, designed to increase this year's prices, is for producers, peanut processors and Secretary Wallace of the Agriculture Department to enter into a marketing agreement. The agreement would include a provision for decreased production in 1934, similar to that drawn up for tobacco growers.

Recent drops in peanut prices have prompted the growers to urge that action be taken at once. The present price level, they told Chester Davis, production director of the administration, is 40 per cent below the parity price goal of the agricultural adjustment act.

Bank Shares Lack Support, Babson Says

By Roger W. Babson.

Babson Park, Mass., Sept. 30.—One of the most difficult things today is to analyze correctly the future of bank stocks. If nature had been allowed to "take its course," without Governmental interference, bank stocks would already have shown a handsome comeback. They may still do so; in fact, they certainly should recover to some extent, but at the present time they lack popular support.

To show how drastic has been the deflation in bank stock prices since boom days we only have to compare their decline with the drop in industrials. From September 30, 1929, to March, 1933, industrial stocks fell 87 per cent, while bank stocks dropped 89 per cent. This is very surprising for you must remember that bank stocks are normally supposed to be very stable and conservative investments.

Since March, bank stocks have advanced only 30 per cent while industrials have jumped 95 per cent. Much of the improvement in industrials has been due to anticipated higher profits under inflation, while recent developments in the banking field have been a major factor in holding back bank stocks.

9,000 Close Doors.

During the past five years approximately 9,000 of our 25,941 banks closed their doors. As a result, banks have felt the heavy hand of the Government. There have been Congressional investigations. The paralysis of our entire system in March resulted in the enactment of certain reforms.

This new legislation divorced the profitable securities business from the banks. Moreover, under the Glass-Steagall bill banking profits will be partially limited. Banks both in the United States and Canada are in a very liquid condition. This means they are not making money. New York City's new taxes, abnormally low interest rates, and an uncertain political future are all factors in the unpopularity of bank shares.

Under a good banking system depositors should be able to place their money in banks with the knowledge that it is safe and that they can get it when they need it.

Our banking system has shown inherent weaknesses which do not permit quick liquidation in times of stress. As one of the "New Deal" measures, the Glass-Steagall act was passed in June. Whether or not deposit insurance is good for American banking in the long run, bank accounts are surely safer today than they have been for 20 years.

On the other hand, this new law is hard on bank officials and stockholders. Furthermore, the act is now retarding the expansion of credit which is vitally necessary to back new enterprises, revive building, and start up closed factories.

Moreover, if the proposed plan to allow depositors in the U. S. postal savings banks to write checks against their accounts is successful, this may result in a reduction of deposits in banks. You know that member banks of the Federal Reserve system can no longer pay interest on your checking account.

Mutual Loan Companies.

Added to the above, is the recent announcement by Chairman Jesse Jones of the R. F. C. of his intention to encourage the organization of competitive mutual loan companies in communities where the local banks are weak or timid. These measures plus inflation possibilities all tend to keep bank stocks down at the moment.

Opinions differ as to the effect on bank profits of the adoption of some inflationary measure. If banks were allowed to invest in good stocks, then they could take advantage of inflation like any investment trust, fire insurance company, or other security organization. Very high-class bonds in bank portfolios will be unfavorably affected by inflation.

There is the possibility, however, that banks may be able to realize on certain other investments such as frozen real estate loans, and speculative bonds. In a period of inflation "cheap" bonds tend to act like common stocks. However, if inflation is of any permanent help to industry it will mean increased loans, higher interest rates, and bigger bank profits.

Deposits and Inflation.

What about bank deposits under inflation? So far as deposit liabilities go, inflation makes no difference to banks. If banks receive only 50-cent-money they need pay out only 50-cent-money. The depositor, however, who originally put $1-money into the bank may draw out only 50-cent-money.

On the other hand, it now seems foolish for stockholders unnecessarily to put more money into bank capital. This capital would only be loaned out in good dollars and be paid back in depreciated dollars. Consequently, instead of expanding or establishing new institutions, banks should now consolidate.

I feel that the banks, like the railroads, need new blood. Considering the fact that the majority of individual depositors are women, every board of bank directors should consist of at least one-third women. This is especially true since 80 per cent of the retail shopping is done by women.

9.26% & SAFETY

Probably never again can an annuity be bought on as favorable terms as now. Two large, strong companies still offer returns well above the average. BUT THESE MORE LIBERAL RATES CAN NOT LAST.

ANNUITY INCOMES are LARGE, but safe and dependable; they are payable for as long as you and your wife live, and they are free from ALL taxes, for many years.

Wheat Values Remain Near Friday's Level

Chicago, Sept. 30 (AP).—Despite a brisk late rally following material setbacks earlier, the outcome of grain trading today proved to be virtually a draw.

Varying action of securities had much to do with the course of cereals, but the main factor was uncertainty as to what unforeseen developments might take place regarding national monetary plans. Under such circumstances, few grain speculators were willing to leave any important risks open until Monday.

Wheat closed nervous, ⅛ lower to ⅜ higher compared with yesterday's finish, corn and oats both unchanged to ⅜ lower, and provisions unchanged to 25 cents down.

Evening-Up Accounts.

Week-end evening-up of accounts for all classes of traders took the wheat market up in the final hour to almost 3 cents above preceding bottom figures, which had shown an extreme break of about 2 cents.

Gains, however, were mostly transient, notwithstanding sharp attention given to the fact that primary arrivals of wheat today, 563,000, were the scantiest since the 1933 domestic crop started to move in volume.

There were suggestions, too, in various quarters that the forthcoming Government crop report would be likely to make a notably bullish showing as to domestic wheat yields this season.

Monthly Crop Report.

On the other hand, the first authoritative new unofficial monthly crop summary here was issued today, ahead of others, and was generally construed as somewhat bearish, indicating that private estimates of domestic wheat yields were a bit larger than on September 1.

Today's unofficial report put United States 1933 production of all wheat at 471,000,000 bushels, against 468,000,000 unofficially indicated a month ago. The estimated increase was exclusively in spring wheat.

Corn and oats took their cue chiefly from the course of wheat prices. Frost predicted for the Dakotas and Minnesota and for parts of Iowa and Nebraska had little market influence.

Provisions were responsive to downturns of hog values to the lowest level in a month.

Reserve Bank Area Reports Better Trade

Richmond, Va., Sept. 30 (AP).—The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported today that the improvement in business which has been in evidence for the preceding two months in the Fifth district continued in August and early September.

There was a moderate sag in August, the bank said in its monthly review of credit, business and agricultural conditions, much of which was probably a natural reaction from the rather high level of July, but in spite of the slowing down in some lines, trade and industry were much above 1932 levels.

The employment situation was reported much better than in the first half of the year, and appears to be still improving. Coal production showed a seasonal increase over July and was far above August, 1932. The textile industry did not operate quite so actively as in July, but the recession was moderate and the industry still ran far above the level of a year ago.

Construction Still Small.

Construction work, the bank said, continues in small volume, but there has been some improvement in recent weeks even in this field.

Retail trade as reflected in department store sales showed an excellent record in the district, averaging more than 20 per cent above August last year, and wholesale trade has improved so much during the past three months the cumulative sale for the elapsed eight months of this year in groceries, dry goods, shoes and hardware have passed total sales for the corresponding eight months of 1932.

In agriculture, prospects for yields in the district were reported good, with a much larger money return seemingly assured. The tobacco crop is much larger, and even without further advances in prices, the money return will be greater than last year. The cotton crop of the district is about 3 per cent smaller, but higher prices will bring a larger return.

Outlook Is Better.

"On the whole," the bank concluded, "the outlook for fall and winter business appears notably better than it was a year ago."

In banking, the report said, rediscounts at the Federal Reserve decreased; member banks being able to care for seasonal demands for credit by merchants for discounting fall bills without further assistance from the Reserve Bank.

Cotton Steadies In Buying After Early Losses

December Sells at 9.92 as General Market Rises 4 to 7 Points.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP).—After sliding off to 9.80 for December contracts or 7 points net lower, cotton steadied during today's later trading on trade buying and covering promoted by a firmer turn in the stock market. December rallied to 9.95 and closed at 9.92, the general market finishing at net advances of 4 to 7 points.

The opening was at a decline of 3 points to an advance of 4 points. There was some buying on the steadier showing of Liverpool, but this was supplied by Southern selling, and after slight bulges the market weakened under continued hedging combined with scattering liquidation.

October Sells Off.

October sold off from 9.67 to 9.63, while May declined from 10.30 to 10.21, making net losses of about 5 to 10 points and the lowest prices reached here since the advance of last Saturday morning on the cotton loan announcement. This break brought in increased covering, however, while there was considerable trade buying or price fixing.

The late rally carried October up to 9.69 and May to 10.33 or 4 to 8 points net higher. Last prices were at or within a point or two of the best for the day.

Overnight press advices from Washington regarding the possibility of further developments in the recovery on monetary programs and the easier ruling of the dollar were mentioned in connection with some of the early buying. The market later appeared to be chiefly influenced by the continued hedging from the South, followed by evidences of an improved technical position toward the close, when the Southern selling was absorbed by an increased demand. The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 132,000 bales against 138,000 at the same time last year.

Futures Price Range.

	High.	Low.	Last.
October	9.69	9.63	9.69
December	9.95	9.80	9.92-93
January	10.01	9.86	10.01
March	10.17	10.05	10.17
May	10.33	10.21	10.32-33
July	10.49	10.36	10.49

Spot steady; middling 9.95.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was dull, with sales of only six contracts. Price changes were narrow and irregular, with the market closing 2 points lower to 3 net higher, but mostly lower, influenced by the weakness in lard and the reaction in grains. Bleachable spot and October closed 4.50; December, 4.75; January, 4.82; March, 5.07; May, 5.17.

Dollar Tumble Hits Americans Living in Spain

Tourists Forced to Quit Hotels; Business Men's Expenses Mount.

Madrid, Spain, Sept. 30 (AP).—Spain is not what is used to be, as far as American residents and tourists are concerned, since the dollar's tumbles in the international exchange market.

The cities and towns of the country, especially in Andalusia, along the Mediterranean Coast and the Balearic Islands, were dotted with artists, writers and retired business men who could live cheaply and well with the exchange around 12 pesetas to the dollar.

But times changed swiftly. The dollar plunged to about eight pesetas, meaning an increase in living costs of 33 per cent.

Dollar-a-Day Paradise.

The Balearic Islands formerly were known as a "dollar-a-day paradise." But no more. The citizens began to realize some time ago that money could be made out of these foreign visitors.

Hotels began to appear in isolated coves along the Mallorcan shore and even on the hidden slopes of Ibizan and Minorcan hills. These were cheaper than similar accomodations in France or Italy, until the dollar began to weaken.

No appreciable reductions in costs of living appeared, so the alien residents began to disappear. American officials who have visited the islands report a thinning in the ranks of Americans, but the British, French, Italian and others go on, for their exchange has not suffered in the peseta market. So far, hotels, cafes, and other local institutions have felt the American exodus but none of them have closed.

Americans Who Suffer.

The principal sufferers here are the remaining representatives of American business concerns, consular and diplomatic officials, and newspapermen.

There have been few staff reductions reported since the dollar drop, but heavy reductions were made during the dark days of the depression.

The few hundreds of Americans engaged in business throughout Spain are staying on, hoping for the best, and seeking salary arrangements to remedy the exchange malady. Already arrangements have been made by several concerns.

Spain escaped the worst of the world depression. Unemployment is not a pressing problem there. General living expenses, above the laborer class, have been increased. Hotels, restaurants, apartment rent, food, lights, telephone, clothes, and other necessities for comfortable life are expensive when the American exchanges dollars at the present rate.

Cafes and restaurants of Madrid recently raised prices on all service about 20 per cent, with the announced purpose of eliminating tips. The necessity for tips has not been eliminated.

Business Trends for October Expected to Remain Steady

Advertising and Air Traffic Set High Records; Farm Equipment Improves Slowly; Retail Trade Increases Late in September.

New York, Sept. 30.—The first of the month outlook for various divisions of industry is summarized by the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, as follows:

Advertising—Lineage in both newspapers and magazines is running ahead of last year and prospects are that a gradual upward trend will be maintained through the rest of 1933.

Agricultural machinery—Slow improvement in demand for farm equipment, chiefly tractors, continues Marked betterment will be deferred until early spring months.

Aircraft—Through passenger and express traffic has reached record levels, domestic air transporters face a further extended period of restricted earnings owing to recent sharp curtailment of mail payments.

Automobiles—Factory operations are showing a belated seasonal dip, but are still at more than double the 1932 rate.

Automobile parts—Reflecting the present downtrend in original equipment requisitions, output will continue to recede during early future weeks, but a well-marked recovery is indicated as 1933 draws to a close, and assemblers commence new-model production.

Automobile tires—Output and sales are expected to recede further during the fall, but earnings gains since last spring should be largely held, as trade practices are stabilized and tire prices increased under NRA regulations.

Chemicals—Although shipments have fallen below recent peak levels, demand continues well in excess of 1932.

Coal—The signing of the NRA code has not fully settled labor troubles in the bituminous fields. Although this condition may retard productive activity, the seasonal trend of output should continue upward. Anthracite production is expected to continue ahead of last year.

Electrical Equipment — Leading companies have reported a considerable increase in bookings recently and factory operations should show moderate increase in activity during the fall.

Leather and shoes—Distributors of footwear have anticipated forward requirements and, following seasonal tendencies, production will taper during the remainder of the year.

Machinery—Further advance in machine tool business is likely to be postponed for several months. Outlook for construction equipment over the next half year is favorable.

Medicines — Demand for drug products is slowly expanding, and sales for the final half of the year should be approximately 10 per cent higher than in 1932.

Office equipment—Despite the retarding influence of late summer dullness, manufacturers are entering the normally most active selling period with fair volumes.

Paper—While full 1933 results of many paper manufactures should show substantial improvement over last year, the reattainment of a satisfactory basis will be delayed until after the proposed codes are placed in operation.

Petroleum—With the new code now fully operative, prices have strengthened materially, indicating the restoration of operations to a profitable basis in the final months of the year, in sharp contrast with the poor showing recorded in the first six months.

Radio—The industry as a whole is on firmer ground than it was a year ago. Leading manufacturers are looking for further improvement during the autumn.

Railroads—While traffic gains over 1932 levels have been diminishing recently indications are that the July seasonally adjusted peak in tonnage movement and earnings will be surpassed over the intermediate term.

Railroad equipment—In the light of the administration's efforts to stimulate the heavy industries, prospects appear bright for inauguration of a sizable program of equipment modernization by the railroads.

Retail trade—Dollar volume in the latter half of September was large enough to offset the relatively unfavorable results in the early part of the month. Rising prices do not appear to be restricting buying unduly.

Shipping and shipbuilding—Definitely favorable trends in traffic volumes are apparent only in domestic and contiguous island services. Shipbuilding is restricted largely to preparation for work on the $129,777,600 naval contracts recently awarded.

Steel—Curtailment of production to approximately 40 per cent of capacity reflects declining needs of the lighter industries. Early future support hinges increasingly on prompt inaugurated of the Federal-financed capital-goods program and 1934 automobile production.

Sugar—Most companies in this group will register substantial improvement in earnings for 1933, in reflection of the best prices in more than three years. Domestic beet units and Puerto Rican producers should make the best relative showing, while Cuban units should continue to show deficits.

Textiles—Activity has dropped approximately 25 per cent from the midsummer peak, but sufficient unfilled business is held to insure satisfactory operation over the remainder of the year.

Theaters—Better films and increased employment have stimulated theater attendance. Financial problems besetting two of the major film producers are likely to be cleared up by the yera-end.

Tobacco—Net effect of the tobacco processing tax, effective October 1, will be to diminish cigarette withdrawals for a month or so, since dealers and retailers will now dispose of large stocks previously acquired.

Utilities—Electric power production is declining counter to the seasonal trend, but gas sales are improving slowly. Telephone companies are about balancing new business and disconnections.

Freight Loads Increase to 652,669 Cars

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended September 23 totaled 652,669 cars, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced today.

This was an increase of 653 cars above the preceding week this year, and an increase of 57,065 cars above the corresponding week in 1932. It was, however, a decrease of 85,367 cars below the corresponding week in 1931.

Miscellaneous freight loading for the week of September 23 totaled 236,088 cars, an increase of 4,641 cars above the preceding week, and 19,316 cars above the corresponding week in 1932, but a decrease of 38,207 cars under the corresponding week in 1931.

Loading of Merchandise.

Loading of merchandise less than carload lot freight totaled 174,443 cars, an increase of 2,072 cars above the preceding week, but 4,210 cars below the corresponding week last year, and 42,368 cars below the same week two years ago.

Grain and grain products loading for the week totaled 33,697 cars, an increase of 2,240 cars above the preceding week, but 2,349 cars below the corresponding week last year and 3,281 cars below the same week in 1931. In the Western districts alone, grain and grain products loading for the week ended September 23 totaled 22,930 cars, a decrease of 1,472 cars below the same week last year.

Forest products loading totaled 25,079 cars, 140 cars below the preceding week but 6,502 cars above the same week in 1932. It was, however, a decrease of 446 cars below the same week in 1931.

Ore Loading Decreases.

Ore loading amounted to 35,689 cars, a decrease of 4,392 cars below the preceding week, but 30,090 cars above the corresponding week in 1932 and 9,883 cars above the same week in 1931.

Coal loading amounted to 119,412 cars, a decrease of 5,393 cars below the preceding week, but 6,265 cars above the corresponding week in 1932. It was, however, a decrease of 9,303 cars below the same week in 1931.

Coke loading amounted to 6,567 cars, four cars below the preceding week, but 2,867 cars above the same week last year, and 1,852 cars above the same week two years ago.

Live Stock Loading.

Live stock loading amounted to 21,694 cars, an increase of 1,629 cars above the preceding week, but 1,416 cars below the same week last year and 3,497 cars below the same week two years ago.

In the Western districts alone, loading of live stock for the week ended September 23 totaled 17,130 cars, a decrease of 1,195 cars compared with the same week last year.

All districts, except the central-western and southwestern, which showed small reductions, reported increases in the total loading of all commodities compared with the same week in 1932, but all districts reported decreases compared with the corresponding week in 1931, except the Pocahontas, which showed an increase.

Comparison of Loadings.

Loading of revenue freight in 1933 compared with the two previous years follows:

	1933.	1932.
4 weeks in January	1,910,496	2,266,771
4 weeks in February	1,957,981	2,243,221

Tonnage Sales Of Food Hold In Depression

New York, Sept. 30.—Tonnage sales of food products declined only moderately during the depression and, in the absence of outside influences, reductions in selling prices generally approximated declines in raw material and operating costs. Hence, the substantial declines in profits which occurred in several lines resulted mainly from price-cutting trade tactics and inventory losses, says the Standard Statistics Co. of New York, in a survey which continues in part:

"The sharp reversal of commodity price trends late last spring has virtually eliminated inventory losses as a factor in current year operations; in fact, in many cases, sizable inventory appreciation has been realized. Moreover, greater confidence in the business outlook is combining with Government encouragement of trade cooperation to improve competitive conditions. Finally, the upturn in consumer buying power is providing a basis for gradual expansion of unit sales and for the return of prices to a more remunerative level.

"Accordingly, the earnings position of the meat packers and flour millers has been definitely improved, the extent of profits recovery will be roughly proportionate to the severity of past income recession. Because of poor showings early in the year, 1933 results of dairy and baking concerns will be held around 1932 levels, even though current operations are on a more favorable basis."

World's Cotton Mills Use More Of U.S. Product

Spinners Found Preferring American Crop to Indian and Egyptian.

New York, Sept. 30.—Cotton spinners of the world used 477,000 less bales of Indian cotton, and 88,000 less bales of Egyptian cotton last season than the season before, but they increased their consumption of American cotton by 1,867,000 bales, according to the New York Cotton Exchange Service.

Consumption of Indian declined 9.8 per cent and consumption of Egyptian declined 8.9 per cent, but consumption of American jumped 14.9 per cent.

Consumption of Indian cotton was the smallest in well over a decade, says the exchange service. It totaled only 4,372,000 bales last season, compared with 4,849,000 in the 1931-32 season, 6,076,000 in 1930-31, and 6,564,000 in 1929-30.

Use of Indian Cotton.

The consumption of Indian cotton last season was 1,202,000 bales below the average of 5,574,000 bales in the past 10 seasons. Consumption of Egyptian cotton totaled 906,000 bales last season, as against 994,000 in the 1931-32 season; it was 54,000 bales below the average of 960,000 bales in the past 10 seasons.

While the world thus used Indian and Egyptian cotton on a sharply reduced and limited scale, its consumption of American cotton not only increased greatly from that in recent depression years, but rose to a level far above the 10-year average. Consumption of American last season aggregated 14,435,000 bales, compared with 12,568,000 in the 1931-32 season and 11,141,000 in 1930-31. The consumption last season was 1,012,000 bales above the 10-year average of 13,423,000.

Increase of American.

The decrease in consumption of Indian and Egyptian cotton, and the increase in consumption of American are interrelated, since they largely represent a substitution of American cotton for the foreign growths. This substitution occurred in Great Britain, on the Continent, and in the Orient.

It resulted primarily from the fact that American cotton sold on an attractive basis relative to foreign growths during the greater part of the season. This attractive price relationship was in turn due to the fact that American cotton was in larger supply relative to foreign growths than on an average in past seasons.

A further reason for the increase in American cotton consumption while consumption of foreign growths declined is the sharp upturn in cotton spinning activity in the United States.

Mills Use Domestic.

The mills of this country use domestic cotton to the extent of about 95 per cent of their requirements, and hence the phenomenal rise in domestic cotton mill activity, accompanying the upturn in general business, was registered almost entirely in an increased consumption of American cotton. Of the increase of 1,867,000 bales in consumption of American cotton in the world, the increase in the United States aggregated 1,260,000 bales. The increase in American cotton consumption abroad was 607,000 bales.

Three years ago when consumption of American cotton abroad was running low relative to consumption of foreign growths, due to a relatively small supply and high price of American cotton, there was much discussion in cotton trade circles of the alleged deterioration of the American staple and the improvement in the spinning quality of foreign growths. It has been a subject of comment that this discussion has died down during the past one or two years. While it is recognized that many sections of the American Cotton Belt are growing shorter cotton than 10 to 20 years ago, it is now seen more clearly that the cotton trade of the world will take these shorter lengths, and, furthermore, there has been a distinct trend toward increase in the average staple length of cotton grown in this country in the past five years.

American Holds Favor.

The sharp expansion in consumption of American cotton abroad during the last season is regarded as evidence that American cotton is continuing to meet the requirements of the spinners of foreign countries.

Relative consumption of American and foreign cottons abroad during the current season will be affected by several unusual factors. Most important is the program for drastic reduction of production in this country, coinciding with an expansion in production abroad. Another special factor will be the large sales of American cotton to China and Russia on credit furnished by the American Government.

St. Michael's To Have Flag Raising Today

Major Lee and Church Dignitaries to Speak at Silver Spring.

The flag-raising ceremony of St. Michael's new parochial school in Silver Spring, Md., will be held on the school grounds today at 3:30 p. m. The exercises will mark the formal opening of the school.

An elaborate program, including addresses by Maj. E. Brooke Lee, of Silver Spring, and church dignitaries, has been arranged by a committee headed by George W. Kennedy, who will be master of ceremonies. The 50-piece Boys Band of the Holy Comforter Church will play and will accompany the school children in singing patriotic songs.

The invocation will be given by the Rev. Charles O. Rosensteel, pastor of St. John's Church, Forest Glen, and Rev. T. A. Calnan, pastor of St. Michael's Church, will make the address of welcome. Addresses also will be made by Rev. William W. Noonan, O. M. I., of Washington, who will be the speaker for the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary, and the Rev. John I. Barrett, of Baltimore, diocesan superintendent of schools. The exercises will include a bugle call, the pledge of allegiance to the flag by the school children and the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner." An outdoor benediction will conclude the program.

Frank L. Hewitt and Eugene Ruppert head the reception committee, and are assisted by Fendall Coughlan, Louis Alberti, John J. Reed, Joseph Sullivan, Harry Naehr, Michaels McGowan and Garrett Fitzgerald.

Buying Urged By Dr. Walsh

NRA to Succeed if All Support It, Says Educator.

Everyone should "buy until it hurts" to support the National Recovery Administration program, Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, said yesterday.

"There is," he insisted, "a solemn obligation devolving on the people as a whole to see that the national industrial recovery act does not fail.

"It is wasted energy to debate what might, should or could have been done in its stead. That is water over the dam. We have definitely faced upstream and the only alternative now is success or failure in the direction we actually have chosen."

Dr. Walsh predicted the NRA would succeed if all Americans did their share. He said fear of penalties would not suffice unless the recovery act won united support from the people.

State of Washington Planning for Repeal

Olympia, Wash. (U.P.)—Washington will settle her liquor problem in much the same manner as did Oregon, it was assumed here.

Gov. Clarence Martin intimated that he would appoint an advisory committee within a few days to work out some plan of control to be submitted to the Legislature. If repeal is fulfilled by the latter part of the year, the governor said he would call a special session to enact proper statutes.

PIANOS AND PLAYERS
KIMBALL FACTORY SALE

The great manufacturer's piano and player piano clearance with notable values in new, shop worn and finely reconditioned instruments, among which are many of the world's best makes, is now in full swing. Buyers, both retail and wholesale, are supplying their piano needs at prices and on equally as attractive payment terms that probably will not be duplicated again for years to come, if ever again. Think of buying new small grands as low as $242. Fine used uprights at $35 to $75, and buying brand-new standard made apartment upright now reduced $50, including new grands now reduced $100 and $200. Don't delay longer—Here's a genuine piano purchasing opportunity that will soon be beyond recall.

WASHINGTON: SUNDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1933 S

John Baxter, son of Mrs. Harry Baxter, and grandson of the Secretary of War and Mrs. George H. Dern, who is making his home with his grandparents.

Mary Anne Chase, very young daughter of Lieut. and Mrs. Harry Taylor Chase, and her young cousin, Virginia Devereux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Devereux.

Little Miss Johanne Baxter, daughter of Mrs. Harry Baxter, who with her mother and brother is making her home with her grandparents, the Secretary of War and Mrs. Dern.

Duncan Killmaster, son of Commander and Mrs. Benjamin Killmaster. Commander Killmaster has recently come to Washington for duty, and with his family is making his home in Alexandria.

Patsy Jackson, daughter of Mrs. Charles Jackson, of Chevy Chase, adheres to the old saying, "Love me, love my dog."

Underwood & Underwood.

The charming miss in long skirts is Pattie Metzel, daughter of Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Jeffery Caswell Metzel, who was flower girl in the recent wedding of Miss Nancy Sandoz and Mr. Lawrence Thomas Weir.

Roosevelts Attend Robinson Wedding

Daughter of Former Assistant Secretary of War Wed at Hyde Park to Mr. Kenneth S. Walker.

The President and Mrs. Roosevelt attended the wedding yesterday afternoon of Miss Alida Robinson, daughter of the former Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Theodore Douglas Robinson, and Mr. Kenneth S. Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Y. G. Walker, of Llewelyn Park, West Orange, N. J.

The wedding, one of the outstanding social events of the early autumn season, is of interest not only to New York, but also to the Capital, where the bride made her home for several years.

With the President and Mrs. Roosevelt were their daughter, Mrs. Curtis Dall, and their son, Mr. Franklin Delano Roosevelt, jr. Others present were Mr. Vincent Astor, Mr. and Mrs. John Arthur Hinckley, of Washington, brother-in-law and sister of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Blaise Jacques de Sibour, of Washington, another brother-in-law and sister of the bride; Mr. Griffith Warfield, Miss Jane Amory and the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Henry Latrobe Roosevelt and their daughter, Miss Eleanor Roosevelt.

Reception Follows At Roosevelt Home.

Owing to the limited seating capacity of the church the invitations were limited to members of the families and a few intimate friends. A small reception followed at Red House, the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. J. Roosevelt Roosevelt, at Hyde Park.

The Rev. Dr. Ralph B. Pomeroy, of the Church of the Holy Innocents, West Orange, N. J., officiated, assisted by the Right Rev. Julius Atwood, former Bishop of Arizona, and the Rev. Dr. Frank Wilson, rector of St. James'.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of old family rose point lace draped over tulle and made with a long chiffon train falling into five points. A small tulle cap held her veil, of the same lace which had been worn by her grandmother at her wedding. The veil fell to the tip of her train. The bride carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Miss Mabel B. Walker, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a pale green crepe frock with a small brown turban and carried African daisies. The bridesmaids, Miss Phyllis Brewster, Miss Louise Auchincloss, Miss Beatrice Iselin, Miss Deborah Dows, Miss Emily Cross and Miss Dorothy Douglas, cousin of the bride, wore frocks similar to that of Miss Walker's, but of beige crepe, and their turbans and bouquets were the same.

Little Betsy Mary de Sibour, niece of the bride, was flower girl, wearing a frock of pale green voile, with an orange hat. She carried a basket of African daisies.

Mr. Douglas Robinson, brother of the bride, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Nelson Lee, Mr. James Jackson, jr., and Mr. Gardner Emmons, of Boston; Mr. Nicholas Biddle and Mr. James C. Cooley 2d, of New York and Boston; Mr. John Watts, Mr. Stephen van Rensselaer 2d, Mr. Douglas F. Cox, jr., Mr. Lawrence Wilkinson and Mr. John Y. G. Walker, jr., of Llewellyn Park.

Bride a Debutante Of Last Year.

The bride made her debut last November. She attended the Brearley School, in New York, and the Foxcroft School in Virginia. She returned recently from Europe with her mother and joined Mr. Robinson, who had been in Europe and South America.

Through her grandmother, the late Mrs. Douglas Robinson, who was Miss Corinne Roosevelt, Miss Robinson is a grandniece of the late President Theodore Roosevelt. Her mother, the former Miss Helen R. Roosevelt, is a daughter of the late Mr. James Roosevelt and his first wife, who was Miss Helen Astor, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Astor, and a sister of the late Col. John Jacob Astor, who lost his life in the Titanic disaster. Her grandfather, the late Mr. James Roosevelt, was a stepbrother of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. Miss Robinson's father is a former member of the New York Senate and Assembly.

Fall Weddings Hold Interest of Society

Members of Capital society turn to early fall weddings, and every conversation revolves around fall brides and summer engagements. The brides are in demand for parties. The atmosphere is one of excitement.

The outstanding wedding of the month will be that of Miss Laura Elizabeth Curtis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James F. Curtis, of New York and Washington, to George Herbert Bostwick next Saturday in Trinity Church at Rosslyn, Long Island. A reception will follow at Willowmere, the estate of the bride's parents.

Miss Curtis made her debut in Washington, but has spent much time in New York since then. Mr. Bostwick is the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, of New York. He is among the best-known steeplechase riders and polo players in the country.

Mr. Curtis, who has been in Europe, will give his daughter in marriage, and she will be attended by a group of young matrons and maids. Mrs. Lewis F. Preston, formerly Miss Eppes Hawes, will be matron of honor, and Miss Janet White, daughter of Mrs. Richard Aldrich, will be among the bridesmaids.

Another wedding of interest to Washington will be that of Miss Elizabeth Grew, youngest daughter of the United States Ambassador to Japan and Mrs. Joseph C. Grew, and Mr. Cecil Lyon, third secretary of the Embassy in Tokyo, which will take place on Saturday in the American Embassy in Tokyo. Mr. Lyon is the son of Mr. E. Burton Lyon, of New York.

The ceremony will be attended by many diplomats and officials in the Japanese capital.

Miss Grew is the third of the daughters of Ambassador and Mrs. Grew to marry in the foreign service. Setting Features Heigh-Ho Club

Old Mansion's Charm Kept by New Rendezvous.

Washington society is looking forward to the opening of the new Heigh-Ho Supper Club Tuesday evening at 10 o'clock. This intimate rendezvous, catering to those who like late dining and dancing, promises a decorative appeal entirely different. The old Travers mansion, at 1536 Connecticut avenue, has been done over with its original charm maintained. Walcott Clark (better known as Doggey) Waggaman was responsible for the general scheme.

Pete Macias and his orchestra—a great favorite for years with the debutantes—will play in front of a lovely old mantelpiece designed by Stanford White. Heraldic flags of aristocratic families of nearby Virginia and Maryland form an important part of the decorations. Those who attend will recognize the armorial banners of Washington, Lee, Lafayette, Carroll, L'Enfant and many others. The room properly reflects the English renaissance period.

Artists to Award Cups for Most Beautiful, Original, Comical Dress.

The fourth annual Halloween costume ball, under direction of Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner, will be held at the Mayflower Hotel Monday, October 30.

The chairmen of the committees are Miss Jeane Peeples, girls' advisory; Mr. George Riggs, men's advisory, and Miss Dorothy Gould Fowler, girls' floor committee. There will be a large floor committee of men, the chairman being Mr. William Stanley, and the vice chairman, Mr. Homer Tatum. Mr. and Mrs. William D. Cheatham will be joint chairmen of the young married group.

Three prominent Washington artists will serve as judges to award the three silver cups for the most beautiful, the most original and the most comical costume worn.

The ball will start at 10:30. Evening clothes can be worn but, of course, these guests would not be in the "bal parade."

University Club To Open Season

Miss Georgia Campbell Will Be Program's Star.

The University Club will begin its series of entertainments for the winter on Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock when the entertainment committee will present Miss Georgia Campbell in a special recital of song and story. Miss Campbell is a well-known Keith Vaudeville star and is a composer and singer of Southern songs. The star will come from New York to present the program and will include in her selections one of her latest songs "I Have a Rendezvous With Life."

Extensive reservations are being made by those who are entertaining guests for dinner earlier in the evening.

The members of the committee in charge include Mr. Lewis Lofton Moneyway, chairman; Mr. James Oliver Murdock, Mr. Clifford K. Berryman and Mr. Albert E. Stephan. Miss Campbell will be guest of honor at a buffet supper following her program with Mr. Moneyway as host on behalf of his committee.

Gunston Hall Tonight Offers First Recital

Two Faculty Members Will Present Varied Vocal and Piano Numbers.

Miss Mary L. Gildersleeve and Miss Mary B. Kerr have issued invitations for the first musical evening of the school year at Gunston Hall School, to be held this evening.

The artists will be Marjorie Lowe, soprano, and Minna Niemann, pianist, of the school's music faculty.

Miss Lowe will offer some rarely heard songs. The first group of German lieder also will include familiar and beautiful songs by Brahms and Schubert. In her English group there will be a new song by Frank Grey, a character song by Manna Zucca, a number by Besley, and "Why," by Tschaikowsky.

Miss Niemann, too, combines classics that are well known with modern numbers. She will play three intermezzos by Brahms and a Chopin Sonata, also works by Scarlatti and Leo, of the seventeenth century, as well as "Elegie," by Dobrowen, Russian conductor, who comes here later with the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, and "Neu Wien," by Johann Strauss, arranged by Bright.

Capital of Nation Goes Native—Wooden Bracelets, Earrings and All That in Style

Jewelry Business Booming; Many Novelties Are Shown

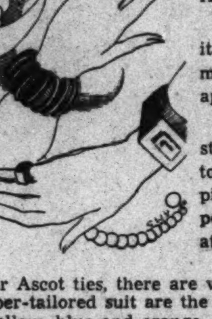
By Ruth Anne Davis.

The first tradesmen who came to this country, more than 400 years ago, brought beads, bracelets and brooches, which they offered to the Indians for land and supplies. Their display counters were logs or rocks, or even the bare ground.



Tradesmen of today are merchants who spread their wares in tempting array behind glass showcases, and cater to the present-day Americans.

This fall sees the jewelry business boom as it hasn't for many a year. It sees gaudier, more daring and varied exhibits than have appeared since the nineteenth century.

To make a shopping tour of Washington stores is to take a course in jewelry styles; to see wooden bracelets, ornamented suede pins, satin earrings, tortoise shell rings, mirror pendants and a thousand and one other variations of the unexpected.

For Ascot ties, there are wooden dog pins selling for $1. And for the somber-tailored suit are the wide, natural wood bracelets crazily striped in yellow, blue and orange.

Tortoise shell is coming into its own again after 40 years. Those who set the styles for us have decided that with a brown suit nothing can better harmonize than transparent tortoise shell bracelets. A downtown store has some of these, wide and elastic, which will offer subtle contrast to any brown outfit.

Silk wire coil bracelets, earrings and necklaces ring a new note. They come in black and silver, or brown; at $1 to $1.95. A springy idea for fall.

It's perfectly simple now to match your suede slippers, bag and gloves with your jewelry. It's here in all the new fall shades, in many odd designs.

So long as you're matching things, don't neglect the satin jewelry which is so effective with satin suits and satin-trimmed dresses. This comes in black and white drop earrings, bracelets and necklaces.

A pair of earrings, which, despite the small size was conspicuous, looked like mirror dice. If you are the sort of person who not only can wear the bizarre—but wear it well—these are for you. They're priced as low as 50 cents.

The "half-and-half" beads offer another departure from the usual. These come in contrasting new shades with earrings to match and are sold for as low as $1 and up to $4.95.

It will be no small wonder if half the ostriches in the world catch cold from exposure this winter, judging by the number who must be running around featherless from so generously contributing to the feminine wardrobe.

One store is showing chic chiffon dance handkerchiefs, trimmed with fluffy, feathery borders. You have a choice of colors; white with black, red or green. The price is $3.95.

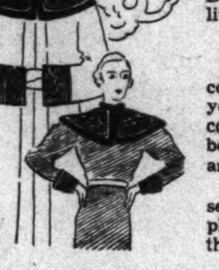
Also there's a slightly tailored white satin collar and cuff set, looking decidedly curly with ostrichy ornamentation (personally coined, but not yet patented).

Another shop has a counter which bounteously displays feather hat quills. Here the poor ostrich is pitifully well represented. There are feather bands, puffs, birds—all waiting to perch on Milady's bonnet. Very small ostrich tips, for only 50 cents, are said to be popular on the little softie hats which are sporty without, and dressy with.

In case veils continue to be as popular as they are at present, this shop is fully prepared. Large or small, soft or stiff, blue or brown, green or black, plain or fancy—whatever you like, here they are—for only half a dollar!

Tunic blouses, showing both Russian and Chinese influence, are among the best sellers in a large department store. A particularly attractive one was bright red trimmed in black, fastening high at the neck with small round gold buttons. A long, loose sash belt fits haphazardly around the waist and falls below the tunic, ending in black tassels fastened with gold threads. This is $7.95. Buy a black satin skirt for $3.95 and you have an inexpensive, delightfully informal ensemble.

Oriental influence further is seen in many collar and cuff sets. One, for instance, is decidedly mandarin with its high neck and flaring cuffs embroidered in black Chinese figures over a white background. With something like this you could make a ten-dollar dress look like twenty-five.



Schiaparelli is still holding sway with some of the epaulette collars. There are all kinds and colors to choose from, but while you're looking, don't fail to see the white Bengaline which fastens down the front with little mirror buttons. The price?—$1.95

It looks as though velveteen "sets" are fast coming to the fore. No matter the color of your fall suit, frock or coat, you can find a corresponding set, which includes scarf and beret. There are two types, one for $1, and another for $1.95.

Chiffon velvet scarfs are vying with these sets in popularity. You may buy them in plaids or stripes, combining any or many of the fall colors.

Velvet gloves are not to be denied this fall. An F street store is showing eight-button-length gauntlets in green, rust, brown and black, for $1.95.

But along with velvet gloves goes a warning. They're the nth degree of smartness when worn with the proper outfit, but any mistake in this regard relegates them from high style to low. They're at their best only with velvet jackets, or with suits or frocks such as lend themselves to velvet accessories.

An innovation in evening gloves is black satin, trimmed in monkey fur. You may buy these for $2.95 in an F street store.

Columbus Day Plans Completed by K. of C.

Spalding Council, Knights of Columbus, will meet Thursday at the clubhouse. Reports of a number of active committees will be received and several important matters laid before the council. The members will participate in the Columbus Day celebration October 12, under the auspices of the order, and also at the annual vesper service next Sunday at Holy Rosary Church.

Plans for a bingo party and a Halloween dance to be given by the council will be announced.

Degree to Be Given By Mithras Lodge

Mithras Lodge of Perfection will hold a regular meeting at the Cathedral of the Scottish Rite, 433 Third street northwest, Tuesday evening, when the fourth degree will be conferred. This is the beginning of the degree ritualistic work for the fall class, and the further degrees in successive order will be conferred each Tuesday night, except November 7, up to and including December 12.

Tuesday evening last, September 26, meetings were held by Robert de Bruce Council, Knights Kadosh, and by Albert Pike Consistory, M. R. S. of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry.

The Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite for the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States, which holds its biennial session in Washington beginning Sunday, October 15, has honored the local bodies of the rite again by requesting them to conduct the ceremony of the investiture of the knights commander of the court of honor, which takes place at the House of the Temple on Sixteenth street Wednesday evening, October 18. In preparation for that event the Rev. John C Palmer, Thirty-third Degree, director of work, held a rehearsal of the participating cast Friday evening last. Another rehearsal will be held during this week.

Programs Arranged By American U. Guild

The American University Women's Guild, under the leadership of Mrs. D. O. Kinsman, will have a season full of activities.

The executive committee, composed of Mrs. Frederick L. Church, Mrs. Wesley Gewehr, Mrs. P. M. Anderson, Mrs. Mary Logan Tucker, Mrs. G. B. Woods, Mrs. W. S. Dewhirst, Mrs. W. E. Springer, Mrs. Frank Ballou, Mrs. H. W. Fisher, Mrs. Harry Oberholser and Miss Mary Louise Brown, met Wednesday at the Women's Residence Hall to discuss October and November plans.

Early next month a tea will be held for new members. Some furnishings will be purchased soon for the Women's Residence Hall.

Smartly Tailored Wool Frocks Are Cut on Lines of Natural Figure

Smart and lovely lines enhance the natural figure in this classic sport frock of black and white knit wool. There is very little contrast in the effect, for the diamond-shaped figures blend into each other and create a pleasing grayness that is set off by the white corded silk collar and cuffs with black buttons. The clerical note is struck by the collar, and promises to be a smart one for the fall.

Gray rabbit tweed is the material from which a famous designer of sportswear has fashioned this smart and lovely suit. A gray kidskin collar of mannish line affords the feminine note. For the rest, it lies in the admirable cut and faultless lines of the coat and skirt and the soft charm of the pearl gray angora sweater. The coat shows a wide tailored box pleat at the back from waist to hem.

Soroptimists Enjoy Foreign Touch at Fete

"International Night" at Lewis School Has Many Features.

The Washington Soroptimist Club held "an international night in the kitchen" at the Lewis Hotel Training School last night.

It was a gala night for the club and its guests. Members came in costumes representing the foreign countries where Soroptimist clubs exist, such as England, Scotland, France, Austria, Germany Switzerland, Italy, Holland and The Netherlands.

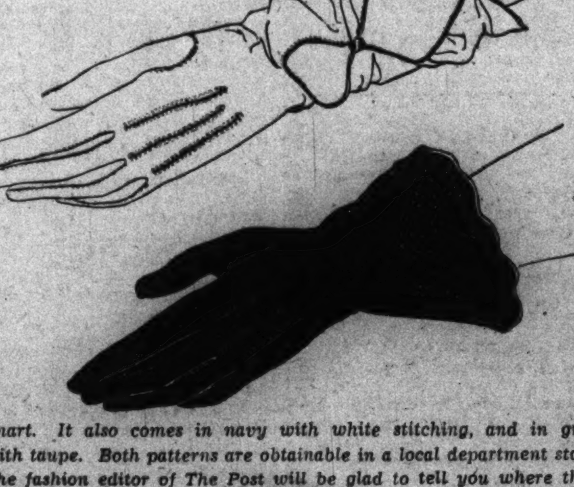
The interesting program was tinged with a foreign atmosphere. Harry Angelico, an Optimist, did a turn with an Italian number. Loretta Murphy, Washington Soroptimist, did an Irish jig, and Marjorie Webster, Washington Soroptimist, did an old English dance.

The menu was served in foreign style. Club songs of foreign Soroptimist clubs interspersed the meal.

About 100 members and guests attended. The proceeds of this event will go toward the convention fund for use in entertaining the 1934 convention delegates in Baltimore on "Washington Day."

Modish Gloves Are Decorative

Gloves are decorative and enchanting this season. Many materials are being used, velvet and corduroy, fabrics of all sorts, as well as the usual leathers. However, most of the smartest for dress wear are bound to be fashioned of the classic kid. The top sketch shows one of the most effective of the new semiformal afternoon and evening gloves, an eight-button length soft kid in egg shell. The cutout cuff design is edged in gold kid and worn crushed around the wrist. It also comes in white kid. Paul Chanut designed it for Aris. The lower sketch portrays one of the more decorative town gloves in a black and white combination. Perforations and stitching supply the trimming and the perforated flared cuff is particularly smart. It also comes in navy with white stitching, and in gray with taupe. Both patterns are obtainable in a local department store. The fashion editor of The Post will be glad to tell you where they may be found.



V. F. W. Ladies Society Holds First Meeting

Auction of Autographed Baseball for Relief Fund Planned.

The newly formed District of Columbia Department, Ladies Auxiliaries to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, met Thursday evening at the home of Department Senior Vice President Roberta Fawcett, 1404 Allison street northwest.

It was the first meeting under the charter from national headquarters. Department President Clay Keene Miller presided.

Mrs. Miller announced that through the courtesy and cooperation of Clark C. Griffith, president of the Washington Baseball Club, she had obtained a baseball autographed by each member of the American League champions and it would be disposed of to raise auxiliary funds.

Luncheons Arranged By Committee of P. E. O.

The cooperative committee of the District of Columbia P. E. O. chapters announces the first of the monthly luncheons which will be held Wednesday at 12:30 in the Harrington Hotel ballroom.

Greater Formality of Line Seen in Evening Gowns

All Have Trains, Even for Young Girls, and Modified Sheath Is Approved Silhouette.

With announcement of official programs for the winter the minds of women and girls alike turn to the formal costumes for not only evening but daytime events for the winter.

Evening gowns are more formal than they have been for several years because all have trains even for very young girls. Of course, there is a compromise in this train effect for dinner gowns and dances. But the dress that comes to the floor is the rule for formal dresses even if worn by a debutante who intends to dance and dance during the debutante season.

Cowl-Like Neckline.

The cowl-like neckline that "pulls" to the back to a very low decollete makes an important feature of many gowns seen at preseason dinners.

Another fashion to which women in Washington cling is the separate tiny coats with evening dresses. They like the touch of color to be obtained by wearing a brilliant velvet or silk coat with a plain evening dress and the practicability for wear in the theater or restaurants. Many take the form of mess jackets worn by the midshipmen at the United States Naval Academy, but they all have leg-o'-mutton or wide-above-the-elbow sleeves that no midshipman would wear.

Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, wife of the senator from Missouri, is wearing a chic knitted costume of rose beige silk, made with a coat effect with extra cape buttoned on. With this Mrs. Clark wears a hat of dark brown felt with a lighter colored brown grosgrained ribbon on it.

Mrs. George Murray looks particularly smart in a fall costume of black silk jersey made on tailored lines. With this she wears a small hat tilted well over one eye and finished with a small black lace veil.

Mrs. Henry Suydam has a black suit of jersey, made with a very short jacket, and pleated skirt with which she wears a white blouse with wide collar and cuffs of white mull. With this she wears a modified turban of black felt.

Other Costumes Noted.

Mrs. John R. Williams attended a Community Chest meeting in a dress of old blue flowered in a lighter shade. With this she wore a blue hat of brushed felt.

Mrs. Frank Mondell chose for a luncheon a dress of black and white silk, with white forming a background. With this she wore wide white silk collar and cuffs, with the collar tied in a bow in the front.

Miss Elena Calderon, who long has had the reputation of being one of the best-dressed women in the diplomatic circles, has a fall ensemble of the new misty gray. This is of grained silk-and-wool material. The coat is trimmed with gray fox. She wears with this one of the new draped velvet hats.

Mrs. Cary Grayson at a meeting recently wore a dress of knitted silk in soft shade of purplish blue. The coat is of the same material as the dress. With this Mrs. Grayson wears a soft felt hat of the same shade as the costume.

Mme. de Laboulaye, wife of the French Ambassador, at a recent reception in Chicago, was costumed in lustrous cream satin, made in sheath effect, with a very low train trimmed with white fur. With this she wore a short white fur cape tied in scarf effect in front.

Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, on a morning stroll in Atlantic City had on a silk knitted suit, with which she wore a gray felt hat with a rather wide brim.

Miss Carolyn Alexander, who will be one of the brides of this week, was shopping in a suit of beige silk and wool, with a tailored silk blouse of cream silk. With this she wore a blue felt hat to match the mannish blue tie that went with her blouse.

Day AND NIGHT IN "CARLTON" SHOES

Gay Nineties' Elegance comes to our Feet in Covert Cloth . . . Gabardine . . . Satin . . .

Beer Garden Ties make you spin with joy, even if 3.2 doesn't. They are the answer to a maiden's prayer—for they can trip on to dinner or dancing, from the afternoon party, without the slightest embarrassment. Eel gray, black, or brown satin—they're that "smooth!" $8.50.

Continental Heels Will make the debutante feel like a woman of the world and the woman of the world, a debutante. This slick covert cloth oxford—in gray, brown or black—will turn the streets of Washington into Paris Boulevards. $7.50.

"I found a Horseshoe!" If you want the Nats to win, wear a Horseshoe on your shoes, to the "World Series!" This Gabardine and kid combination is an absolute knockout. Don't take horse sense to see it's the smartest thing in town! $7.50.

Frocks and Feet must match this season! Elegance is back with a bang. Satin dresses call for satin shoes. The new wools demand covert cloth, or the new rough finish Boucle, and so on. Fashion's the big word—and "CARLTONS" have it!

Women Crusaders Prepare to Act as Advance Guard for Community Chest Campaign

Society and Club Groups Pave Way for Annual Drive

Mrs. Roosevelt Heads Preliminary Movement to Show Needs for Coming Appeal When Campaign Gets Under Way.

A thousand women crusaders for the Community Chest will spread the gospel of human needs in Washington far and wide from October 20 to November 20, preparatory to the yearly Chest campaign to finance 62 agencies, still dependent on it for support.

Club organizations and club women generally will be enrolled among the crusaders in an educational campaign, a sort of advance guard of the Community Chest drive, to the show the urgent needs existing in Washington this year, despite National and local unemployment relief aid.

The Woman's Crusade was organized by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, National chairman, to mobilize the woman power of the Nation behind this campaign for human needs as represented in Community Chest activities.

Prominent Women Sewing.

Mrs. Roosevelt organized a National woman's committee to assist her in this undertaking, and held a conference with its members early in September at the White House. Many prominent women, active in club, social and religious circles, are serving in the Woman's Crusade of Washington, of which Mrs. Eleanor Patterson has been appointed chairman by Mrs. Roosevelt.

Vice chairmen are Mrs. John Boyle, jr., Miss Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Mrs. John J. O'Connor, Mrs. Charles Goldsmith.

In accepting the chairmanship Mrs. Roosevelt declared she had strong convictions the support of community welfare services throughout the country was a pronounced factor in the recovery and maintenance of normal American life.

"With the assumption by local, State and National Governments of such large responsibility for purely material relief of distress, it is important to make clear exact limitations of these governmental services and the large and indispensable function of our voluntary social services in each community," Mrs. Roosevelt said.

Women See Needs.

"Women of the country are closest to those human needs which are met by our nurses, hospitals, child welfare organizations, families, service societies and institutions for preventing delinquency, guiding youth, and furnishing wholesome occupations for our greatly increased leisure time. The women appreciate that in these difficult days these human services are required as never before, and can spread and deepen this conviction in their communities."

Among the District activities for human needs that have to be supported by private contributions outside of National and State governmental aid are included public health needs, foster homes for children, baby clinics, summer camps for undernourished and underprivileged children, free hospital care for those unable to pay, relief to families destitute for reasons other than unemployment, skilled personal advice to men and women, character-building agencies for children, homes for the aged and shelter for the homeless and many kindred services vital to the community and the welfare of its people.

Committee Members.

Members of the executive committee formulating plans for the Woman's Crusade are Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. John Boyle, jr., Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, Miss Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Miss Martha Strayer, Mrs. Frank W. Ballou, Miss Fay Bentley, Miss Selma Borchardt, Mrs. Mark Bristol, Dr. Edith Seville Coale, Mrs. Mary C. Dent, Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Mrs. Charles Goldsmith, Mrs. Cary T. Grayson, Mrs. Gilbert Hahn, Mrs. D. F. Hewett, Mrs. John Herrick, Mrs. Frank W. Mondell, Mrs. James Dudley Morgan, Mrs. Newbold Noyes, Mrs. John J. O'Connor, Miss Bertha Pabst, Mrs. Ernest Parkinson, Mrs. Rilla Schroeder, Miss Etta Taggart, Mrs. Sidney Taliaferro, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, Mrs. Henry West Suydam, Mrs. Mark Lansburgh, Mrs. Joseph N. Saunders and Mrs. John R. Williams.

School Community Centers Start Programs This Week

Civic, Cultural and Social Features Embraced in Widely Varied Plan of Activities Throughout City.

A program of civic, cultural and social entertainment will be started this week in community centers throughout the city under direction of the Community Center department of the District Public Schools.

Besides planned programs, the department will hold entertainments suggested by civic and social groups in the city.

Any organizations which wish to use the Community Centers in school buildings for meetings or entertainments should apply to Mrs. L. W. Hardy, general secretary of the Community Center department, at the Franklin School Building.

Center Opening Dates.

Central High School Community Center, supervised by Mrs. E. H. Hunter, who will be assisted by Mrs. Louise Wynne, will open October 16, and will be available for public use Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Mrs. Hunter is planning a drama group this season, to meet once a week, Tuesday or Wednesday evening.

Columbia Heights Center, also supervised by Mrs. Hunter, will open October 17, with Mrs. M. S. Young as assistant community secretary, and will be available every Tuesday, Thursday and Friday evenings for the season.

East Washington Center, located in Eastern High School and supervised by Mrs. L. W. Hardy, assisted by Mrs. Ella Scott, will open Saturday night with a community program at 8 o'clock. Movies and music, popular last season, will be featured again this year on Saturday nights and every Tuesday and Thursday from 5 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Boys' Activities.

The library at the center will be open to the reading public. Beginning October 10, the popular domestic art group will begin its weekly session. The Washington Boys' Independent Band will hold weekly rehearsals on Tuesday nights and the Troopers, of East Washington Center, will meet Wednesday nights, directed by Arthur Rhodes.

After October 15, athletics will be included in the weekly schedule of this center as has been the custom of many years. Civic and educational groups are invited to make use of the facilities at East Washington Center, as always.

Eckington Community Center, under direction of Mrs. D. E. Middleton, community secretary, will open its various branches this week, beginning Tuesday afternoon, with a children's dance and drama group at Langdon Center. A children's dance and drama group at Burroughs Center, as well as an adult contract bridge club, will be held Wednesday.

Roosevelt-Macfarland Community Center, under the direction of Mrs. A. L. Irving, will open Monday and will be open to the public every Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evening throughout the winter months. Three types of dance will be offered this year at this center: Rhythmic dancing, directed by Miss Evelyn Davis; acrobatic dancing, by Maurice de la Porte, of the Bekefi Institute, and social dancing, by Michael Logan, of the Shafer-Chace Studios. Contract bridge will be offered under the direction of Mrs. Mirabel Lindsay, for beginners and advanced players. Art groups will be organized if sufficiently desired by the public, and other groups will be announced later.

Other Centers.

Barnard Center will open October 2; West Center, October 4, and W. B. Powell Center, October 6. At Petworth Center, at 3:15 p. m., October 5, there will be tryouts for membership in the Children's Sock and Buskin Club, directed by Donna L. Taggart.

Southeast Community Center, conducted by Mrs. M. W. Davis, will hold evening sessions beginning this week on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at Hine Branch; on Thursday evening at Buchanan Branch, and at 3:15 p. m., October 4, at Congress Heights Branch, when a children's rhythm and tap group will be organized. The first community dance and entertainment of the season at Southeast Center will take place at 8 p. m. Thursday at Buchanan Branch.

Thomson Community Center, under direction of Mrs. A. C. Driscoll, will be open every Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, beginning this week. Friday afternoon groups will also be conducted for children's drama, dance and games, under direction of Jeanette P. Tolford. A Senior Boys' Club and a Junior Boys' Club will be formed at 7 p. m., October 5. A dramatic group for adults will be formed, under direction of Marie Moore Forrest, to meet once each week. The center likewise offers groups for the study of contract bridge, French, Spanish, Gaelic and Esperanto. Full information may be obtained at Thomson Center any night this week, or at the Community Center Department, National 1300, during the daytime.

The centers in Divisions 10-13 will open this week, as follows: Birney, directed by Mrs. M. E. Ellis, 7 p. m., Monday; Burrville, directed by Mrs. Carrie J. Knox, Tuesday afternoon and evening; Dunbar, directed by Mrs. Carrie J. Knox, Thursday and Friday evenings and every afternoon; Garfield, directed by Mrs. M. E. Ellis, Wednesday evening; Garnet-Patterson, directed by Miss Etta Johnson, every night except Sunday; West Washington, directed by Mrs. Carrie J. Knox, Wednesday evening.

The opening event of the season at Burrville Center will be the concert by the Burrville Women's Club, at 8 p. m., Tuesday. Members of the club will assist the community secretary in receiving registrations for groups offered by the center in typewriting, drama, community singing, athletics, a toy symphony orchestra and other activities.

Delphians' Chapter Opens 4th Year Work

The National Capital Chapter of Delphians opened its fourth year's work Wednesday at Jelleff's Little Theater with Mrs. P. M. Chichester, president, in the chair. Brief introductory remarks by Mrs. Chichester were followed by a preparatory discussion of the Middle Ages by Mrs. Thomas J. Rice, leader.

Mrs. Charles W. Arth, Mrs. Grant S. Barnhart, Mrs. E. Wade Ball, Mrs. Retta Maybee and Mrs. J. B. Hartley were other speakers on various phases of the subject.

A portrayal of the pre-Christian world by Mrs. Ione M. Knowlton and gems of Stoic philosophy were given by Mrs. W. M. Dixon. An understanding of the influences both for and against early Christianity was presented by Mrs. E. H. Erickson; also an outline of "Tertullian's Defense," by Mrs. Allan Scott Wolfe. These, together with free discussion by all members of the chapter, laid a solid foundation for a comprehensive study of the literature, art, architecture, government, religion and social life of the centuries following the Middle Ages up to and through the Renaissance.

At the close of the lesson the chapter was adrdessed by the Washington field secretary, Mrs. Eleanor Wilson, touching both on past accomplishments and future expectations of the chapter.

Pythian Lodge Union Marked By Ceremonies

Capitol Group Becomes Wealthiest One in Washington.

One of the most important events in Pythian history took place Tuesday evening, when Excelsior Lodge consolidated with Capitol Lodge. The ceremonies were conducted by Grand Chancellor Alfred M. Schwartz, assisted by Grand Keeper of Records and Seal William A. Kimmel.

The following former members of Excelsior Lodge then were installed as officers of the new consolidated lodge: Clifton Ziers as vice chancellor, A. E. Pellowes as master at arms and W. A. Wilding as prelate. Addresses were made by Grand Chancellor Schwartz, Past Grand Chancellor E. J. Newcomb, Past Chancellor Sollers and others. By union of these two lodges Capitol Lodge now becomes the wealthiest Pythian lodge in the city.

Lodge Activities.

Hermoine Lodge, No. 12, announces through its chancellor commander, Dorsey S. Beach, that an extensive campaign is now on to comply with the grand chancellor's drive to increase its membership 20 per cent. The lodge reported receiving several new applications at a special meeting. This lodge now is arranging for semimonthly meetings.

Calanthe Lodge, No. 11, received the grand chancellor and his associate officers at their annual visitation Monday evening. This lodge received congratulations of the Grand Lodge in having made a large showing in increase of membership. The assemblage gathered in the banquet room and dined and heard addresses. This is the home lodge of Grand Keeper of Records and Seal William A. Kimmel and Grand Master of Exchequer Lee B. Emory.

Columbia Lodge, No. 26, will entertain the grand chancellor and Grand Lodge officers at their annual visitation Wednesday, October 11.

Th following lodges will hold regular meetings during the coming week: Monday evening, Washington Company Uniform Rank, Amaranth Lodge, No. 28, Northeast Masonic Temple; Century-Decatur Lodge, No. 30. Tuesday, Webster, No. 7, Capitol, No. 24. Wednesday, Mount Vernon, No. 5, Friendship Temple, No. 9. Friday, Syracusians, No. 10, Rathbone Temple, No. 8. All lodges and temples will meet in the Pythian Temple except Amaranth.

Last Friday evening members of Syracusians Lodge entertained the members of their rank team at a banquet at Schneider's. Among the guests were Grand Chancellor Alfred M. Schwartz and Grand Master of Exchequer Lee B. Emory. Past Chancellor John C. Murphy presided as toastmaster.

Rathbone-Superior Lodge, No. 29, announces that on Friday, October 13, the thirteenth visitation held by Grand Chancellor Schwartz will take place in this lodge. It will close the season of visitations. As has been the custom the last visitation of the season always is held by the lodge of which the grand chancellor is a member. A special program is being arranged. The rank of knight was conferred upon Henry Liebschutz.

Spanish Figh Veterans Tall Pension Relie

Parties and Excursions Are Planned by Camps and Auxiliaries.

The regular meeting of Col. James S. Pettit Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, was held Tuesday, Commander William D. Watts presiding. The general orders of the outgoing and newly elected commanders-in-chief were read and filed. Reports of the committee chairmen were submitted. William Morian, of Admiral Schley Camp, No. 16, Department of New York, and J. L. McCarthy, also of New York, were among the visitors and addressed the meeting on service-connected disability and other topics. Past Commander M. R. Cooney, of Miles Camp, spoke on pension legislation. Following the meeting refreshments were served.

The monthly meeting of Gen. M. Emmett Urell Camp was convened in Pythian Temple Wednesday evening by Commander Anton Hohmann. The chairman of the sick committee reported Comrade T. C. Reese, confined to Mount Alto Hospital, very much improved. Past Commander Samuel Silverman, chairman of the delinquent committee, reported his visits to delinquent members and collection of dues. Past Commander Samuel J. McWilliams and James B. Freeland and Comrade W. F. Smith were designated by the commander to confer with the members of Urell Auxiliary regarding the annual birthday party October 25. The chair appointed a permanent committee consisting of Past Commander Samuel Silverman and James B. Freeland and Junior Vice Commander Gary E. Powell to assist the officers of the auxiliary in completing arrangements for the party. All comrades and their families of Urell Camp are expected to attend the event.

Department Commander Charles A. Strobel spoke on the work of the national encampment and the desire of the national officers for recruiting by all camps. Junior Vice Department Commander George V. McAlear also spoke and urged the members to lend their assistance in bringing in new members. Department Publicity Officer George F. Cook, Past Commander M. R. Cooney, Comrades J. L. Barnes, of Miles Camp, and J. B. White, of Harden Camp, were among those present. The death of Lieut. Michael J. Leahy was reported and the camp observed the usual moment of silent prayer.

Camp Plans Excursion.

Commander William O. Ohm, of Richard J. Harden Camp, was in the chair at the regular meeting Thursday. Chairman Long, of the relief committee, made a report on sick members, showing several confined in hospitals and in respective homes.

Quartermaster Hudlow advised the camp of a ruling by the War Department whereby wives of Spanish War veterans 60 years of age or over who precede their husbands in death may be buried in Arlington National Cemetery. Past Department Commanders William L. Mattocks and Patrick J. Callan addressed the meeting on matters pertaining to pension and stated remedial legislation is expected at the next session of Congress. Junior Vice Department Commander McAlear brought greetings from the department commander, who was unable to attend.

Quartermaster Gen. James J. Murphy, Past Department Commander Bill Orthman, of McKinley Camp, Chicago, and Past Commander Frederick A. Dellar, just returned from an extended visit to Europe, also spoke on matters of general interest. Comrade Charles D. Long announced a meeting of the Snaix at Wheaton, Md., Saturday, September 30.

Auxiliaries Meet.

President Lillian Copley, of Col. James S. Pettit Auxiliary, United Spanish War Veterans, convened the semimonthly meeting Monday evening in Naval Lodge Hall. A new set of by-laws was adopted. Department President M. Gertrude Keyes and several of the department officers addressed the auxiliary.

The regular meeting of Admiral George Dewey Naval Auxiliary was held Monday, President Elizabeth Titlow presiding. Hanova Casey was admitted to membership and formally received. Plans for the fall activities will be outlined tomorrow evening.

President Grace R. Byrne, of Gen. M. Emmett Urell Auxiliary, convened the monthly meeting Wednesday in Pythian Temple. It was voted to hold the annual birthday party on October 25 and plans are being completed by a committee from the auxiliary and one appointed by the commander of the camp. Following the meeting a bingo party was enjoyed by the members and the visiting sisters.

Col. John Jacob Astor Auxiliary will entertain National President Mamie B. Schmidt, national officers, the department president and department commanders and their respective staffs on the occasion of the meeting to be held at 921 Pennsylvania avenue southeast on Tuesday. The commander and members of Astor Camp have been invited to be present.

President Gretta W. Ludwig of Miles Auxiliary entertained the members of the President's Club at her home on Wednesday. She was assisted by Past Presidents Tillie Mae Roth, Carrie E. Nolan and Edna R. Summerfield.

Gen. Nelson A. Miles Camp met Friday in Pythian Temple, President Gretta W. Ludwig presiding. Arrangements have been completed for the bazaar and barn dance to be given on October 31 at the Pythian Temple, to which all sisters and comrades and their families and friends are invited. The committee has made elaborate plans.

Musical and Recreational Groups to Participate in City-Wide Festival in November

$20,000 for Reservations At Symphony Concerts Listed

Washington Oratorical Society Starts Rehearsals Tomorrow on Handel's "Messiah;" Seeks to Increase Number of Voices to 150.

Music-loving Washington and men and women associated with the Council of Social Agencies have joined hands to make the musical festival sponsored by the council, from October 30 to November 14, a success. Austin Zanzig, of the National Recreation Association, will lead the festival.

All musical groups in Washington will take part in the city-wide festival, which will bring the subject of music before people of the District as well as create interest in social agencies.

The Community Centers, Department of Public Schools and the Playground Department of the District are participating, as well as settlement and recreational groups.

Symphony Draws Support.

That Washington is prepared to support musical activities this year is seen in the fact that already more than $20,000 has been received for reservations for concerts of the National Symphony Orchestra. C. C. Cappel, manager of the orchestra, announced he is certain of great interest in the National Symphony's schedule. There will be Thursday and Sunday concerts at Constitution Hall, and the student' and children's series will be held at the Central High School.

The first concert is scheduled for October 15, and Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor, has formulated a tentative program, which will include the following compositions:

Concert Prelude and Fugue, C minor (Bach) transcribed from the original organ score by Edgar T. Paul; Suite Symphonique, "Scheherazade" (Rimsky-Korsakow); Concerto No. 5 in E flat for piano and orchestra (Beethoven), Ernest Hutcheson, soloist; From "Lyric Pieces," Herzwunden (Grieg); "Entrance of the Boyards" (Halvorsen-Grieg).

Hutcheson to Play.

Washington is prepared to welcome the appearance of Hutcheson as soloist with the orchestra due to the many persons who have become familair with this pianist in the series of weekly concert programs on the radio. As dean of the Juillard Graduate School of Music, Hutcheson has become well known in the musical educational world.

The success of the Washington Oratorio Society in recent years has made the activities of this organization very important in the musical world of the Capital. Rehearsals will begin tomorrow night at the Washington Musical Institute, Eighteenth and I streets northwest, when intensive work on singing of Handel's "Messiah" will be inaugurated.

The society will present this composition during the season. The society begins its season with 35 voices. Efforts are being made to increase this number to 150 for the singing of Handel's masterpiece.

Washington still remembers the production last May of Haydn's, "The Creation" at Central High School. George F. Kortzenborn will continue as musical director and Howard E. Severe as director.

Music Notes.

With the closing of the summer band concert season at the Capitol and public parks, Lieut. Charles Benter, leader of the U. S. Navy Band, is preparing for a series of indoor concerts to be given at the sail loft in the Navy Yard during the winter.

Following the custom of previous years, these concerts will be played by the U. S. Navy Band Orchestra, and will open with a symphonic program Monday evening, October 9, at 8 o'clock. The public is cordially invited.

Mme. Grete von Bayer, concert pianist and teacher, will return from Amherst, Mass., to her residence, 4435 Garfield street, about October 15 to resume teaching. She will have a new downtown studio.

Grace Hazard Wormelle announces the opening of the fifteenth year of her studio for voice, piano and expression. Her summer school pupils gave a number of recitals, the most recent one being a musical, with readings, entertaining the neighborhood group of All Souls' Church, Unitarian. Mrs. Mary C. Tighe, pianist of Takoma Park, assisted.

The Francis Asbury Quartet—Fannie Shreve Heartsill, soprano and director; Helen Marie Koontz, contralto; Ellsworth Condrin, tenor, and Fred C. Schaefer, bass—assisted by Stuart J. Dewey, trumpeter, will be heard in special music at both services today at Francis Asbury Church. Allen H. Watson will preside at the organ.

The Francis Asbury Quartet—Fannie Shreve Heartsill, soprano and director; Helen Marie Koontz, contralto; Ellsworth Condrin, tenor, and Fred C. Schaefer, bass—with Stuart J. Dewey, trumpeter, and Frank K. Sanderson in Negro spirituals, assisted in a delightful concert at Clarendon Friday night. Katherine Floeckher Cullen and Mrs. Frank K. Sanderson were the accompanists.

Estelle Allen, of the Estelle Allen Studios of the Cultivation of the Speaking Voice and Associated Arts, 2109 S street, announces that she has added Mrs. Jack Edwards to her teaching staff as head of the vocal department.

Keeping conversant with the modern trend in drama and the dance, Caroline McKinley has just returned from a visit to New York to see the newest plays and productions. Miss McKinley resumes her teaching in dramatic art and rhythmic expression at the King-Smith Studio School with the opening of the school term on October 9.

Katharine Frost, of the faculty of the King-Smith Studio School, also returns this week from a summer in Maine and a visit to Boston. Mrs. Frost will continue her advanced piano classes, with special emphasis upon piano interpretation of the moderns.

Bach Memorial Music Program Is Announced

Christmas Oratorio Will Be Sung by Choir at Bethlehem.

Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" will be sung Friday of the 1934 Bach festival and the Mass in B Minor on Saturday by the Bach Choir of Bethlehem, according to announcement by Bruce Carey, of Philadelphia, director of the Bach Choir.

The "Christmas Oratorio" will be given in commemoration of the 200th anniversary of its composition by Johann Sebastian Bach.

It will be sung in two parts, afternoon and evening, similar to the rendition of the mass on Saturday. The dates for the festival next May have not as yet been set.

The members of the choir have been notified that rehearsals will be resumed on Thursday evening, October 5, in the chapel of the Moravian Seminary and College for Women.

Plans Programs

MRS. ANNE YAGO McGUFFEY.

Anne Yago McGuffey, contralto, will direct the glee club at Holton Arms School this season. Beginning October 2, she will have a studio there, in addition to the one at her home.

Mrs. McGuffey is planning programs to be given this year at the Arts Club, the Friday Morning Music Club and the University Club and many out-of-town engagements.

It was in Toronto, Canada, her birthplace, that Mrs. McGuffey began the study of music. She is a graduate of the conservatory there, where she studied piano, harmony and voice, the latter with Mme. Marchesi. From Toronto Mrs. McGuffey went to New York, where she was the pupil of Frank La Forge for three years.

Her operatic debut was in New York, as Alan a Dale in "Robin Hood." Since then she has been heard in many of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, with De Wolf Hopper, and other companies, in tours throughout the country.

Mrs. McGuffey has sung grand opera roles with Gallo in New York and with the Philadelphia and St. Louis Civic Opera Companies.

Washingtonians have heard Mrs. McGuffey for many years, at one time in the old President Theater and Poli's. It was here that she married Mr. McGuffey, of the family of the First Reader fame.

Early in the summer season Mrs. McGuffey was soloist with the Marine Band. In July she left on a tour which took her to Cincinnati and Mexico. She was heard in the Gilbert and Sullivan roles, by which she is best known. K. W. S.

Raising Dahlias Grows Popular In Washington

These Untamed Flowers Were Predominant at Carlton Show.

Dahlias are capturing the interest of Washington garden owners, as demonstrated by large crowds attending a recent show in the Carlton Hotel, where their fringed petals predominated.

Interior Secretary Ickes is a dahlia enthusiast. He has propagated and patented a new red and gold petaled variety of the flower. Other figures prominent in Washington social circles have made dahlias their hobby.

The dahlia, a wild native of Mexico, has never been thoroughly tamed. Under cultivation its independence is apt to pop up at any time.

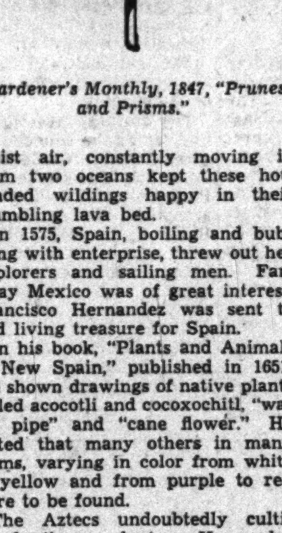
The enthusiast selects and raises his plants with all the care and skill of an animal breeder. Maj. J. B. Eastman, Laurel, one time impressed by the beauty of a New England dahlia garden, resolved some day to have similar beauties. About ten years ago he found a suitable location and developed it into a half acre of select plants.

Women Like Dahlias.

"Many women find dahlia growing a pleasant and sometimes a profitable hobby," Maj. Eastman says. "They seem to prefer the more practical and equally beautiful medium and small size blossoms. Such flowers with proper care when cut can be kept a week.

"They should be plunged into very cold water when cut, preferably late in the day, and placed in the cellar overnight. The stems should be cut every day under water, at no time raising the stem above the surface."

When cut, a draft is fatal to the beauty of those notional blooms. In their native home, however, fresh, moist air, constantly moving in from two oceans kept these hot-headed wildings happy in their crumbling lava bed.



Gardener's Monthly, 1847, "Prunes and Prisms."

In 1575, Spain, boiling and bubbling with enterprise, threw out her explorers and sailing men. Faraway Mexico was of great interest. Francisco Hernandez was sent to find living treasure for Spain.

In his book, "Plants and Animals of New Spain," published in 1651, are shown drawings of native plants called acocotli and cocoxochitl, "water pipe" and "cane flower." He stated that many others in many forms, varying in color from white to yellow and from purple to red were to be found.

The Aztecs undoubtedly cultivated these plants. Hernandez trailed them to their original home on the 6,000-foot high plateau, centered between the oceans, sheltered by mountains. Stout Cortez and Balboa strode through their sea of color, unknown ocean still ahead. The modern mimic, Haliburton, probably tucked one in his buttonhole.

Varieties Are Many.

In 1810 eight varieties were known. By 1820 there were 30 varieties in the Royal Gardens at Berlin, some double. This is mentioned by George W. Johnson, who put out "The Dahlia, Its Culture, Uses and History," about 1847, when the 30 had increased to 149 varieties.

Flower shows were held then even as now. The dahlia had become a craze; large sums were spent on its cultivation. By this time the dahlia had escaped from royal gardens and great estates and could be found in many a cottage flower bed.

Plants, roots and seeds may be found for all purses. The gardens are started in May or June from tubers or seeds. The little plants resent too hot sun and require good drainage and plenty of moisture to fill their hollow stalks. The labors of the dahlia lover are rewarded in September or October. Later the first touch of frost and all is over. The roots are dug up and very carefully preserved from any dampness through the winter until spring brings new candidates for the names of newly popular heroes of the day.

Poet Poe's Mysterious Death Recalled as Anniversary Nears

True Story of His Plight In Baltimore Street Never Divulged.

Saturday, October 7, will be the eighty-fourth anniversary of the death of Edgar Allan Poe. In this event Poe, weaver of mysteries and the founder of the mystery story in the days from September 27 to October 7, 1849, and in his death, provided the most baffling mystery of American literature.

For, on October 2, 1849, in "the lonesome October of his most memorable year" this strange genius was found dying on the street in Baltimore. The true story of his plight never has been divulged and is now beyond discovery. Many theories have been advanced, but in all of them certain discrepancies are to be found.

It is one of the ironies of letters that this man, whose analytical mind devised such prodigious feats of imagination as those in "The Gold Bug," "The Murders in the Rue Morgue," "MSS. Found in a Bottle" and "The Black Cat," forerunners and inspiration of characters such as Sherlock Holmes and others, should furnish in the mysterious ending of his own life such a perplexing secret.

Exit in True Poesque Way.

It must be remembered that 1849 was before the days of exhaustive police research into current mysteries. City officials of the day were content to accept the physician's verdict of "exposure" to the elements while in a weakened condition without thought of the darker story which might, in true Poesque manner, lurk behind the obvious.

Yet, in a sense, it was highly appropriate that the word-painter of horrors should find the stage of life set for his exit in the scenery of the weird. And it was peculiarly fitting that his last life scene should be located in Baltimore.

Baltimore was the home of his heart, if not indeed the place of his birth, as Poe himself often claimed. In the Monumental City he had known nearly all the meager portion of happiness that had been his. There he had tasted the joys of first literary fame and love had dawned there in his romance with his beautiful cousin, Virginia Clemm.

Again and again in his wanderings his thoughts returned to his beloved Baltimore. In the words of Tennyson, there his world-wearied eyes were to see "the casement slowly grow a glimmering square" as mortal light grew into the radiance of Heaven.

The city of his ancestors was to receive back the broken body of this outcast poet who was to become a proud heritage of his race.

Scorned, ignored and shunned in his life, he was to be the cornerstone of the whole Poe family temple. Baltimore again and again had been his refuge in his youth. Now it was to afford him the last kindly shelter of all—the grace of a grave.

His simple grave in Westminster Churchyard has become one of the world's literary shrines. Thousands yearly visit it to pay tribute to a poet whose fame has grown immeasurably since his passing. The mysterious circumstances attending his death have enhanced this interest.

Fame Halted by Slanders.

In a literary sense, after his death, his fame was obscured for years by the envious slanders and carpings on the part of the less gifted. That "unmerciful disaster," of which he wrote so poignantly in "The Raven," was the companion of his memory as well as of his life. Literary immortality, though, has a way of claiming its own, and Poe, eventually, has received full recognition.

That sapient genius, Mark Twain, once declared the question of a man's literary fame can be settled only after he has been dead for 100 years. In 16 years more Poe will have remained, since his death in 1849, a shining mark in American literature for a round century. There is little likelihood that the handful of years remaining will witness any dimunition of his fame. It is built on the solid rock of genius and merit.

In the scanty collection of fantastic tales, less than 50 poems and other miscellaneous writings Poe left behind him are the essential qualities of real literature.

Edwin Markham, dean of modern American poets, once wrote: "Poe casts from literary America the longest shadow across the world." His literary ability is hailed particularly in France and England, the first to recognize him adequately and the Poe circle of friends, admirers and adherents in this country is an ever widening one. The renaissance of Poe is here.

Women Voters To Hear Sweet Discuss NRA

Former Colorado Governor to Tell Probable Effect on Everyday Life.

"Social Evolution Through the NRA," will be the topic at the forum luncheon when District of Columbia League of Women Voters inaugurate the new club season at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday, October 4.

With former Gov. William E. Sweet, of Colorado, as the speaker, the league will initiate a program which calls for close study of economic problems confronting women as citizens and homemakers and their relations to developments under the "New Deal."

Former Gov. Sweet, who has come to Washington to be chief of the educational division of the Department of Public Relations of the NRA, will analyze the effect which the NRA may be expected to have on everyday life.

Directors of the league who will be at the speakers' table are Mrs. Edward Costigan, Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. George Ricker and Mrs. Lyman Swormsted.

The luncheon will be held at the clubhouse of the American Association of University Women, 1634 I street, where reservations may be made.

Joppa Lodge Chapter, O. E. S., Plans Meeting

Joppa Lodge Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, will meet Wednesday, October 4, at 8 p. m. The annual bazaar will be held October 4 and 5. There will be many useful articles for sale and a chicken dinner will be served at Joppa Lodge Hall, 4209 Ninth street northwest, on Thursday, October 5, at 5 p. m.

Members of the chapter are invited to attend an "at home" at the Masonic and Eastern Star Home October 14, from 8 o'clock to 10:30 p. m.

The annual grand visitation to Joppa Lodge Chapter will be held October 18. "Brother Night" was observed at the last meeting, when the members of Joppa and Petworth Masonic Lodges were guests of the chapter. A program of readings and vocal solos was followed by refreshments and dancing.

Woman's Club Meets To Fix Year's Program

Officers and members of all committees of the Woman's Club of Sixteenth Street Highlands met at the home of its newly elected president, Mrs. Lewis J. Battle, to discuss plans for the year's work.

The first meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Minott E. Porter on Madison street. Mrs. Robert L. Haycock has been named program chairman.

Varied Program Arranged By Drama Guild Committee

Possibly Six Plays to Be Presented in Season Opening Nov. 10.

The Drama Guild of Washington will offer this season, beginning November 10 and 11, at Wardman Park Theater, the most varied program in its career, including definitely five plays instead of four, as in former years and a probable sixth production, of the three prize-winning plays in the guild's 1933-34 one-act play-writing contest now going on.

With the greater number of its proposed productions entirely new to drama lovers of the Capital City, the guild season will open with that delightful drama by A. A. Milne, "The Perfect Alibi," which had such success when given in New York City several seasons ago. Denis E. Connell, chairman of the producing group of the guild, is now engaged in choosing the players for the cast.

Five-Week Intervals.

Plays will be offered this season by the guild at intervals of not more than five weeks, hence the second play is scheduled for December 15 and 16, and will be, in all probability, the romantic (albeit satiric) comedy, "I Love an Actress," by Laszlo Fodor, whose delightful "Church Mouse" introduced him to America in 1931. An outstanding New York Theater Guild success, "Ned McCobb's Daughter," by Sidney Howard, a real American play with the locale in a real New England farmhouse, will be presented early in the new year, and a fourth play scheduled for production will be a Pinero revival, "The Gay Lord Quex," a brilliant comedy of manners, entirely unknown to the present generation of Washington theatergoers, but an outstanding success of 20 years ago in England and America.

Play by Local Author.

For the final production of the season, early in May, 1934, the guild will present either a manuscript play, possibly by a local author, a number of which are now under consideration by the play-choosing committee, or else, as a probable alternative, "Night Over Taos," a romantic tragedy of Old Mexico, in verse, by Maxwell Anderson, winner of the 1933 Pulitzer Prize with his "Both Your Houses."

The Drama Guild's 1933-34 membership list is now being made up by the committee and new members will be welcome. Membership in the Drama Guild is open to all theater lovers. The committee chairman is Grace Peters Johnson, 2842 Allendale place.

Chaminade Glee Club Resumes Work Tuesday

The first rehearsal of the Chaminade Glee Club will be held at Thomson School, Twelfth and L streets northwest, Tuesday evening, and the club will meet regularly Tuesday evenings thereafter. New members are cordially invited.

The club begins its thirteenth season with the following officers: Agnes Sale, president; Miriam Abell, first vice president; Mildred Myers, second vice president; Eileen Lee, secretary; Erminie Leonardo, treasurer; Ruth Evans, librarian, Esther Linkins, director, and Mrs. Howard Blandy, accompanist.

Church Group Will Organize Into Symphony

Foundry Methodist Folk Plan to Offer Works in Oratorio.

Included among the educational activities at the Letts Educational Building, Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church, is the plan for forming a symphony orchestra.

Known as the Foundry Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of George Sklar, the new organization will offer to music lovers symphonies and works in oratorio. The vestry choir of Foundry Church, under direction of Justin Lawrie, together with the orchestra, will form the large ensemble.

The principal soloist will be Justin Lawrie, music director of the church.

With the present group comprising several advanced musicians, an invitation is extended to advanced students in music and to others playing orchestral instruments to become associated with the new organization. Any one interested in the orchestra may write to the Rev. E. L. Ford, educational director of Foundry Church.

Rehearsals will be held at the Letts Building, 1500 Sixteenth street northwest, the date to be announced later.

Women's City Club to Hear Season Plans

Bridge Section to Start Instruction Next Month.

Members of the Women's City Club will meet at the clubhouse, 736 Jackson place, Wednesday, at 8 p. m., to learn the plans for the season's program.

Miss Clara Saunders, chairman of hospitality, and the committee members plan to resume the Sunday afternoon teas.

Mrs. J. [illegible] Freiot, chairman of the Friday Tournament Club, announces playing begins Friday afternoon.

Miss Elva McNamara will be hostess on Tuesday at a meeting of the Tuesday bridge section. Mrs. Charles H. Curl will resume instructions at the meeting October 10.

A beginners' contract bridge class will meet Tuesday, October 17, at 11 a. m. Mrs. Charles H. Curl will instruct. Regular meetings of the Tuesday morning group will have "Forcing Bids and Responses" and "Forcing Bids and Leads" as the topic of the lesson.

French classes will resume study.

Mrs. Caroline B. Stephen, chairman of the business and professional section, and members of the committee are planning a dinner, October 18.

Mrs. Dorothy Butler, chairman of the current events section, has arranged a meeting for October 10, at 4:50 p. m., when Mr. Grattan Kerans will be the speaker. "The Philippine Question" will be the subject of the talk. Miss Peyton Hawes will show slides taken when former Senator Hawes visited the islands. Miss Hawes was a member of the party.

Potomac Council Sets New Meeting Dates

Potomac Council, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, will hold meetings at 935 G place northwest, on the first and third Saturdays.

Justice Council met on September 21 with Councilor Carrie Powell presiding. Among those present were State Councilor Emma Barnes, Past State Councilor Mabel Hall, and Deputies Louise McDonald, Mary Williams and Elizabeth Shepherd.

Washington Council held a meeting with Councilor Irene Dilsaver in the chair. Plans were made for a masquerade dance to be held October 28 at 935 G place. Mrs. Gertrude V. Dorsey will be obligated at the next meeting. Remarks were made by State Councilor Barnes, Deputy Jenkins, State Outside Nichols, State Editor Mallory and others.

The meeting of Columbia Council was conducted by the councilor, Lawrence Gray. Miss Eleanora Seidler was accepted by ballot. Plans were discussed for good of the order activities during coming months. Past State Councilor Anna Dreyer expressed the appreciation of the council to their deputy, Mrs. Fannie Mason, and a potted plant was voted Mrs. Mason by the members. The council had as guests State Vice Councilor Sue Mehaffie, Past State Councilors Sadie Jenkins and Richard Righter, State Associate Treasurer Catherine Cochran, and State Editor H. B. Mallory. The council will meet again October 5.

Card Party Planned By Friendship Lodge

Mrs. Daisy Smithson, noble grand of Friendship Lodge, Rebekahs, announces the lodge will hold a card party Tuesday, October 17, following the regular meeting. Prizes will be awarded and refreshments served. Miss Minnie B. Hohn is chairman of the ways and means committee.

Rebekah Assembly announces a card party to be held at Southern Dairies, 60 M street northeast, Wednesday at 8:30 p. m.

Delphians to Meet.

The first fall meeting of the Gamma Chapter, Delphians, will be held at the Shoreham Hotel tomorrow night. "Examples of Medieval Drama" will be discussed.

At Last the Season of Itinerant Drama Is Launched in the National Capital

The Cinema and Its Uses, a New Leading Man and Sister Aimee!

THE motion picture, it seems, is becoming increasingly aware of its potentialities as a medium unique among the theater's varied forms of dramatic expression.

It is, of course, one of the commentator's less distasteful tasks to recognize and proclaim the artistic achievements of such authentic luminaries of the cinema heavens as Miss Garbo, Miss Hepburn, Frau Dietrich, Miss Dressler, Mr. Barrymore, Mr. Laughton, Mr. Arliss, and the like, and to say kind things about the promising antics of such young players as seem to be headed for stardom, but it is still more heartening to perceive symptoms that perhaps, eventually, the celluloids will awaken to a complete realization that a field all their own is to be had for the mere taking.

This is not at all to say that no merit reposes in the personal exploitation of screen players whose distinctive endowments have been found peculiarly marketable for mass consumption. This department is tenacious in its belief that as at present constituted, the motion picture, as an instrument of commercialized entertainment, is primarily a product of personality; that it has not alone survived, but has flourished and grown fat, as a result of the projection of definite and individual human traits, rather than by the picturing of mere places and things.

The so-called "star system," under which both the stage and the screen have reached their highest points of cultural productiveness, needs no further defense than the record of their past development.

There is, however, a tremendous and practically unexplored field of effort affording the pictures an unexampled opportunity to capitalize those qualities of greatness which they alone possess. In the apprehension of vast physical and psychological movements, the interweaving of past and present, the capturing of far-flung vistas, and the bringing of remote and little-known aspects of living accurately and comprehensively to the knowledge of the casual stay-at-home, the motion picture has no rival. Indeed, it has no competitor whatever.

This is its own exclusive field of virgin effort and the avenue to a greater measure of informative and diverting usefulness than it has ever, heretofore, quite encompassed.

A few astute producers have, with sporadic enthusiasm, from time to time made use of this wider scope of the cinema to their own and the public's distinct advantage.

"Grass," "Chang," "Krakatoa" and, in modified degree, "Trader Horn" and "Bring 'Em Back Alive" were pictures that availed themselves of the wider possibilities of the cameras and microphones as means of bringing the far spots of the world close to hand.

The current cinema reveals a further tendency to adventure along the same, almost untrodden, path.

* * * *

THE determination of Carl Laemmle and Universal Pictures to reopen the Rialto Theater, after a long summer of inactivity, with so unusual a film as "S O S Iceberg" is a gesture in the direction of establishing the motion picture as a form exclusive and sufficient unto itself.

Whether the fictional story threading the Arctic action of "S O S Iceberg" strikes the personal fancy or not, the fact remains that here is an obviously genuine and commendable effort to reflect upon the silver sheet not only an exciting and bleakly tragic tale of the frozen wastes of the Far North but something of the cinema's higher function, as well.

It is not given to many to view the beauties or encounter the dangers of exploration among the polar ice packs, save as some such painstaking enterprise as "S O S Iceberg" renders that vicarious privilege possible.

Whatever its rating in individual appraisal as enjoyable entertainment, it can not but send those who view it attentively out into the light with something added to the sum total of their store of human knowledge.

That, after all, should not be inimical to the screen's major aspirations.

* * * *

THERE is in the offing another picture, soon to be seen at RKO-Keith's, which dedicates itself to a similar exploration of the psychological depths—or shallowness—of human nature, as it exemplifies itself in certain strata of the American social structure.

In converting Eugene O'Neill's dramatic exposition of the devastating power of an abject and consuming terror, conjured by an uneasy conscience to bedevil a receptive and susceptible mentality, the youthful Messrs. John Krimsky and Gifford Cochran, distributors in this country of the much-discussed "Maedchen in Uniform," have elected to undertake the expansion of a play that placed large reliance in the power of suggestion into a perfect pattern for the cinema's wide capacity for realistic effect.

With what success they have accomplished their purpose will be divulged to Washington within the space of another week.

In the person of Paul Robeson, one of the leaders of his race in scholastic attainment, athletic prowess, acting ability and eminence as a singer, the producers have the initial advantage of a commanding personality.

But beyond that is an almost unparalleled opportunity to demonstrate with what success the cameras and microphones can be made to embrace those intangible elements of greatness that are inherent in any accurate reflection of the profoundest of human emotions in turmoil amid surroundings that complete the trilogy of dramatic essentials of time, place and action.

Whether or not the consummation here contrived is to be written down among the immortal achievements of the world in shadows, it at least is to be commended as another evidence of willingness to carry the cinema into fields where it has heretofore been virtually a stranger. Along that way lies progress.

* * * *

ABANDONING, for the moment, consideration of the drama of animated highlights and shadows in favor of the older traditional stage, it is found that there, too, innovation is the order of the day.

Most actors, for example, dream of becoming directors, deeming that popular star of the screen and stage, who is appearing for the first time on a Washington stage as headliner of this week's vaudeville bill at the Earle Theater.

LENORE ULRIC,
one of the most vibrant of the drama's stars, who returns to the National Theater this week to inaugurate the new season of road-show attractions in "Her Man of Wax," Julian Thompson's adaptation of the German play by Walter Hasenclever, in which she assumes the role of a gorgeous movie queen.

Miss Ulric in A New Vehicle National Lure

Some indication of what Mr. Lee Shubert thinks of this season's theatrical prospects is offered by his announcement that "Her Man of Wax," starring Lenore Ulric, will have its pre-Broadway premiere at the National Theater tomorrow night.

Headed by Miss Ulric, one of the few really glamorous stars of the theater, the cast numbers 60 players, including Lloyd Corrigan, who originated the role of Napoleon in the Pasadena Playhouse production of the play; Moroni Olsen, Raymond Bramley, Jane Farrell, Clarence Rock, Mortimer H. Welden and Martin Abbott.

Any script calling for a cast of 60 players is an ambitious one. The fact that Julian Thompson is listed as the American adaptor from the German of Walter Hasenclever's play, "Napoleon Intervenes," points to a likely satiric, imaginative and, above all, humorous interpretation of the German script. For Mr. Thompson will be remembered as the author of "Her Warrior's Husband," a play that kept New York laughing for many months.

Arthur Lubin, who staged the Coast production, was imported to do similar service for the present one.

Outside of Lenore Ulric, whose characterizations on the stage have always been marked by a dash and fire that more often than not have made front page news, most interest is attached to the name of Lloyd Corrigan, who will play Napoleon in this very untypical Napoleonic play.

Mr. Corrigan's addition to the cast was in the nature of a scoop for Mr. Lubin, the director. For the former is a well-known Hollywood director who has made many important pictures for Paramount and had to be abducted from the picture colony to play a role he was so admirably fitted for by temperament and physical appearance.

As a wax Napoleon, who comes to life under the ardent gaze of a moving picture Josephine, Corrigan is introduced (as Napoleon) to a modern world of plumbing, muddy politics and movie stars—and a very real love escapade.

Stage Training.

The Clifford Brooke Academy of Stage Training in the Dramatic Arts, which completed two successful terms earlier in the year, will begin its fall term on October 16.

It has been amply proven that Mr. Brooke has been able to do what he set out to do when the academy was first opened. Announced as affording essential preparation for a career on the professional stage, the academy has demonstrated that it does just that. Any number of the students of the school have appeared on the stage at the National Theater, both with the National Theater Players and with the several attractions presented recently.

At the Play in New York

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 (AP). Again Joe Cook proves that he is a one-man show. He is practically the entire entertainment in "Hold Your Horses," the first musical comedy of the new season to arrive.

This diminutive, tricky comedian, born Jose Lopez, of Evansville, Ind., is unique in the amusement world. He is a comical corporation; not just an individual performer. The gadgets, costumes and other properties he uses in his acts are so numerous and enormous that they are a full Broadway production within themselves.

"Hold Your Horses" is a thrilling, strikingly effective buffoon opera as long as Cook and his entourage are on the stage. In those several moments when the spotlight is centered on other members of the cast, the show drops to a mediocre mood, with the exception of Harriet Hoctor and her graceful, enthralling ballet corps. They share star honors with the Cook merry-go-round.

THE plot is a refreshingly intriguing one, dealing with old New York in the days of the 90's. Here the audience glimpses Lillian Russell, Diamond Jim Brady, Chuck Connors, Al Smith, John L. Sullivan and other celebrities in the days when there was first talk of the subway replacing the hansom cab.

Cook is Broadway Joe, a talkative cabbie whose one love in life is his horse, Magnolia. A coterie of politicians, preparing to raid the pork barrel that will result from the contract to build the first subway, decide to name Broadway Joe as one mayoralty candidate, because they believe he hasn't a chance to win and, therefore, will assure the election of their own candidate, who will sign the subway contracts.

Through a fluke, Broadway Joe is elected mayor and then, for a time, thwarts the politicians by declaring himself a friend of the horse and an opponent of the subway.

COOK again has the show overflowing like a Christmas stocking with berserk, hilarious gadgets. In an opening scene he arrives in a hansom cab that is equipped with wash room, kitchenette, elevator and all the other conveniences of a traveling apartment.

A Verdi Opera Seldom Heard Tonight's Bill

For the first time, Washington music lovers will have an opportunity this evening to hear Verdi's tragic masterpiece, "La Forza del Destino."

Unlike "Aida," "Rigoletto" or "Traviata," better known by the general public, "La Forza del Destino" offers a better example of Verdi's genius in translating drama into music. The story of this opera is a maze of successive tragic events; every role is a vehicle for intense vocal and histrionic expression and the work requires an extraordinary cast of experienced artists to present it adequately.

Maria Verdi, Washington impresario, who conceived months ago the project to give here opera at popular prices, has been fortunate in securing the cooperation of Armando Januzzi, who won his laurels on the principal operatic stages of the world, and is now a resident of Washington. It is, therefore, a foregone conclusion that nothing will be lacking from an artistic point of view. The critical discrimination of Maestro Januzzi helped to make the cast that will appear at Washington Auditorium tonight an ideal ensemble of experienced artists.

Marguerite Ringo, dramatic soprano, who will appear in the leading role of Leonora, is an American who only recently returned to this country after having appeared, during the past three years, in the leading opera houses of Europe. Not only vocally but in appearance she is the glorified type of the operatic prima donna.

Fortunato de Angelis, dramatic tenor of unusual power and range, is an international celebrity; this is his first appearance following the conclusion of a recent triumphal tour through South America. Martino Rossi, barytone, is too well known in Washington musical circles to need further introduction, as is Amund Sjovic, bass. Both will be remembered for their appearances here two years ago at the National Theater.

No local talent will participate at this first performance of the season. The orchestra, composed of musicians who during the season are members of the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra, and a large chorus will be brought for the occasion from New York.

This opera performance, first of a series, will differ much from the improvised spectacles that deceived Washington music lovers last year. The prices of admission have been made so low that a financial loss is inevitable. But the artistic success of this premiere will certainly create a flow of good will and support for future performances.

"Billy."

The St. George's Players will offer "Billy," a three-act comedy, in the recently completed parish hall adjoining St. George's Episcopal Church, Maryland avenue and Wilson boulevard, Clarendon, on Thursday and Friday, October 5 and 6, at 8:15 p. m.

Lasky Takes Steps to Supply New Photoplay Personalities

LIKE a resounding claque, the world pours into Hollywood this ominous warning: "We want new faces . . . we want new faces . . ."

For various practical reasons the film city attempts to comply with the demand. First, to satisfy the universal clamor for new personalities; second, to replace with new blood the film oldsters whom time and circumstance have dimmed.

But new faces are hard to find—too many elements unrealized by the public enter into the situation. At times a face—a term which roughly means a personality—is strong on the physical side, weak in the rudiments of the acting craft.

For years Producer Jesse L. Lasky has realized the value of new personalities. It was he who introduced Rudolph Valentino and Maurice Chevalier, among others.

He is constantly experimenting with new actors in the hope of discovering star material. Every picture of his features a new name or the revival of an old one. Out of every ten nine are "busts," the tenth a possibility.

It is this constant groping of his for new names and faces that prompted his doing an unusual thing in his forthcoming production of "As Husbands Go." Instead of one personality to test by the trial and error method, he has added four screen unknowns to the cast.

Hollywood might have thought him crazy five months ago, when he embarked on a career of independent productions. But events during that period have made Hollywood cautious in its opinions. Lasky, in each of the last five pictures he has made, scouted tradition to achieve the novelty that lay in "Zoo in Budapest," "The Warrior's Husband," "The Power and the Glory," "Berkeley Square," and "The Worst Woman in Paris?" Only two of these have been seen in Washington to date.

So, the fact that he has selected four absolutely new personalities for his latest picture causes no great amount of alarm in a Hollywood accustomed to seeing Jesse L. Lasky do strange things.

These four, although new to the screen, are not unknown to the theatrical world. Catherine Doucet is a well-seasoned Broadway character actress; G. P. Huntley, jr., is one of New York's leading men; Frank O'Connor appeared in many noteworthy plays and Eleanor Lynn is a seasoned ingenue of much promise.

Of course, the picture will have its established stars. These are Warner Baxter, Helen Vinson, Warner Oland and little Jay Ward.

Stokowski Has Violin Prodigy On Final Bill

Four concerts scheduled by the Philadelphia Orchestra for performance in Constitution Hall on Tuesday evenings will bring to the Capital during the 1933-34 season three great contemporary conductors to direct programs of extraordinary musical interest. These concerts will be under the management of T. Arthur Smith Concert Bureau.

Leopold Stokowski, director of the Philadelphia Orchestra, will conduct the two concerts scheduled for October 17 and December 19; Eugene Ormandy, conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, will preside at the concert on November 21, and Issay Dobrowen, Russian-born composer who made his debut in Washington, D. C., last winter with the Philadelphia Orchestra, will return on February 13.

At this final event, playing under Mr. Dobrowen's direction, will be Yehudi Menuhin, the young violinist whose extraordinary genius has placed him in the front rank of interpretative artists, as soloists.

The concerts are scheduled to begin at 8:45 o'clock and, in accordance with the rule established in previous seasons, the doors will be closed at that time and not reopened for late comers until the intermission.

Leopold Stokowski, newly returned from Hollywood, Calif., where he went after a European trip which took him to several countries in the search for new orchestral works, has announced the following program for October 17: The "Sakuntala" overture (Goldmark), "Concerto Sacro No. 1" Werner Josten), "Yablochko" (Gliere) and the Tschaikowsky Symphony No. 4 in F Minor.

The musical offerings for this opening of the Philadelphia Orchestra's series in the National Capital offer a nice balance between the old school of composition and the new. Goldmark's concert overture to the masterpiece of the great East Indian dreamer and poet, Kalidasa, made him famous when "Sakuntala" was produced first by the Vienna Philharmonic in 1865. For years this was regarded as the synonym for sensuous Orientalism in music, and its voluptuous, heavily scented violoncello theme has delighted concert-going Occidentals for many seasons.

Mr. Stokowski returns to the Capital with an organization of 110 musicians, virtually intact from previous seasons, with no new members.

Mme. Lehmann Among Winter Concert Stars

Almost on the heels of Lotte Lehmann's memorable operatic performance of Beethoven's "Fidelio" at the Vienna Staatsoper during the past month, comes word that Mme. Lehmann, who is scheduled to sing here in concert this winter as one of Mrs. Dorsey's Tuesday afternoon attractions at Constitution Hall, will appear in the leading role of Richard Strauss' new opera, "Arabella," when that work is given its Vienna premiere this month at the Staatsoper.

Strauss, it is said, was very desirous of having Lehmann sing the principal role when the opera was given its world-premiere in Dresden, during the past summer, and he is said to have suffered great disappointment when Lehmann declined to sing the leading role of "Arabella" at its Berlin premiere, with Furtwaengler conducting.

Lehmann, however, held out for the Vienna premiere. She has a sentimental regard for the Vienna Staatsoper that transcends all other considerations. It has been the scene of some of her most memorable triumphs. She holds a certificate of life membership there and no other stage will ever be the same to Lehmann.

Lehmann is one of the new acquisitions of the Metropolitan Opera Company, obtained along with Tito Schipa, tenor, when the collapse of the Insull utilities enterprises forced that opera-loving magnate to withdraw his financial support of the famous Chicago Opera.

Lehmann was little known in America when she first joined the Chicago Opera Company in 1930, but before that her name had become synonymous with the acme of vocal and interpretative art abroad. She had been guest artist at every leading opera house in Germany, in addition to her life membership at the Vienna Staatsoper. She was also a member of the Covent Garden Opera Company in London, and wherever opera and concert were known in Europe, Lehmann ruled as a prime favorite.

Her joint recital at Constitution Hall this winter with Heinrich Schlusnus is expected to give Washingtonians their first real opportunity to judge the merits of an art that has enchanted both sides of the Atlantic.

Gayety Offers 'World Series' Burlesk Show

For world series week, Manager Jimmie Lake of the Gayety Theater will offer "The Pennant Winners," a burlesk gang consisting of all .300 hitters, with a chorus of the fastest base stealers in captivity—every artist a "diamond" in himself.

Jerri McCauley will go to bat with the fastest and fleetest organization ever presented in burlesk.

Some of the outstanding novelty numbers to be seen will be "The Ladies of the Evening" and "The Star-Light" ballets.

Due to the thousands of world series visitors expected in Washington to witness this baseball classic it is advised to secure all seats for the week well in advance.

The Cinema and Its Uses promotion the sure mark of success. There are some, however, who entertain a contrary view.

Lloyd Corrigan, who will be seen in Washington in "Her Man of Wax," the new Lenore Ulric starring vehicle, which comes to the National tomorrow night to inaugurate the new season of road show attractions—and, incidentally, to launch the subscription season of the American Theater Society of Washington on its way to an early fulfillment of its sponsors' dream of a quick succession of six dramas of the first rank—sets himself apart from the usual Thespian by reversing the customary order.

Before playing the role of Emperor Napoleon, in a thoroughly unhistorical and undated comedy, Mr. Corrigan was busy being an important producer and director for Paramount Pictures, and, at the same time, trying to find time for all the assignments offered him to concoct plots and write scenarios for that and other studios.

His occupation as a director of pictures was the culmination of a career which took him through all branches of the theater, covering a period of 20 years. Mr. Corrigan, one learns from the helpful Miss Phyllis Perlman, on behalf of Mr. Greneker, was born in San Francisco with the proverbial smell of grease paint in his nostrils. Although unrelated to Emmet Corrigan—our Napoleonic Corrigan being a real Irishman, and the other famous trouper being a Dane, who adopted that as a stage name—his parents were also celebrated actors, known as James Corrigan and Lillian Elliot, of the Morosco Theater Company. They insisted that Lloyd receive a classical education, so he went to the University of California, and, without benefit of parental permission, joined the undergraduate theatrical society. After graduation he became an actor professionally, playing with the Eastern Guild in their productions given on the Coast, chiefly in Berkeley.

For a short while he acted in pictures with William de Mille, and later joined a comedy unit headed by Raymond Griffith. In his early youth, Corrigan admits he yearned for a straight and handsome figure, but, as he saw his rotund appearance marked him as a comedian, he philosophically resigned himself to being what is sometimes called a "fat man."

His keen sense of humor and comedy, and his careful education were soon noticed and Griffith drafted him as a gag-man and writer for the comedy unit. That was merely a preliminary to his more important jobs.

Corrigan would still be enjoying the varied experiences of director, gag-man, plot doctor, scenic designer, scenario writer and producer if the original producers of "Her Man of Wax," who were preparing the play for the Pasadena Community Playhouse, had not suggested he looked like Napoleon and would be ideal as the leading man.

To everyone's surprise Corrigan laughingly accepted the challenge and did so well with the role on the West Coast that he could not refuse to fly East and play it here with Lenore Ulric as his starring Josephine.

When he has had his fling as "Her Man of Wax," and after the complete run of the play, Mr. Corrigan will return to his Hollywood directorial tasks.

One gathers from Miss Perlman and advance reports of the zestful quality of the Julian Thompson adaptation of the Hasenclever play that this is apt to be an eventuation pitched far ahead into a distant future.

* * * *

If it were any part of necessity to comment upon the recent deflation of Sister Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton as a potent drawing card in the temples of the celluloids, nothing better could be done about it than quote the cogent editorial observation published in the September 23 issue of Mr. Martin Quigley's Motion Picture Herald, foremost of the industry's trade journals, under the heading of "Circusing Religion:"

> "The presentation of such figures as Mr. David Hutton and Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson on the stage of theaters identified as pertaining to the motion picture will be found to confer little kudos on the screen institution. As products of that strange culture, which has arisen in the community of Los Angeles with its weird potpourri of religious manifestations, these persons may have an interest, but their public exhibition, with its attendant tabloid publicity, brings the aroma of the dime museum and an order of showmanship not very closely attuned to the commonly held American notion that the circusing of religions is, to state it mildly, in decidedly bad taste. It is bad taste in a dangerous area."

Picture Dog Works With Sign Language

Mutt, the dog in "The Way to Love," starring Maurice Chevalier, understands the deaf and dumb language, according to his owner, Henry East.

East never speaks to the dog on the set, but by movements of his hand makes Mutt yawn, go to sleep, chase a flea, jump rope, play dead, smoke a pipe and do numerous other tricks.

Research Goes On Behind Steel Door

Behind the barred doors of a steel vault and surrounded by books valued at more than $25,000,000, three men are doing research work for the Paramount picture, "Alice in Wonderland." The three are Director Norman McLeod, Writer Joseph Mankiewicz and Art Adviser William Cameron Menzies, and they are working in the famous Huntington Library, at San Marino, which contains the most valuable collection of books in the country, including a rare first edition of "Alice," valued at $6,000.

Heigho-Ho! See You at Pete's Tuesday Night

With extensive plans completed for an opening in the Hollywood manner, the Heigh-Ho, Washington's newest night club, will make its bow to entertainment seekers after 9 o'clock on Tuesday, October 2.

Located at 1536 Connecticut avenue, the new night spot has been decorated by Wolcott (Doggy) Waggaman, well-known figure in Washington society, and is the presentation of Pete Macias, popular dance orchestra leader, who realizes the ambition of a lifetime in opening it to the public. Naturally, Pete's entire orchestra, which has played together for two years under his direction, will be in the band stand, augmented by three more talented musicians.

The name for this truly different night spot—an English salutation—is in tune with the decorations and general embellishments which all reflect an authentic Tudor influence. Open fireplaces add to the inviting atmosphere, and a beautiful marble staircase leads to the club proper.

No intermission in entertainment will be found at the Heigh-Ho. When the Macias orchestra rests, specialty acts will take the floor. For the opening week, the Vernons, ballroom dancers who were a sensation in Havana last year, and who have just completed an engagement at the Biltmore Cascades, will be featured in new and attractive routines.

Ramon, most suave of all night club headwaiters, has been put in charge of the cuisine.

At the Chess Table

Reuben Fine, young New York master player, is leading the field in the Western championship tournament at Detroit, as we go to press, by a score of 5 wins, no losses or draws. Fine, readers will recall, has been opined by none other than World Champion Alekhine to be a possible future contestant for world titular honors. In his auspicious start in the Western tourney, Fine numbered among his victims E. Michelson, of Detroit; M. Fox, of Montreal, and Samuel D. Factor, of Chicago. The leader is followed by Robert Willman, of New York, whose score reads 4 to 1. Sammy Reschavsky, former boy wonder player, now residing in Detroit, has a score of 3½ to ½. L. Stolcenberg, Detroit, is among the leaders with a score of 3½ to 1½. Arthur W. Dake, Pacific Coast master, has won 3 and lost 1. E. Opsahl, a Detroit player whose name is new to us, is sixth in the standing with a score of 2½ to 2½. Other entrants include M. Palmer, Detroit; A. C. Margolis, Chicago; G. S. Barnes, Minneapolis; G. Eastman, Kalamazoo, and W. F. Streeter, Cleveland.

Legacy for Boys' Chess.

Dr. Douglas S. Scrivener, Northampton, England, forwards us the following interesting item:

"Because he regarded life as a game of chess, the late Alderman Sir William Dupree, twice Mayor of Portsmouth, set aside £10,000 to encourage the boys of Portsmouth and Brighton to study the game—£5,000 to each town. Sir William, who was chairman of Portsmouth and Brighton United Breweries, died in March, leaving an estate valued at about a quarter of a million.

It is a condition that an annual chess tournament, for money prizes, shall be organized in each of the two towns for youths under 21. At Portsmouth the matter is in the hands of the lord mayor and town clerk. 'I know very little about it,' said Sir William Dupree, son of the donor, to the News-Chronicle. 'My father looked upon life as a game of chess. And in his business moves he put into practice the principles of chess.'" Many of our American millionaires have donated liberally to the cause of Caissa, but we have yet to hear of a mere matter of $50,000 being given simply to awaken interest of youths in the ancient game.

Alekhine in Chicago.

We have of late been publishing the games which Dr. Alekhine played during his recent simultaneous exhibition at the Jewish Community Center. Today we give two brevities from the champion's blindfold simultaneous exhibition at Chicago, where he established a new record. The annotations are those of Brian Harley in the London Observer, for which we are again indebted to Dr. Scrivener. As for the games themselves, they would do credit to many a player of strength with the board in full view.

The key to No. 547, two-mover by B. de Castro, is B—Kt6. A good "try," KxP, is defeated by 1 . . . P—Kt5ch. Among those sending in solutions were Jacob Frech and Henry M. Ward. The former writes, "Problem 547 generates about 400,000 series, and is as complex as many a three-mover. Its relevant syllogistic middle term is: A problem in which white can force one of the following series of quickest forced mates: 1 B—Kt6; 2 Q—Kt3 or 5 or R—Qsq or R5 or Kt—B7 or Kt4."

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Fugue—What Does It Mean?

Few subjects are better fodder for newspapers than the disappearance of a prominent man. Even when there is no possibility of a kidnaping, a disappearance story has great reader interest. It is not always necessary that the man be especially prominent.

When a person is reported as being found wandering about with no recollection of his own name, family, home or previous life there is mystery enough to give the newspaper story a popular appeal. From the medical standpoint such cases are not mysterious. The name physicians have for the condition causing the disappearance is fugue.

Such cases are not properly cases amnesia, the medical term commonly applied to them. To a degree amnesia, or inability to recall names, places and events is present, but the condition of mind is not the same as that which makes it impossible for persons who have had apoplexy to utter the word they want to use, or that makes old people fail to recall events, or that makes many of our minds go blank when we try to introduce people. If amnesia is used for that type of loss of memory it is not the best word to use when speaking of fugues.

There are several causes of fugues. The most frequently encountered and the most mysterious are the hysterical fugues. Another type that is of interest is that encountered in persons of the dementia precox personality. The day dreaming type of personality furnishes a few cases. Some are due to epilepsy or the epileptic type of mind. All these fugues have their foundations in disturbances of personality.

In addition there are the fugues which result from brain tumors, fractures of the skull, concussion of the brain and other organic brain diseases. The type of personality in which the hysterical fugue is built begins to manifest itself in childhood. The nervous, agitated children who sleep poorly and talk or walk in their sleep are the foundation stone of the trouble. Such children are generally of the asthenic constitution. They are slender, underweight, tire quickly and have dark circles under the eyes. Many of them are day dreamers and some of them are subject to sick headaches. When they become adults they may calm down considerably and sleep walking and talking and night terrors may be no longer manifest. If, however, they marry unhappily and their home life becomes very uncongenial they are apt to bolt.

Hypnosis, suggestion, and the use of certain drugs will cause many of the persons with hysterical fugue to recall their memories.

Swollen Ankles.

Miss H. H. writes: Every summer for the last three or four years I have had trouble with my feet or ankles. It seems every time it gets real warm my feet and ankles swell. What causes this and what could I do to keep them from swelling?

Reply.

Most people of middle age and beyond have some of that in hot weather. When there is no organic disease it is troublesome, but not very important. Loosen your garters and other body and leg bands. That will help somewhat.

Short Tongue.

F. S. writes: Do you think a short tongue has anything to do with stuttering?

Reply.

No.

Diocesan Girls' Council Will Meet on Oct. 20

Five Friendly Society Units Attend Conference of Older Group.

The first meeting of the diocesan council of the Girls' Friendly Society of the diocese of Washington will be Friday, October 20.

Five branches of the G. F. S. was represented at the old members' conference held at the Holiday House—Epiphany, Trinity, St. James', Bowie; St. John's, Georgetown, and St. John's, Bethesda, Md. Leaders of discussion groups were Misses Margaret Snyder, Epiphany; Nell Moore, Trinity; Louise Smith, St. James', Bowie. Advisers of the groups were Miss Marjorie Zug, Miss Mae Magee and Mrs. Alex Steuart.

The Epiphany branch had its opening meeting, with Miss Elsa Needham, branch leader. A supper was given for Mrs. Grace Berry, branch president. The new branch council members are Misses Edith Langford, Lucile Powell, Helen Tate, Dorothy Goode, May Lanman, Lisetta Gash, Agnes Kohlman, Ruth Barnes, Helen Frye, Ruth Rawlings, Edna Prices, Mary Sensel, Eleanor Wilson and Grace Seamark. Adolf Torovsky led branch singing and Dr. Z. B. Phillips, rector of Epiphany Church, gave his usual inspiring talk. The program for October is as follows:

October 1, monthly Communion service; 2, supper at 6, meeting at 7:30, with talks on the Century of Progress Exposition; 9, classes in glee club singing and personal religion; 16, Frederick Snyder's talk on current events; 23, classes all evening; 30, Halloween party under the direction of younger members.

The candidates of Epiphany Chapel and the Church of the Epiphany are repeating the very successful operetta, "Sleeping Beauty," Thursday evening, at Epiphany Parish Hall, 1317 G street northwest. The music of the operetta was written by the associate in charge of the candidates at the Church of the Epiphany, Mrs. A. Umholtz, who has been successful in training an orchestra of 11 pieces to accompany the soloists and chorus.

St. Paul's Rock Creek Parish had an executive meeting of the board of directors, and regular meetings will start October 2, at 7:30, in the parish hall.

O. E. S. Group to Hold Initiation of Candidates

St. John's Lodge, Chapter No. 18, O. E. S., will initiate candidates tomorrow evening.

The ways and means committee will hold a bake sale of home-cooked foods Saturday, October 7, at the Florida avenue market. Miss Edith Altman is chairman.

The endowment committee is sponsoring an old-fashioned barn dance and tacky party at the Norval Wheeler dairy farm, near Wellington, Va., Saturday evening, October 7.

A religious pageant entitled "Behold—He Cometh" will be presented by the chapter at the Douglas Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, Eleventh and H streets northeast, Sunday, October 8, at 8 p. m. Past Grand Patron Theodore C. Lewis will play the chimes and the matron, Margaret L. Wood, will play the Swiss hand bells.

Mysterious Madame X, who has created much interest within the chapter during the year, will have charge of the entertainment.

At the regular meeting October 16 members having birthdays in October will be special guests. Miss Mildred Dower is chairman of this entertainment.

Visit to Naomi Chapter.

Worthy Grand Master, Mrs. Elizabeth Plitt, and Worthy Grand Patron, F. Frank Kimmel, accompanied by other grand officers, made their official visitation to Naomi Chapter Wednesday evening. The chapter room was attractively arranged as a garden, and an appropriate program was given. Solos were given by Mrs. Alma Barton, Mrs. Elizabeth Barker, and Mrs. Harriet Baker, and choruses by a group of members. Following the visitation, the evening was devoted to an observance of Endowment Night. Mrs. Elvira Madgeburger, chairman of the endowment committee of the grand chapter, and Mrs. Bertha S. Wood, chairman of the Naomi committee, made addresses.

Cathedral Belles to Meet.

The regular business meeting of Cathedral Chapter No. 14, O. E. S., was held Wednesday, and was followed by a short entertainment presented by members of the auxiliary home board.

The Cathedral Belles will meet next Tuesday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. Geneva K. Perry, 3622 Jocelyn street northwest. The auxiliary home board will meet next Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Evelyn Nevils, 8512 Cedar street, Silver Spring, Md. On October 11, at the close of the regular meeting, the chapter will have its annual fall dance.

Confer Degrees on Tuesday.

Chevy Chase Chapter No. 39, Order of Eastern Star, will confer the degrees on several candidates at its regular meeting Tuesday night. The ways and means committee announces an afternoon and evening bridge party to be given at the home of Mrs. Anne M. Northrop, 3937 Legation street, Chevy Chase, on Thursday, October 5. A turkey and ham dinner will be served by this committee on Thursday evening, October 19, at All Saints' Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase circle.

Grand Visitation Meeting.

The next regular meeting of Washington Centennial Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, will be held Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The occasion is the grand visitation of the worthy grand matron and her patron of the jurisdiction. A meeting of the endowment committee will be held Thursday evening, October 27, at the home of the chairman, Past Matron Mrs. Mary H. Bayles, with Mrs. Mary Nichols and Mrs. Jessie E. Mountjoy hostesses.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Plan Public Meetings in Rally Week, Starting October 16

Wide Program of Legislation To Be Outlined by Organization

Drum Corps and Bands to Aid Speakers in Rousing Enthusiasm for Additional Membership and New Plans.

The tenure of present post commanders of the Veterans of Foreign Wars is now drawing to a close, and Department Commander Campbell is urging all commanders to conduct a Rally Week, beginning October 16.

Large mass meetings are planned so the public may be informed concerning the fight for veterans' legislation and the many-sided program of the V. F. W.

Congressmen and other well informed citizens will proclaim the veteran situation and the inequalities existing therein. Musical programs by bands and drum corps will help to pep up the meetings.

National Radio Program.

Commander in Chief James E. VanZandt spoke on the V. F. W. program over the National Broadcasting Co.'s Nation-wide hook-up Thursday night.

He outlined efforts to eliminate the evil effects of the veterans' economy act of March 20, 1933, and discussed rehabilitation and other matters of vital interest to veterans. Commander VanZandt and National Legislative Representative Brobeck conferred with President Roosevelt September 22, submitting to him the V. F. W. program.

Convention Echoes.

Measures safeguarding and increasing national defense were among those indorsed at the 1933 national encampment at Milwaukee. The encampment was one of the most successful in the history of the organization, and the delegates gave earnest consideration to many issues of vital importance to every citizen.

Included in resolutions adopted was approval of the $283,000,000 naval construction program now being launched; indorsement of a congressional bill providing for the construction, maintenance and regulation of a Nation-wide system of roads which would provide employment for 5,000,000 men; rehabilitation of the United States Navy to the full limitations of the London naval treaty; restoration of the 85 per cent reduction in the Naval Reserve appropriation for 1934, and opposition to any reduction in the strength of the Regular Army, naval forces, National Guard, Organized Reserves, R. O. T. C. and C. M. T. C.

Other resolutions cited unpreparedness of the United States in 1917, resulting in expensive delays and waste of human life due to lack of training.

Treasury Post.

A special meeting is called for Tuesday at the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines' Club, when nominations will be made for elective officers. The following recruits have been recently elected to membership: J. O. Davis, Thomas Griffiths, Martin A. Liberty, Robert V. Montgomery, Frank J. Rose, Harry Welby Smallwood, Guy Arthur Swan, Lemuel E. Walker, Robert F. Williams and Harry Winingder.

Edwards Post.

A general get-together meeting of the Maj. General Clarence R. Edwards Post was held at Governors Island, September 16, and a large attendance enjoyed entertainment.

Columbia Post.

The next meeting will be held Friday, October 13, instead of October 11.

National Capital Post.

Last Tuesday night, in Pythian Temple, the members were hosts to the comrades of Gen. Nelson A. Miles Camp, No. 1, United States War Veterans, and also to Department Comdr. Campbell and his staff officers. Short addresses were enthusiastically applauded. Refreshments were served.

Federal Post.

At its last meeting the following were nominated: Commander, George Parker; senior vice commander, Steve Nitchka; junior vice commander, James Garrity and Dietrick Balderson; quartermaster, P. J. Welch; surgeon, John Chesser; chaplain, the Rev. V. O. Anderson; guard, James C. Lawless; officer of the day, Thomas Clinton. There was a large attendance. Comrade Abe Grudd, of Front Line Post, appealed for the organization of a post bowling team, to participate in the approaching tournament, as sponsored by the District of Columbia department. Refreshments were served.

V. F. W. Duckpin League.

A duckpin league has been formed and the first games of the season will be bowled Friday night at the Petworth alleys, Georgia and New Hampshire avenues. Sets will be bowled every Friday thereafter. The following league officers were elected: President, Abe Grudd; honorary president, Department Commander Campbell; treasurer, A. W. Masters; secretary, Sig Milbrandt; official scorer, "Reds" Megaw.

Twelve teams will enter the tournament. The following captains have been chosen: National Capital, W. J. Yebbens; Equality-Walter Reed, John D. Wischhusen; Potomac, Joseph Clements; Front Line, Team No. 1, Dr. A. V. Cercell; Team No. 2, Edward F. Clark; Team No. 3, A. W. Masters; Team No. 4, Walter Boehm; T. N. T. Pup Tent, Christian Scheible; Advance, J. F. Donohoe; Defense, E. T. Newkirk; Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, M. F. White; Follow Me, Sigmund Milbrandt.

Members of these teams need not be experienced bowlers, as a handicap system will be used. Not only will prizes be given to individuals at the end of the season, but each team participating will receive prizes, according to their relative standings. The commanders of posts not yet affiliated are requested to transmit their names of captains and team members to Chairman Amram Grudd, apartment 3, 2550 Fourteenth street northwest.

Follow Me Post.

Comrade Phillip R. Belt, a past post commander, has been appointed adjutant to fill the unexpired term of Comrade Alfred C. Ruth.

The ladies' auxiliary met September 12. Mrs. Thomas E. Fawcett reported activities of the Milwaukee national encampment. Comrade Dube was reported as convalescing from a serious illness at Providence Hospital. The next auxiliary meeting will be at Mrs. Beulah Waller's home on East Capitol street.

Advance Post.

A dance will be given at the Arlington Hotel Saturday evening, October 7, to help the drum corps secure additional instruments and equipment. At the post's last meeting Department Commander Campbell was a guest. He summarized the national encampment's proceedings. A duckpin league of the 15 unit posts is now a certainty, and there are many experts from which a post team will be organized.

Army to Mark Fire Prevention Week Over U. S.

Each Post, Station to Name Boards Charged With Duty of Inspection.

In accordance with the President's proclamation each year, calling upon every citizen to do his part in making America safer against fire ravages, Fire Prevention Week will be strictly observed by the Army.

Last year the authorities at each post and station were told to appoint a board of officers for the purpose of making thorough fire-prevention inspections. This year similar boards will be created under the jurisdiction of the War Department in the geographic limits of the Third Corps Area, consisting of the District of Columbia, Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

During the fiscal year 1933, ended June 30, 1933, records of the War Department show there were 124 fires at all Army posts, with damage to buildings of $252,580.36 and to contents of buildings, $398,754.24, or a total of $651,334.60.

During the fiscal year 1932 there were 172 fires reported, with a total loss of $652.457.14. While the loss in dollars for the fiscal year 1933 is approximately the same as for 1932, there were 48 less fires reported.

The War Department believes the considerable decrease in fires is to some extent attributable to fire-prevention inspection during Fire Prevention Week last year. Twelve fires were reported in the Third Corps Area, resulting in a loss of $12,821.82.

Rea Chapter, No. 5, D.A.V., Holds Meeting

Rea Chapter, No. 5, D. A. V., met at the Cairo Hotel Friday night. Chapter Commander H. Colston presided.

Several recruits were accepted and given their obligation. Past Department Vice Commander Earl J. Brown, of the American Legion, and V. G. Fuschini, past president of the Twenty-ninth Division Association, were among those obligated.

Dr. V. C. Cercell, chapter trustee, reported on activities of chapters in New England States visited last month.

5 Washington Men Included In Flying Class

159 Army Students Will Start Aviation Course in Texas October 12.

Five Washingtonians are included in the new class to start training at the Air Corps Primary Flying School at Randolph Field, Tex., October 12, it was announced at the War Department last week.

They are Philip H. Pope and William C. Reeves, both graduates of West Point; E. B. White, civilian, and Paul L. McCoon and Frederick W. Baltz, two enlisted men, the former now on duty at Randolph Field, and the latter on duty at Fort Humphreys, Va.

The new class totals 159 students. It is made up of 84 newly commissioned second lieutenants, graduated from the United States Military Academy June 13. The 75 others will receive training under the status of flying cadets.

The lieutenants who successfully complete the one-year course in flying and receive the rating of "airplane pilot," will be given a permanent status as Air Corps officers. The flying cadets who successfully complete the course will also receive the rating of "airplane pilot," but they will be commissioned second lieutenants in the Air Corps Reserve.

The one year of training includes eight months of intensive flying at the primary school and four months at the advanced school at Kelly Field.

Disabled Veterans Plan Smoker Thursday

Ace-Rasmussen Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans will hold a smoker meeting Thursday night on the top floor of the Potomac Electric Power Co., Tenth and E streets northwest. Admission will be by card only. Speakers will include Col. Emanuel Lombard, assistant military attache in France; E. Claude Babcock, past national commander of the D. A. V., and Ralph L. Chambers, national rehabilitation chairman of the D. A. V.

Federal Chapter will meet October 9, in the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club. The club will sponsor a hallowe'en dance in the Arlington hotel, October 31.

New Rules Delayed On Airworthiness

Revision of Requirements Effective July 1, 1934.

Manufacturers of aircraft to fly at speeds of 150 miles per hour or more will be governed by special individual rulings as to airworthiness until July 1, 1934, when a complete revision of the Commerce Department airworthiness requirements will become effective, Eugene L. Vidal, director of aeronautics, announced last week.

The new requirements were scheduled for promulgation January 1, but, at the request of manufacturers, the revision will not become effective until July 1, and in the meantime special provisions will be used to govern flying of the faster types being developed.

"Some members of the aircraft industry," Mr. Vidal said, "desire more time to study the new requirements of airworthiness, feeling they were not sufficiently prepared to discuss them in detail at the recent conference of the manufacturers and the aeronautics branch."

Army, Navy, Marine Orders Give Many Officers New Posts

Several on Duty in District Notified of Transfers to Various Fields, Bringing Other Men to Fill Their Places.

Orders issued at headquarters of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps here last week detailed several officers, on duty in the Capital, to posts outside the District, while others will come to take their places.

Capt. James D. McLean, of the Marine Corps, will come to Marine Headquarters here. He has been at Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va.

In the Navy orders of Lieut. Comdr. William J. C. Agnew, of the Medical Corps, were revoked. He has been directed to remain on duty in the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery of the Navy Department here.

Capt. Middleton S. Elliott, also of the Naval Medical Corps, has been detached as a member of the Naval Retiring Board and will go to duty as inspector of Medical Department activities in the Navy.

Capt. Parsons Changed.

Capt. Charles E. Parsons, of the Supply Corps, has been detached from duty in connection with the National Industrial Recovery Administration here and will go to duty in the Bureau of Supply and Accounts of the Navy Department.

Capt. Robert C. Vickers, of the Signal Corps, has been relieved from duty at the Presidio, San Francisco, and will come here to the Office of the Chief of the Signal Corps.

Maj. Elmer S. Tenney, of the Medical Corps of the Army, has been detailed as a member of the board of officers to meet here to examine applicants for appointment in the Corps of Chaplains of the Army.

Col. Milosh R. Hilgard, Quartermaster Corps, has been relieved from duty at the Quartermaster Corps School in Philadelphia, and will report to the Quartermaster General here.

Lieut. Sciple Transferred.

Second Lieut. Carl M. Sciple, Quartermaster Corps, has been relieved from duty at Bolling Field, D. C., and will go to Fort Benning, Ga.

Capt. Charles I. Bazire, Quartermaster Corps, has been relieved from duty at the Army Medical Center here and will go into the office of the Quartermaster General.

Lieut. Col. Richard H. Jordan, Quartermaster Corps, has been relieved from assignment and duty in connection with the American Graves Registration Service in France and will come here to the office of the Quartermaster General.

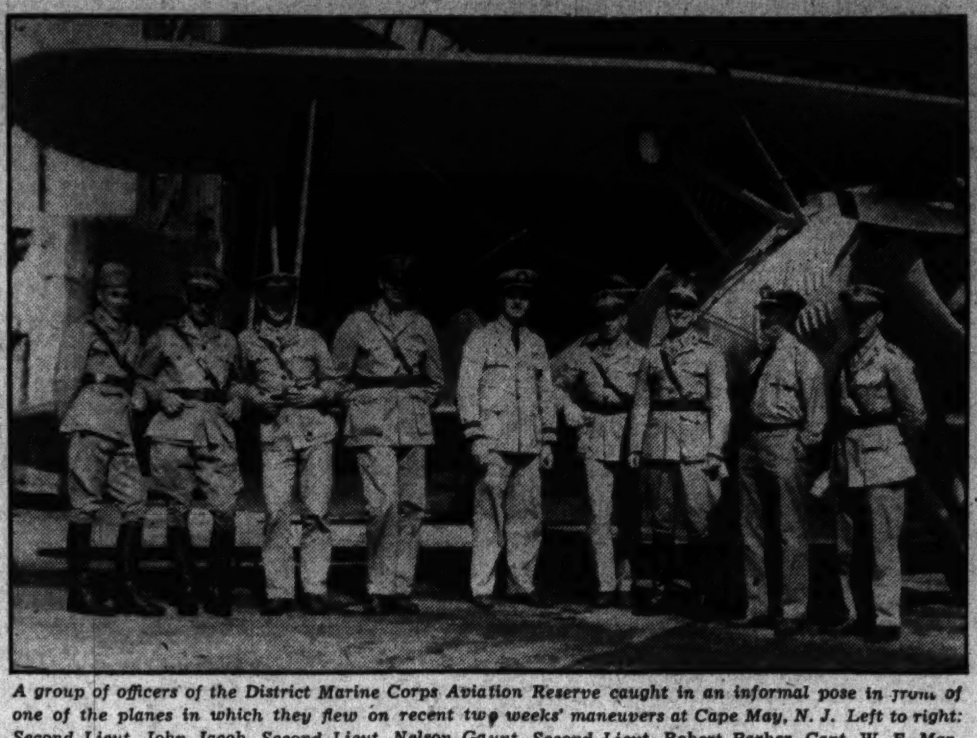
Lieut. Col. Herman Kobbe, of the National Guard Bureau, has been relieved from duty in Washington and will go to the First Cavalry Division at Fort Bliss, Texas.

Capt. Nimitz Assigned To Flagship in Orient

Naval orders have been issued to Capt. Chester W. Nimitz, commanding the U. S. S. Rigel, to take command of the heavy cruiser Augusta, which will become flagship of the Asiatic Fleet in November, relieving the Houston.

Capt. Nimitz will relieve Capt. Royal E. Ingersoll, commanding the Augusta. Ingersoll will direct the fitting out of his new command, the heavy cruiser San Francisco, at Mare Island Navy Yard.

Marine Aviation Reserve Officers Hold Maneuvers



A group of officers of the District Marine Corps Aviation Reserve caught in an informal pose in front of one of the planes in which they flew on recent two weeks' maneuvers at Cape May, N. J. Left to right: Second Lieut. John Jacob, Second Lieut. Nelson Gaunt, Second Lieut. Robert Barber, Capt. W. F. Marshall, Lieut. M. M. Cloukey, of the Naval Reserve; Second Lieut. R. Burchard, First Lieut. James Webb, Second Lieut. H. A. Hornthal, of the Medical Corps, and Second Lieut. W. Orton. The unit is under the command of Second Lieut. H. D. South.

Reserve Corps Marine Fliers End Camp Tour

Squadron 7 Had Almost Wartime Conditions at Cape May.

Marine Aviation Reserve Squadron 7, based at the Anacostia Air Station, returned last week from a two weeks period of training at Cape May, N. J.

Pilots and enlisted men of the squadron were trained in aerial machine gunnery and dive bombing target practice. The air station at Cape May was utilized because it offers ideal facilities for aerial gunnery and dive bombing training.

The squadron was mobilized the second week in September and moved all personnel, baggage and supplies to Cape May in planes and trucks. At Cape May a completely installed, self-sustaining squadron organization was set up. The unit conducted its own flight operations, engineering and ordnance maintenance, as well as office, barracks and commissary administration. The training closely simulated actual wartime conditions.

In addition to the regular duties and flight operations during the active duty period, an interesting innovation was brought about by the cooperation of First Lieut. Sanderson, of the Marine Corps, commanding officer of a Quantico unit, who flew his group of 15 planes to the Cape May base. The two units worked together and put on a regular wartime problem involving tactical maneuvers.

When inclement weather set in the personnel, after devoting a period to scheduled instructions, took part in spirited indoor baseball games in the huge airship hangar at the Coast Guard base.

The squadron has the following officer personnel: Capt. W. F. Marshall, First Lieut. J. E. Webb, Second Lieut. R. B. Burchard, Second Lieut. W. B. Barber, Second Lieut. Nelson Gaunt, Second Lieut. J. B. Jacob, Second Lieut. W. H. Orton, Second Lieut. H. A. Hornthal, all of Washington and nearby.

Rifle and Pistol Club Announces Schedule

The fall and winter program of the Engineer Rifle and Pistol Club was announced last week by the organization's executive committee.

Eight matches will be fired at Camp Simms during the coming season. Practice matches will be fired every Friday night, except when regular matches are scheduled. After October 28, the firing will be indoors.

The National Rifle Association's club members match will be held October 21. A turkey match will be shot indoors November 24. Other events include the Handicap Club match, the Ryons Cup match, and the Army Pistol Course. The first of the matches will be fired October 7. The location of the indoor range will be announced at a later date. Norman C. Seewald is treasurer-secretary of the organization.

Historic D. C. Legion Flag Thrills Another Big Parade

Record of Attending All National Conventions Still Unbroken.

The historic post flag of George Washington Post, No. 1, the first post in the American Legion, will once more feature the District of Columbia section for the fifteenth consecutive year in a national American Legion parade.

This flag, with its blue field and gold lettering, had traveled 42,215 miles up to the convention last year at Portland, Oreg. The flag will be carried in the big parade next Tuesday by Past Commander Howard S. Fisk, of George Washington Post, who has carried it in 12 annual parades throughout the country.

Since attending the first annual convention in Minneapolis in 1919 the flag has been in parades in Cleveland, 1920; Kansas City, 1921; New Orleans, 1922; San Francisco, 1923; St. Paul, 1924; Omaha, 1925; Philadelphia, 1926; Paris, France, 1927; San Antonio, 1928; Louisville, 1929; Boston, 1930; Detroit, 1931 and Portland, 1932.

Gift of Mrs. Rea.

Mrs. Henry H. Rea, of Pittsburgh, Pa., donated the flag to the post August 18, 1919, while she was engaged in Red Cross activities at Walter Reed Hospital, where a number of the disabled members of the post were confined. She desired to make a donation to the first post in the American Legion and the flag idea was suggested.

The legend on the flag is: "George Washington Post, No. 1, of the American Legion. Organized March 7, 1919. Department of the District of Columbia. The first veterans' post of the World War." There is no other American Legion flag in existence like it. It was designed years prior to adoption by the national organization of the present type flag bearing the American Legion insignia.

This flag is the only one among the 27 posts comprising the Department of the District of Columbia which has been to every national convention and has a 100 per cent record. It is one of a small number of posts in the United States which has this distinction.

On the staff of the flag are fourteen silver staff bands, awarded by national headquarters of the Legion for its participation at national conventions.

Convention Report.

The meeting of George Washington Post scheduled for October 3 has been postponed to October 10 because of the convention in Chicago next week.

Attending the convention in his official capacity also will be Past Commander John Thomas Taylor, vice Chairman of the national legislative committee. Past Commander John Lewis Smith is also national executive committeeman, representing the Department of the District of Columbia.

Past Commander Fisk, who is also department adjutant, was elected last week to be secretary of the convention delegation. Department Commander Rice W. Means was unanimously elected chairman of the delegation. Past Commander Fisk was appointed by Commander Means as the District's representative on the national convention finance committee, on which committee he has served for three conventions.

Past Commander Charles Demonet is returning from Chicago today, having attended the Military Order of the World War convention held last week as a delegate.

Sixth Marines Start Training For Next Year

School Included in Big Activities Program for Brigade.

Beginning this week annual activities on a scale larger than ever heretofore attempted will begin in the Sixth Marine Reserve Brigade, Lieut. Col. J. J. Staley, commanding the brigade, announced yesterday.

All officers and noncommissioned officers are enrolling in the Marine Corps schools at Quantico in various courses. The course papers will be marked at Quantico, but for helpful and cooperative study the Sixth Brigade schools, of which Maj. Chauncey G. Parker is director, will assist in administering the courses in the classrooms at the armory, 458 Indiana avenue northwest.

Since the 1933 camp, when the brigade hiked under war conditions from Poseys Wharf, Md., to Fort Washington, after having crossed the Potomac from Quantico under fleet landing force conditions, the personnel of the brigade is demanding even more advanced training. The schools will prepare officers and noncommissioned officers for the 1934 camp during the coming months.

The armory is being thoroughly renovated. Clubrooms for both officers and men are being fitted up.

Recruiting for all units and companies of the brigade will be resumed October 16. Activities will begin this week on the 22-caliber rifle range on John Marshall place.

Maj. Irwin Named Artillery Instructor

According to announcement from Headquarters, Third Corps Area, Maj. S. LeRoy Irwin, Field Artillery, on duty at Reserve Headquarters, has been detailed as unit instructor of Washington's field artillery organizations. Maj. Irwin joined the staff of instructors at local headquarters in July, 1933, replacing Maj. John M. McDowell, transferred to duty with the Organized Reserves in Baltimore.

The organizations are Headquarters and Headquarters Battery of the 155th Field Artillery Brigade, the 305th Ammunition Train of the 80th Division, the 313th Field Artillery, a 75-mm.-8-gun, horse-drawn regiment and the 315th Field Artillery, 155-mm.-howitzer-gun regiment.

5 Meetings Planned By Reserves This Week

Five instructional conferences have been arranged for the coming week by District headquarters of the Organized Reserve Officers. Tomorrow evening the 428th Infantry will meet; Tuesday evening the 320th Infantry will meet.

District field artillery officers will meet Wednesday evening and cavalry officers on Thursday night.

Washington medical officers under supervision of Maj. Henry L. Krafft, Medical Corps, will assemble Friday evening. Col Herbert C. Woolley, the commanding officer of the 364th Medical Regiment, will join Maj. Krafft in the lecture.

Second Division Post, 28, Gives First Fall Dance

Post commanders and department officials present included: Capt. Walker H. Colston, commander of Rea Chapter, D. A. V., and past president of the Rainbow Veterans Association; Lieut. Comdr. V. C. Cercell, past commander, Front Line Post, No. 1401, V. F. W.; Lieut. V. G. Fuschini, Twenty-ninth Division Association; James Kehoe, department commander, D. A. V.; Walter P. Boehne, national quartermaster, V. F. W., and O. W. Hollingsworth, past commander, National Capital Post.

A. M. Allen, A. A. Selecman and K. T. Wright composed the dance committee. The post will meet the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

District Legion Group Leaves For Convention

Rice W. Means Chairman of Delegation; About 500 on Trip to Chicago.

Organized to battle in behalf of veterans of the World War, the delegation representing the Department of the District of Columbia, American Legion, left yesterday afternoon on special trains for Chicago to attend the fifteenth annual national convention, October 2 to 5. Approximately 500 Legionnaires, members of the auxiliary, and others were in the party.

Department Commander Rice W. Means heads the delegation as chairman, having been unanimously elected, with Department Adjutant Howard S. Fisk as secretary.

Official list of delegates and alternates follows:

Delegates: Rice W. Means, chairman; Howard S. Fisk, secretary; Norman B. Landreau, B. C. MacNeil, Amos A. Fries, Theodore Cogswell, William N. Morell, Warren E. Miller, T. Edward Jones and National Executive Committeeman John Lewis Smith.

Names of Alternates.

The steering committee consists of Rice W. Means, John Lewis Smith, and Norman B. Landreau. Chairman Means appointed the following on national convention committees: T. Edward Jones, rules committee; Miss Lillian Sawyer, credentials; Howard S. Fisk, finance committee.

One of the features of the convention will be the parade next Tuesday, in which more than 250,000 veterans and auxiliary members will participate. William A. Kehoe was appointed by Chairman Means marshal for the District section. Many of the posts took their colors along, and these will be massed at the head of the delegation from the National Capital.

On the right of line of the color bearers will be the flag of George Washington Post, No. 1, pioneer post of the American Legion, which has traveled over 42,000 miles to every national convention. It will be carried for the thirteenth year by Department Adjutant Howard S. Fiske, a past commander.

Parade to Set Record.

In the line of march will be three drum and bugle corps from the District, Victory, Vincent B. Costello and James Reese Europe. The District has been allotted twenty-third place in the 49 sections of the parade. It is expected to be the largest and most brilliant in the history of the organization.

The District delegates and alternates will be housed in the La Salle Hotel, while Chairman Rice W. Means will have headquarters in the Palmer House.

Included in the party are members of the American Legion Auxiliary, the Forty and Eight and the Eight and Forty organizations from this city. National headquarters of the legion will be in the Palmer House, American Legion Auxiliary, Stevens Hotel; Forty and Eight, Medinah Michigan Club; Eight and Forty, Chicago Woman's Club.

Mrs. Preston was named chairman of the National Marche Delegation, and Miss Carey, secretary.

Le Chapeau National, Dorothy B. Harper, who is a member of the salon, left Wednesday for Chicago to preside at the National convention.

The social meeting of the salon has been postponed until later in the month.

New Plane-Ship Idea For Trips Arranged

A new combination steamer and plane traffic arrangement has been made effective by United Air Lines and the Dollar Steamship Co.

Passengers fly on United's new high-speed planes to the Atlantic or Pacific Coast and travel by Dollar Line boats back to the other seaboard, or they may board steamers at coast terminals and then fly back to their home cities.

Foresters Get Colorful Garb For Cold Days

C. C. C. Men to Outshine Northwest Mounties in Winter Outfits.

The grim but handsome scarlet coated Mountie, the two-gun, sombrero-hatted cowboy, and all the other picturesque he-men of the great outdoors may have to give way to the Civilian Conservation Corps worker as the idol of the hero-worshiping small boy and his romantic sister.

For when he dons the gala attire the U. S. Army is preparing for him the young woodsman of President Roosevelt's reforestation army will rival the most colorful adventurous figures in eye-filling splendor.

Articles of the new winter wardrobe to be issued to the C. C. C. men have just been received at Army headquarters. Navy-blue lumberjackets, attractive leather windbreakers and sleeveless jerkins of dressy O. D. cloth are included in the outfit. High-crown winter caps with visors and long ear tabs that come together and tie under the chin, chopper mittens, mostly of hide, woolen mittens to go inside, and formidable rubbersoled overshoes are among other items of winter wear.

Especially altered for the reforestation worker, the familiar Army overcoat, woolen uniform, O. D. shirt, heavy woolen underwear and socks also are to form part of the C. C. C. man's wardrobe.

In different parts of the country the winter equipment will vary to suit the climate. In the South, for instance, the leather windbreaker will be supplanted by woolen blouses with sweater roll tops and close-fitting bottoms.

Vividly hued lumbermen's jackets of red-and-blue and green-and-gray plaids will be the vogue among the C. C. C. men in the Northern camps. A real logger's cap to match will complete this gay ensemble.

Vacancies in Army Offer Opportunities

300 Openings in Third Corps Area, Officer Says.

Following announcement of vacancies in Army organizations in Panama and Hawaii, Col. Allen Smith, acting recruiting officer of the Third Corps Area, which includes Washington, stated last week that vacancies in organizations of the Regular Army in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia total 300.

These offer a wide choice of branches and stations to new recruits and former service men who prefer to spend an enlistment period at Army posts near their home localities.

Application for enlistment may be made at any Army recruiting station in the corps area for almost any arm of the service, and at any post in each of the States mentioned. The usual high standards of qualification prevail, including physical and mental tests and character record of the applicant.

The largest number of vacancies exists in the Air Corps, for which applicants are required to have a high school education or its equivalent to qualify for enlistment. The Air Corps stations are Langley Field, Va., and Bolling Field, D. C.

Stuart Walcott Post Nominates Officers

The following nominations were made: Commander, Henry F. Fones, and James T. Brady, senior vice commander, James T. Brady; junior vice commander, John L. Julius; Dixie Guynn; judge advocate, Albert Grobstein; historian, E. J. Hurdle, and Leo Drumwright; quartermaster, Walter L. Schmitt and Leo F. Wise; sergeant-at-arms, Walter L. Schmitt; master-at-arms, John Evans; chaplain, Dr. Charles E. Ralph; surgeon, Dr. M. E. Gardner; trustee, Charles L. Curtiss, jr.; color bearers, Ernest J. Kay and John Smith.

W. C. Buell was appointed finance officer to fill the unexpired term of Henry W. Francis, resigned.

A resolution was drafted for submission to the department requesting that the Watson B. Miller trophy for award to the legionnaire most valuable to former service men in Washington during the past year again be placed in competition.

Samuel Rose, national radio officer of the legion, announced a coast-to-coast broadcast on Armistice Day to be participated in by prominent members of the legion, radio stars and others. This program is expected to last for one hour.

A motion by Vernon C. Auld that election and installation be held in October of this year and in September thereafter, was adopted.

Action upon the motion of Ben Arohnson for reduction in post dues was not taken. The chairman of the entertainment committee, Nathan Silberberg, announced a card party will be held December 14, at the Southern Dairies, 60 M street northeast.

The following members were appointed as an auditing committee of post finances: Vernon C. Auld, E. K. Carroll, Ira D. Scott. They will submit a report at the October meeting. William E. Mitchell was sworn in as a member. The commander announced that Dr. Duncan C. MacCallam, former member of the post, is ill at Mount Alto Hospital, and also the serious illness of Dr. George C. Skinner at his home.

Prof. Barger To Talk Before Medical Group

Lectures Wednesday at G. W. U.; Noted in Chemistry Field.

Prof. George Barger, of the University of Edinburgh, will speak before medical students of George Washington University Wednesday at 11 a. m., giving the first of the Smith-Reed-Russell lectures.

Dr. Barger is an international figure in medical chemistry. He came to America on the invitation of the American Chemical Society to speak at the meeting in Chicago. He was a guest of the University of Michigan, where an honorary degree was conferred upon him.

Dr. Barger's lecture will be the first of a series by eminent medical scientists which will be presented under the auspices of the Smith-Reed-Russell Society. Other lecturers will be Prof. W. W. Cort, the School of Hygiene and Public Health, Johns Hopkins University; Prof. James W. Jobling, head of the department of pathology, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University; Prof. Howard T. Karner, head of the New Institute of Pathology, School of Medicine, Western Reserve University, and Dr. Arthur Cramp, American Medical Association.

Robbins Heads Society.

The Smith-Reed-Russell Society is composed of students of the three upper classes in the School of Medicine who have attained a high scholastic average. The society is named in honor of Dr. Theobald Smith, Dr. Walter Reed and Dr. Frederick Russell, who successively held the chair of bacteriology in George Washington University School of Medicine, and all of whom are universally recognized for their important discoveries in the science of medicince. Officers of the society are: Irvin Robbins, president; Alfred Thom, vice president, and Robert Kassan, secretary-treasurer.

Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the university, will give the third and last of his series of radio addresses Thursday evening at 8:30 o'clock over Station WMAL, when he will discuss the question: "What Have Students and Parents a Right to Expect of College?"

Freshmen women, and all women entering the university for the first time this fall, will be entertained at tea this afternoon from 4 to 7 o'clock at the Carlton Hotel by the Panhellenic Association of the University. In the receiving line will be Miss Clara Critchfield, president of the association; Mrs. Wilson Compton, president of the city Panhellenic Association; Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., of the board of trustees of the university, and Mrs. Vinnie G. Barrows, director of women's personnel guidance.

Alumni Meeting Tomorrow.

Dr. Daniel LeRay Borden, president of the General Alumni Association, has called the first meeting of his officers and executive committee for tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the Mayflower Hotel.

On Tuesday afternoon Columbian Women of George Washington University will hold their first meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., 3405 Lowell street. Mrs. W. Hayes Yeager is president.

Mrs. Barrows will hold the second of her weekly assemblies for freshmen women Thursday at noon.

Dr. William Allen Wilbur, provost of the university, will preside at the weekly chapel exercises Friday.

Glee clubs have started practice under direction of Dr. Robert Howe Harmon. The University Band has made several appearances, with Lewis Malkus directing.

Many Fetes Held At College Park

College Park, Md., Sept. 30 (Spl.). The Sewing Club of College Park met on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Joseph Longridge. Present were Mrs. Remick Ferguson, Mrs. Harwood Reed, Mrs. Elliot Degman, Miss Olive Kelk, Miss Nellie Emack, Mrs. Wells Hunt, Miss Frances Maisch and Miss Emily Smith.

The university gymnasium was the scene of the preseason dance of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Prince Georges County this evening. Walter L. Green, of College Park, headed the committee on arrangements.

Mrs. Charles S. Richardson was hostess at a luncheon and contract bridge party at her home on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. W. K. Harlow and Miss Peary Harlow, of Philadelphia, formerly of College Park, were guests last week-end of friends in College Park.

Miss Adele Stamp, dean of women at the university, entertained at the "sister tea" in the coed fieldhouse Thursday afternoon.

The National Capital Chapter of the Alumni Association of Iowa State College held its annual summer picnic today at the home of Dr. Raymond A. Pearson, president of the University of Maryland, and Mrs. Pearson.

The rectory of St. Jerome's Catholic Church, Hyattsville, was the scene of the marriage Wednesday evening of Miss Evelyn Bladen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bladen, of College Park, to Charles Kaldenback, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kaldenback, Riverdale Heights, Md. The Rev. Chester Czyc, assistant pastor, performed the ceremony.

Southeastern Starts Courses Tomorrow

Southeastern University's graduate course in accounting and one-year accounting course for lawyers will begin tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. Day courses in accountancy start tomorrow at 9:30 a. m.

The Washington Preparatory School, affiliated with Southeastern, has instituted "make-up and review" classes, which will be held Saturdays. This school will provide a standard high school course for adults employed during the day.

Liberal Arts College Group Announces Supper Forums

Christian Association to Hear Noted Persons Every Month.

Monthly supper forums, at which outstanding speakers will present their views and lead discussions, are announced as a new feature of the work of the Student Christian Association at the American University, College of Liberal Arts.

The first of these special meetings will be held on Wednesday, at 6:15 p. m. Dr. Paul Harris, jr., of the National Council for the Prevention of War, has been asked to speak at this meeting. Richard W. Buckingham, 1529 Twenty-ninth street, is president of the association.

Mr. Buckingham also is editor in chief of the American Eagle, bimonthly publication, which appeared on the campus last Wednesday. Louise Danforth, 1620 Riggs place, is business manager.

Friday evening, the Dean of the College and Mrs. George B. Woods, with Miss Mary Louise Brown, dean of women, entertained members of the faculty and administration at a buffet supper in the Wesley Heights Clubhouse.

Last night the annual all-college "weenie roast" was held on the campus. The program was arranged by Mary Lesta Wakeman, 4817 Forty-sixth street.

This evening at 7 o'clock Dr. John E. Bentley, professor of psychology, will speak on "Important Beliefs for Young People" at a service in the Metropolitan Memorial Church near the campus. Dr. Chesteen Smith, pastor, and Robert Parker, Robert Tinker and Sara Hawbecker, members of the student body, also will take part in this service, which is sponsored by the Student Christian Association.

Fraternity and sorority activities began Monday, when the seven campus organizations held their first meetings. Although the men's rush season will not be held until after the football training period, plans were made by the women's groups for their rushing activities from Friday, October 6, through Saturday, October 21.

The Rev. Frank S. Niles, pastor of the Georgetown Presbyterian Church, spoke at the regular chapel service Wednesday morning at the Metropolitan Memorial Church.

Stephan Joins College of Law Day Division

Will Conduct Course in Damages; Dr. Mooers Begins Lectures.

Dean Grace Hays Riley of Washington College of Law announces that Albert E. Stephan, of the legal staff of the coordinator of railroads, has been appointed to conduct the course in damages in the day division.

Mr. Stephan was graduated from Wesleyan University in 1926 with the degree of bachelor of arts, and received his bachelor of laws degree from Harvard Law School in 1929. He is a member of the bar of Massachusetts and of the District of Columbia.

Dr. Edwin A. Mooers began a series of lectures on "Preparation of Cases for Trial" yesterday afternoon before senior and junior classes. This series of 12 lectures precedes the holding of the moot court, which is conducted under the rules of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. Members of the senior class act as counsel, while the juniors serve as assistant counsel, witnesses and jurors. Members of the faculty preside as judges.

The Freshman Debating Society and class in public speaking was organized by Mrs. Rebekah S. Greathouse, assistant United States attorney for the District of Columbia, who will have charge of this organization's work. The first session was an introduction to the course with a lecture on parliamentary law. At the second meeting a series of talks was given on great American lawyers. Subjects and speakers included "Benjamin Franklin," Vernon B. Vaden; "George Wythe," May Conley; "Patrick Henry," Mary P. Metz; "Thomas Jefferson," Helen L. Kosaveach; "John Jay," Vivian Dustin; "John Marshall," William Lowry; "William Pinkney," Nathan A. Clark, and "Jeremiah Mason," B. E. Williams.

The first meeting of the scholastic year of the Patent Alumni Association was held at the college Friday night. The speakers were T. A. Hostetler, solicitor of the Patent Office, whose subject was "Equity Suits Under Section 4915 of the Revised Statutes," and William D. Shoemaker, professor of trade-marks and designs at the college, who spoke on "The Training of a Patent Attorney."

The association adopted by-laws suggested at the May meeting.

Pupils Accepted By Hayden Studios

Children's Classes Listed; Boys' Featured.

The Phil Hayden Studios of Dance and Body Culture at 6 Dupont Circle announce they now are accepting registration for children's classes in tap, ballet, musical comedy and acrobatics.

A boys' class is being featured this year for those between the ages of 8 and 14, the work of this group to be confined to muscle building acrobatics and military tap—a strictly masculine class for cub scouts, Boy Scouts and others interested in building better bodies for stronger deeds.

The babies' class for those of 2 to 5 years is excellent for developing rhythm and grace in small bodies and training young minds to appreciate properly these assets.

Blair Group to Award Garden Contest Prizes

Awards to winners in the recent lawn and garden contest sponsored by the Blair Citizens Association will be made at a meeting Tuesday night in the Takoma-Silver Spring High School.

C. U. Alumni Set Meeting For Tomorrow

Homecoming Fete Plans Taken Up; Barron Heads Debaters.

Washington Chapter of the Catholic University Alumni Association will hold the first meeting of the season at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening in the Music Building on the campus.

Plans for the annual homecoming celebration sponsored by the chapter—Saturday, November 11—will be the principal business of the meeting. On that day the Flying Cardinals will meet the University of Detroit in Griffith Stadium. William F. Dietz, 5714 Colorado avenue northwest, president of the chapter, will conduct the meeting.

The Shahan Debating Society elected William J. Barron, of Trenton, N. J., as president at its first meeting of the current academic year. John McDonald, of Grand Junction, Colo., was chosen vice president to succeed Barron. A tentative schedule of the year was discussed, but definite action was postponed pending the return of Alfred Nolan, debate coach.

The roster of the Glee Club has been substantially increased by 20 freshmen and upper classmen, who qualified in preliminary try-outs. Joseph A. Cicala, of West Haven, Conn., president of the club, plans an extensive concert series throughout the District of Columbia and in the immediate vicinity.

The Cardinal, senior class annual, will be edited by William A. Powers, of Santurce, Puerto Rico, as a result of a special election held to fill vacancies. The post of assistant editor, vacated by the promotion of Powers, will be filled this week.

Grocers in Montgomery County to Hold Meeting

Arrangements are being made for a meeting of Montgomery County grocers in the Rockville High School, October 11, sponsored by the Independent Retail Grocers' Association, according to announcement by the president, H. Albert Buehler, of Silver Spring.

Prominent speakers will discuss the National Recovery Administration and State officers of the Independent Retail Grocers' Association will be present. A buffet supper will be given.

B. F. U. Scholarships Won By High School Graduates

Seven graduates of Washington high schools and three from nearby high schools will enter Benjamin Franklin University this fall as a result of scholarships awarded on the basis of character, scholarship and aptitude for accountancy.

The graduates are Morton Jaffe, 1201 Morse street northeast, from McKinley; Antoinette D'Elia, 1301 Allison street, from Central; Anne Quinn, 4931 Massachusetts avenue, from Western; Martha M. Cuticchia, 111 U street northeast, from Roosevelt; Geraldine Margaret Ray, 1514 Potomac avenue southeast, from Eastern; John B. B[illegible], 3811 Military road, from St. John's College; James E. Fitzgerald, 725 Tenth street northeast, from Gonzaga High School; Davis Schley Bowie, Aspen, Md., from Takoma-Silver Spring High School; Benton W. Strickler, 4509 Highland avenue, Bethesda, Md., from Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, and Esther Grubb, 2336 South Dakota avenue northeast, from Hyattsville High School.

With the opening tomorrow of two additional freshman-class sections, the fall term at Benjamin Franklin University will be fully underway. At 9:30 a. m. the new freshman class in the day division will hear an address by John T. Kennedy, president of the university, and Edwin C. Bosworth, dean of the faculty. At 5:30 the new late afternoon section will be welcomed.

Ninety students are enrolled in these two classes, and it is expected tomorrow's registrations will bring the enrollment in these sections well above 100 students.

Washington Students Attend Peddie School

Among Washington students attending the Peddie School at Hightstown, N. J., are Victor Osias and Camilo Osias, jr., sons of Mr. and Mrs. Camilo Osias, 3157 Eighteenth street northwest; Herbert Codey Woolley, jr., son of Col. and Mrs. Herbert C. Woolley, St. Elizabeths Hospital; David Harold Crosby, son of Mrs. Elizabeth B. Crosby, 627 Maryland avenue northeast, and Harry Bowne Skillman, jr., and Roger Molbry Skillman, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Skillman, 2001 Sixteenth street northwest.

Also, William Wallace Lamond, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Lamond, 30 Carroll avenue, Takoma Park, Md., and Paul Erdman Tolson, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Tolson, Bethesda, Md.

Will Give Lectures

REV. GEORGE F. STROHAVER, dean of the School of Arts and Sciences of Georgetown University, who will give a course of six lectures at the St. Matthew's Church beginning October 15.

Prof. Tansill Will Lecture On War Guilt

Opens His Lecture Series at American U. Wednesday.

Dr. Charles C. Tansill, head of the department of history in the graduate school of American University, will lecture during the first semester on International Relations and World Politics an hour each week, Wednesday from 4:45 to 6 p. m.

Most of the discussion will deal with German-American relations up to and including the World War.

Dr. Tansill is considered an expert in the war guilt problem. This course promises to be of particular interest since Prof. Tansill has access to manuscript material concerning German-American relations which so far had not been at the disposal of history students.

The first lecture will be held this week. Special students and auditors may attend these classes.

The American University course on Contemporary World Events will open Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the Assembly room, 1901 F street. The first lecture will be given by Dr. Amos E. Taylor on "The NRA and the National Recovery Act."

Dr. Taylor is Assistant Chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce in the Department of Commerce. The lecture will be open to the public.

Spanish School Enrolls Many

The large number of inquiries and enrollments already received at the Spanish School of Washington during the past two weeks points to a year of great activity and indicates the Spanish language has assumed an important position in the commercial affairs of this country and the rapid expansion of many Government departments and commercial firms has created an unusual demand for thoroughly experienced translators, correspondents and the like.

The importance of the language in the foreign service of the United States is shown by the fact one-third of the diplomatic posts and one-fourth of the consulates are in Spanish-speaking countries.

Evening classes have proved popular with Government employes who wish to avail themselves of the opportunity to study after office hours. Instruction in the Spanish language this year will follow the policy established by the Spanish School of Washington in teaching Spanish entirely from a practical conversation angle in the shortest possible time. Courses will be given during the day as well as in the evening, in the new quarters at 1343 H street northwest.

Capital Students Attend Carnegie

13 Enrolled at Institute of Technology.

Thirteen students from the Washington district have enrolled at the Carnegie Institute of Technology in Pittsburgh. In the department of drama, Miss Dorothy Eleanor O'Donnell, 5745 Thirteenth street northwest, is enrolled as a freshman; Berry Mulligan, of 2800 Thirteenth street northwest, is a junior, and James Wilbur Lindsay, Lovettsville, Va., also is a junior. Melvin Daniel Buckner, 3000 Connecticut avenue, northwest, is a sophomore in the painting and decoration department.

Five students from the District of Columbia are enrolled in the printing department. They are Joseph Reidy, 330 Maryland avenue northeast, short course, and Henry August Kroll, 3011 Sixteenth street, northeast, John H. Davis, jr., 4900 Indian Lane, northwest, Shorey Allen, 1313 Farragut street, northwest, and W. Bradley Edelblut, 3607 South Dakota avenue northeast, all members of the senior class.

Earl W. Emerson, 1403 Decatur street, northwest and Russell Ellsworth Dorrell, 3700 Horner Place, southeast, are enrolled in the department of electrical engineering, Emerson as a sephomore and Dorrell as a senior. Robert Potter, 6101 Connecticut avenue, Chevy Chase, is a sophomore in the mechanical engineering department, and Leo Kasehagen, 1353 Jefferson street, northwest, is a graduate student in coal research.

Strayer Finds Enrollment Up 100 Per Cent

Begins Graduate Course Tomorrow Evening; Blum in Charge.

With advance registrations indicating an increase of 100 per cent in enrollment, Strayer College of Accountancy will begin its graduate course in accounting research tomorrow evening under the direction of Frederick M. Blum.

Classes in C. P. A. problems and specialized accounting will meet Monday and Wednesday evenings and the class in analysis of financial statements and money and banking will be held Friday evenings under the direction of Dr. Joseph S. Zucker, professorial lecturer at George Washington University.

Both beginning and advanced students will be admitted to the undergraduate classes in accounting tomorrow evening, according to C. Vaughan Darby, secretary of the District Board of Accountancy, who has charge of the first class in constructive accounting open to beginning students.

Secretarial students also will be able to enter classes tomorrow in beginning shorthand, touch typewriting, office training and secretarial studies, business English, business letter writing, dictation and court reporting, which will be formed in both day and evening sessions.

Pinckney J. Harman, director of the college, has announced that all evening session students may increase the length of their schedule to as much as four hours each evening without additional tuition charge if they wish. The average schedule in previous years has been 2½ hours.

Chevy Chase Y. W. C. A. Meeting on Tuesday

The Chevy Chase Chapter of the Y. W. C. A. will meet Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Harold E. Doyle, 3818 Huntington street, to discuss plans for the coming year.

Officers this year are: Mrs. Doyle, president; Mrs. Edward G. Yonker, vice president; Mrs. Lewis H. Russell, recording secretary; Mrs. Henry DeC. Adams, corresponding secretary; Miss Emma Hays Heck, treasurer, and Mrs. Frank M. Hoadley, member of executive committee ex officio as past president.

The Washington Post Magazine

WASHINGTON, D. C., SUNDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1933

A New Weekly for the Nation's Capital

Fairchild Aerial Surveys.

IN conformity with its purpose of giving a complete newspaper, informative and entertaining, The Washington Post today presents the first issue of a new Sunday Magazine Section.

To be interesting without being sensational, to be dignified without being dull, to be authentic, will be its aim.

Designed exclusively for residents of this city and its surrounding territory, articles and pictures of local significance will predominate, but the world will be its field when occasion demands.

Post features which will be found regularly in the new Sunday Magazine include Vignettes of Life by J. Norman Lynd, McGoofey's First Reader by H. I. Phillips, Culbertson on Bridge, Bridge Bids and Bumps by Frank B. Lord and the Cross-Word Puzzle.

Maryland's Founding Impended 300 Years Ago

September, 1633, London Saw Calvert's Brave Plan Maturing.

By William Rufus Scott.

LONDON, 300 years ago this month, was talking excitedly of the newest venture for colonizing America. This colony was to become Maryland.

The sailing date of the company of "gentlemen adventurers" and plain folk was drawing near in October, 1633, and in that slow-moving age much had to be done before the departure, in addition to many months of preparation preceding. The two ships were being given their final conditioning and provisions, supplies for the settlers were being loaded, and every other precaution was being taken to assure success.

It had been 13 years since the founding of the last English colony, that of Plymouth, in 1620, and 26 years since the founding of the first permanent English colony at Jamestown, Va., in 1607. Accordingly, London, and England generally, did not have these events take place so frequently as to dull interest in them.

Europe also watched this latest colonizing plan, particularly Spain and France, which had ambitious aims in the new hemisphere. England was keenly and vitally concerned about widening her hold upon the American continent. With a colony established to the south, in Virginia, and one to the north, in Massachusetts, it seemed good strategy to fill in the gap betwen—and also to move toward the Spanish, in Florida, and the French, in Canada.

Founder of Maryland.

The Maryland colonists, however, did not sail in October, 1633, but in the following month, a fortunate postponement, since it resulted in the arrival of the colonists in Maryland in March, 1634, or after the rigors of winter. The experience of the Plymouth colony, in arriving during the cold season, while not likely to be repeated at any time in the vicinity of Maryland, was still fresh enough in the minds of Englishmen.

As the 300th anniversary of the sailing of the Maryland colony does not come until November that part of the story can be deferred while a backward glance is taken at the origin and development of the scheme.

George Calvert, afterward the first Lord Baltimore, the organizer of the Maryland venture, was descended from a noble family on the continent of Europe, in Flanders, part of Belgium. He was born in Yorkshire, England, in a village that bore the name of a famous literary man of modern England—Kipling—in the year 1580.

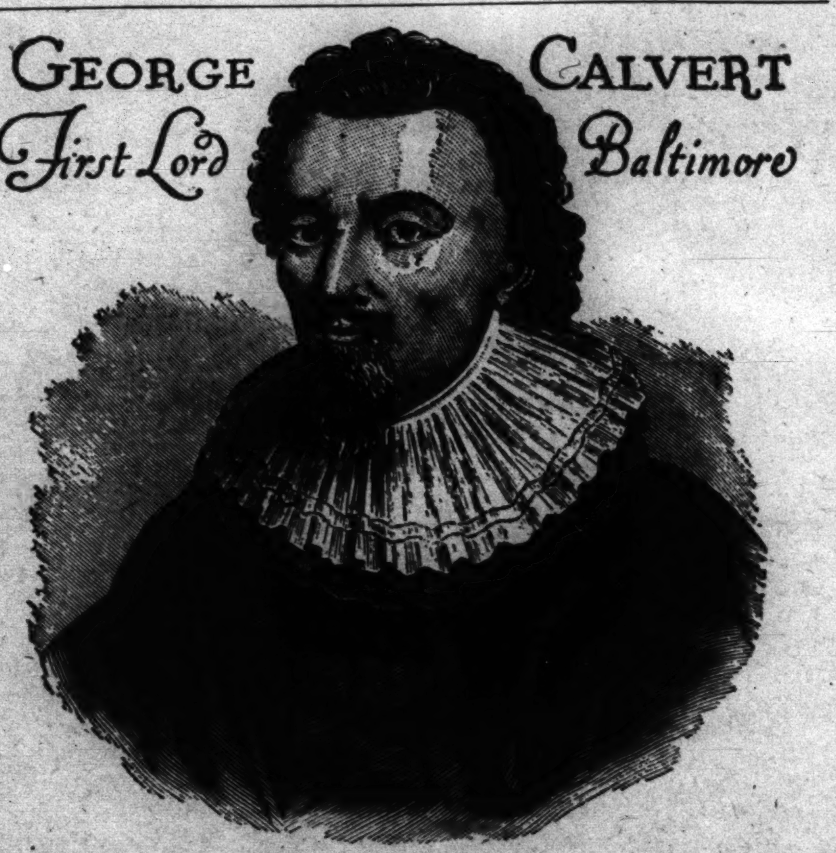
The period was stirring and momentous in English hsitory. Spain was dazzling the imagination of Europe with conquests in the Americas and with shiploads of silver, gold, precious stones and other treasures brought back from these conquests, mainly in Mexico and South America.

How the English ships preyed upon the Spanish treasure vessels and how finally the English and the Spanish came to grips in the titanic battle of the seas in which the Spanish armada was defeated and the English gained the mastery of the seas that has dominated European destiny, and the destiny of most of the world besides, down to this age, are phases of the period in which George Calvert lived which need not be recalled further than to supply his background.

Entered Oxford at 13.

Calvert was 6 years old when the armada was destroyed. He was a precocious youth—having entered Oxford University at 13 and was graduated at 17—and so fully able to appreciate the significance of the great event and to perceive the general drift of the times.

In 1605 he was given his M. A. degree, and, as was customary for young men of his grade, a tour of the continent of Europe was the finishing touch to his education. Upon his return to England he began what developed into a long and successful career in public office, taking first an unimportant position in the government. As he was principal secretary of state for King James at the climax of his official career, it is evident that he had capacities deemed of the first rank.



But, resuming the record, by 1609 he was of sufficient importance to become a member of the Virginia Company of Planters, thereby gaining a direct and intimate knowledge of the affairs of that colony. This knowledge was to stand him in good stead later in his own dreams of colonizing.

In 1617 two events of note in his life stand out. The favor of the king was shown in the bestowal upon Calvert of knighthood. In this same year Sir George bought a patent upon land in the southern part of Newfoundland. The idea of being himself a colonizer was taking definite shape. It had been ten years then since the Jamestown colony got a foothold in the New World.

The year in which the Pilgrims sailed and settled at Plymouth, 1620, found Calvert elected to Parliament. That he watched with closest attention the fate of this venture goes without saying. A year later he sent a small group to Newfoundland to begin a settlement, giving the poetic name of Avalon to the area he controlled there. It was not a happy venture, as will be seen hereafter.

Becomes Irish Baron.

King James gave further proof of the favor in which he held Calvert by bestowing upon him, in 1625, the title of Baron and estates in Ireland. It was as a member of the Irish peerage that he adopted the appellation, Lord Baltimore. For a while he lived on his estate in Ireland until his overseas enterprises absorbed his time and demanded his presence in London.

This same year the death of King James deprived him of a real friend at the highest post in the realm. But he soon found equal favor with the new King Charles. The fact that Lord Baltimore had embraced the Catholic faith did not apparently alter his standing at court. The religious controversies of the period were acute and played their full part in all negotiations leading up to the granting of the charter to the Maryland colony. Calvert was dealing with a Protestant king and in the period when the most advanced wing of English Protestantism, the Puritans, were girding themselves for the struggle which finally cost King Charles his head, in the Cromwellian era. What this struggle meant to the charter of Maryland, in its definitions of religious liberty, will become apparent upon reading the charter, which will be considered in a subsequent article. But no raking over of the dead embers of bitter religious disputes of that age is necessary to the recording of the chief events of the founding of the colony.

Deciding to press his colonization schemes in earnest, and with unfavorable reports from the group sent to Newfoundland, Lord Baltimore, in 1627, went to the latter place. He became convinced that the climate was too cold for suitable colonization, or at least for profitable operations. Before this the idea of shifting his interest to a more hospitable climate had been given serious thought. There would be no repetition of the mistakes made in the Newfoundland venture, if he could avoid them. So he decided on a journey to Virginia in 1629 to survey the ground and see for himself what his colonists would encounter.

Meets Virginia Hostility.

The Virginia colony had no enthusiasm for him or his project. His official connection with the Virginia company and his friendship with the king in the dispute between the monarch and the colony over the charter of Jamestown were fully known. Moreover, his intentions of founding a colony adjacent to Virginia, and upon territory which Virginians believed part of their domain, were equally well known.

The result was that hostility to him and to his aims was manifested upon his arrival at Jamestown. The Governor of Virginia met him with a somewhat brusque request that he take an oath of allegiance that was known to be distasteful in form to Lord Baltimore.

Despite this hostility, he learned much that was to prove valuable to the Maryland colonists. On his return to England he pressed his application for a royal charter to found a colony on the Chesapeake just north of the Virginia colony. During 1631 he was busy with this phase of the project and in organizing the preliminaries of the expedition. Getting a charter in those days encountered virtually the same kind of obstacles that getting a governmental grant of any kind involves today—red tape, overcoming objections, revising terms and the like.

Named for English Queen.

Much discussion arose over the question of a name for the colony. Lord Baltimore proposed "Crescentia." His choice of Avalon as a name for the Newfoundland colony had revealed a touch of the poetic, and Crescentia continued this inclination. King Charles disliked Crescentia. Instead, the king proposed to honor his queen, Henrietta Maria, by naming the colony for her. In Latin it was Terra Mariae, and in English, Maryland. It was not long until the word Maryland was in vogue.

The outstanding features of the Maryland charter were one-man ownership and religious liberty. The kind of joint stock company at Jamestown, or at Plymouth, was abandoned. King Charles had had enough trouble with the heady colonies already founded to want a firmer and more direct control over any new colonies. Later William Penn was to found a colony of the proprietary kind, and Pennsylvania was as essentially a one-man enterprise as Maryland.

But in the spring of 1632, on April 15, Lord Baltimore died. He was comparatively young, being in his fifty-third year. He had pushed the enterprise past the major barriers of politics and economics. To his son, Cecilius, fell the title and the unfinished task. For a young man of 26 a heavy responsibilitn—which he discharged with signal ability, even though he inherited all the careful planning and accumulated experience of his father in colonizing. More than a year was to pass before action, because, as stated, the colonists did not sail until November, 1633.

The next article in this series will present the charter for the colony of Maryland, under authority of which the second Lord Baltimore sent forth the adventurers in the two ships, the Ark and the Dove.

Old Pension Office Columns Tombs of Lost History

Gen. Meigs, Half Century Ago, Conceived Unique Cache of Federal Documents for Posterity.

By Ira L. Smith.

PAPERS yellowed with age and long forgotten have just divulged a secret. Columns of the Pension Office Building contain leaden boxes in which Federal archives were placed 50 years ago.

The columns, those which surround the large interior hall, appear to stand as solid supports of the balcony above them. In reality, they are the walls of small chambers wherein the hermetically sealed containers were placed when the structure was erected.

Federal officials, viewing the evidence which has risen out of obscure places in Government files, are pondering the possibility that the hidden documents eventually may be moved from the dark recesses in which they long have rested to the Archives Building now under construction.

That action would provide the climax for the story of one man's efforts to assure success for persons who may conduct searches hundreds or thousands of years from now among the ruins of buildings which today form the city o' Washington.

Pioneer Evolves Plan.

To Montgomery Cunningham Meigs, born 101 years ago in Georgia, goes the credit for having devised the plan to protect the documents from the ravages of time.

Having gained the rank of brigadier general as a retired Army officer, Meigs addressed letters to Cabinet members and other high officials in 1883, asking them to provide him, as supervising engineer in charge of the Pension Office Building construction, with records to be guarded for the benefit of future generations.

"They will be found well preserved and perfectly legible whenever the building is demolished," he assured those to whom he wrote.

Scrutiny of the records of several Government agencies has revealed the nature of some of the documents. The clews uncovered so far, however, account for only a small portion of the space which Gen. Meigs is known to have set aside for his caches. It is entirely possible that only actual penetration to the columns' interiors will disclose the exact character of the archives.

Meigs Letter Quoted.

The following letter, addressed to the chief clerk of the War Department by Gen. Meigs on July 13, 1883, is typical of several sent to Government officials and manifests the spirit that controlled the work of acquisition:

"In the new Pension Building is a series of columns in each of whose shafts of terra cotta there will be a cylindrical hole of five inches in diameter.

"These will be dry, closed spaces, hermetically sealed, admirably adapted for preservation of any documents placed in them.

A roll of documents of not over 4½ inches diameter of any moderate length, 3 to 6 feet, may be safely placed therein with confident expectation that, if enveloped in a closed leaden or even tin box, soldered tight, they will be found well preserved and perfectly legible whenever the building by time or accidental or hostile violence is demolished.

"I have thought that perhaps the several departments of the Government might be willing to prepare such moderate collection of statistical or other documents as will be interesting to the historians or the antiquarians of the age when the ruins of this building, like those of Egypt and of Assyria, shall be opened to the curious.

Urges Haste in Papers.

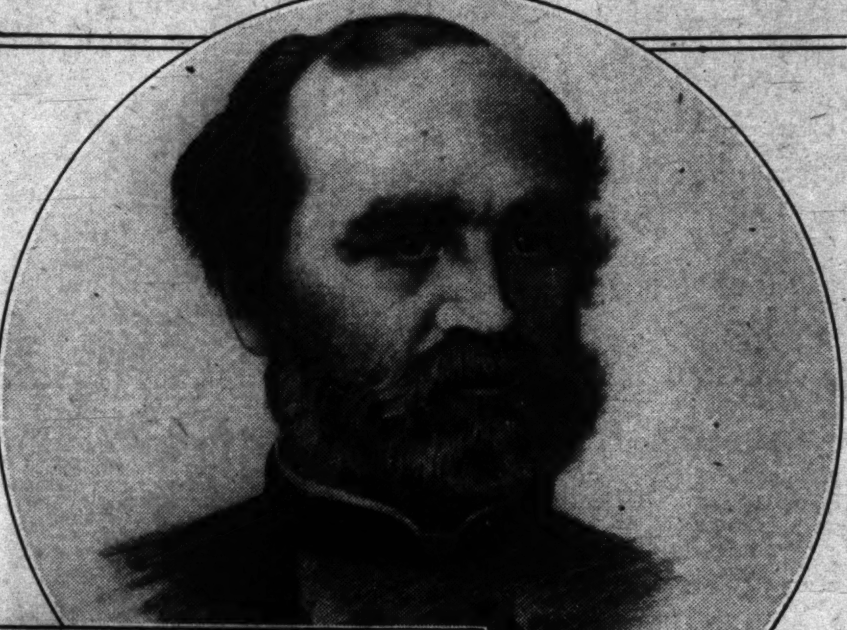
"The workmen are now setting these columns in place on their foundations, and the documents should be prepared within a few days to find the place of deposit open for their reception.

"Anything sent to this office within two weeks will be carefully so placed.

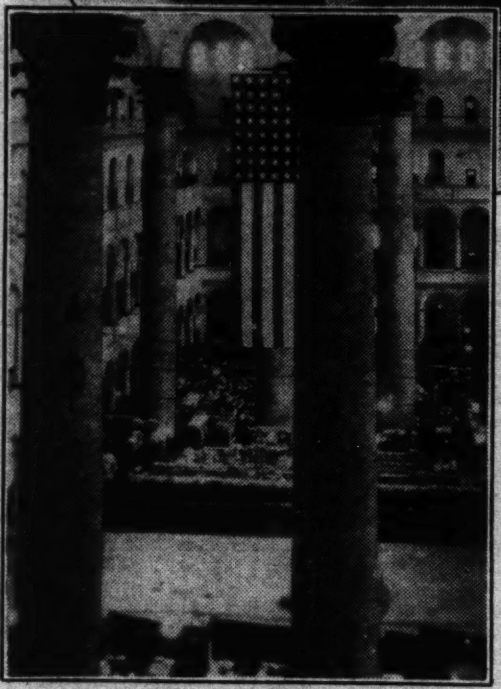
"For the War Department, I suggest maps, official reports, the Army Register, &c. But any papers that it occurs to you to send to this office, made up into a roll of suitable size, will be cared for."

Within a few days the War Department placed a large number of important records in Gen. Meigs' hands. He immediately sealed them in iron and tin containers, which then were positioned within the columns and arches.

These columns and arches are among the large number which support the first balcony surrounding the "great hall" in the center of the building. Into that hall, a massive area which seems strange with a roof above it, 8,000 persons crowded on a cold March night, when Grover Cleveland first came to the Presidency, to participate in the inaugural ball. Other thousands came quadrennially to the imposing place when later inaugural fetes held sway. Between times great numbers of men wounded in war came there, pressing their claims for pensions. And now the desks of hundreds of Government workers employed by the General Accounting Office stand crowded upon the tiled floor.



Brig. Gen. Meigs.



Columns of Old Pension Office.

Few Know of Recesses.

These hosts of people—celebrators, veterans and workers—moving within the great hall during five decades have included few individuals, if any, who knew the place was honeycombed with secret recesses.

The fact is that little attention was drawn to the strange business of stowing away Government records in iron and tin caskets, even when it was at its height. There were no attending ceremonies, and it even appears that Gen. Meigs may have made a positive effort to have as little notice as possible given to the whole affair.

Officials of the Treasury Department have been searching recently for the old architectural drawings used during construction of the building. They seek to obtain information which will indicate the particular columns in which the documents were placed.

Terra Cotta Used.

In a general way, it is known that the columns supporting the first balcony—more than 70—were constructed of terra cotta blocks covered with an extremely hard and moisture-proof cement. Plaster was applied over the cement.

Evidence already gathered from old files indicates at least 20 columns were filled with documents, with the possibility that Gen. Meigs used many more for this purpose.

A casual study of activities to which Gen. Meigs had devoted his attention before he turned to construction of the Pension Office Building, reveals how natural it was that the retired Army officer should apply an extreme earnestness to the idea of preserving governmental documents for the far-distant future.

Four years before he undertook supervision of the building's construction he was designated by the War Department to prepare plans for a national "Hall of Records," in line with ideas which were the early ancestors of those which now are governing erection of the Archives Building.

In correspondence now in the custody of the Library of Congress, Gen. Meigs gave full evidence of his interest in preservation of archives. On the margin of one of these letters appear detail drawings of storage boxes, showing the type of construction he thought would be most efficient.

His interest in the desires of antiquarians is shown in the fact that he was appointed later to be a regent of the Smithsonian Institution.

It was only natural that he should look upon the Pension Office Building as offering opportunity for the exercising of his ideas about preservation when passage of almost half a decade had seen nothing tangible developed from his "Hall of Records" plans.

As a matter of fact, he could not even allow the occasion of the laying of the first brick in construction of the exterior of the Pension Office Building to pass without capitalizing it for the satisfaction of his desire to "save things for the future."

Buries Coins in Wall

As workmen were about to advance with the bricklaying, he halted activities long enough to place small coins having a total value of 31 cents in the mortar upon which the first brick was to rest. Then, seeing a group of small boys had witnessed the move, he ordered heavy boards and other material to be placed over the brickwork until the mortar had set.

Soon after Gen. Meigs began development of his plan to stuff the building's interior with archives.

One week after his letter reached the War Department, tin cases, bundles and boxes began to arrive at the general's office from that unit in more than modest volume. Included among contents of the many packages, several volumes of "The Record of the Rebellion," report of the joint commission on the Washington Monument, list of clerks and employes of the War Department, reports of general officers of the Army, Official Register of Officers of Volunteers, U. S. Army, 1861-1865; Official Register of the Army, 1864 and 1865; Army Register for 1882, topographical maps of the United States, the territory west of the Mississippi, and the Department of the Columbia, maps of battlefields, including Appomattox Court House, Cold Harbor, Petersburg and Five Forks; Richmond, Spottsylvania Court House, Nashville, and Gettysburg; charts of surveys of the Great Lakes and atlas sheets of surveys of Lake Tahoe, Washoe mining region and New Mexico.

Columns Designated.

Most of the documents were placed and sealed in the seventh column east of the north gate on the north side of the hall and in the northeast cast iron column in the south gateway to the hall, according to information transmitted by Gen. Meigs to the department. Tin cases containing the maps were placed in the fifth column west of the south gate.

The State Department provided the following items:

Copper-plate facsimile of the Declaration of Independence; register of the State Department; list of foreign legations in the United States June 4, 1883; memorial address on J. A. Garfield pronounced by J. G. Blaine before Congress; message of the President to Congress December, 1882; copies of the treaties between the United States and Great Britain dated April 19, 1850; document relative to a canal across Panama and copies of a number of appropriation bills.

On July 28, 1883, Gen. Meigs wrote the department:

"I have the honor to inform you that I have this morning deposited the tin case containing documents of the Department of State, which you were good enough to send for the purpose, in the ninth column west of the south gate of the great hall."

Other Matter Entombed.

Evidence that other governmental units likewise forwarded some contents of their files to Gen. Meigs has been obtained.

There is reason to believe, also, that Gen. Meigs placed archives in his specially con-

Columbia Hospital City's Great "Whether" Bureau

Washington's hospitals. What are they doing, what are their problems, how are they financed, how many people do they serve, what are their histories? The proposal to introduce group hospitalization into the Nation's Capital has awakened new interest in these institutions. Below is the first of a series of articles intended to answer the foregoing questions.

THERE are two large buildings between Twenty-fourth and Twenty-fifth, L and M streets northwest. One is the Weather Bureau. The other is the whether bureau—whether it will be a boy or a girl.

The stork makes his local headquarters at the larger building, Columbia Hospital for Women. An average of 4½ babies is born there every day.

If the infantile squalls emanating from this institution were harnessed, they would generate enough energy to wheel one or two perambulators.

Operating though it does as a maternity hospital, Columbia has given refuge and medical care to many a member of the sex which boasts no mothers Only last year a reporter was admitted to have his appendix removed. He is still blushing.

None Turned Away.

Every now and then an emergency case male is rushed to the doors. Broken leg, heat exhaustion, poisoning or acute indigestion. None is turned away without examination and at least first-aid treatment. Many remain overnight in improvised quarters. The appendix case stayed several weeks. And liked it.

Dr. Sterling B. Ragsdale, superintendent, can recall no baby mixups such as often send distraught parents to the courts. Probably no maternity hospital in the country takes more elaborate precautions against confusion of infants.

Baby's first ornament is a beaded necklace bearing the family name. The letters are cut into the beads and the necklace securely fastened. Then an identification band is placed about the infant's wrist and footprints taken. A copy of the footprints is posted on the bed chart alongside the mother's fingerprints.

The three systems are in general use, but few hospitals employ them all.

138 Born There in July.

Seventy-six boys and 62 girls were born at Columbia in July. There were 1,453 births between July, 1932, and July, 1933. These figures include a few born there not quite, the "taxibabies," whose parents lost to Mr. Stork in the race to the hospital.

Columbia Hospital for Women and Lying-in Asylum, its full name, was organized and chartered by Congress in 1866 to care for women deserted following the close of the Civil War. Its first home was the Hall mansion, Fourteenth street and Massachusetts avenue.

In 1870 it was removed to the building which formerly housed the British Embassy. For 63 years Columbia has maintained the same location. Construction of the building which it occupies today was authorized in 1912 at a cost of $400,000. It has been occupied since January, 1916.

Congress and the District Government divided the costs of the building.

Columbia is unique in that its status has never been established. It may be regarded as a Federal institution, a District institution or a private institution. Yet it is a rather odd combination of all three.

Besides having a financial interest—the central Government and the District of Columbia hold title to the hospital's real estate—the United States is represented on the board of directors by one senator and two representatives.

Appropriations made by Congress for heat, power, light and maintenance are charged to the District. Most appointments to the board of directors are made by the Commissioners, and since the beginning there has been one Commissioner on every board.

Nevertheless, Columbia is a private institution in the sense that the District government has no control over its operation and management, it has corporation status and pay patients provide the greater part of its income.

Saved by Fund in 1929.

Possessed of Federal and District aid and a subsidy by the Board of Public Welfare to care for free patients, the hospital nevertheless was in precarious circumstances when the Community Chest came along in 1929 to pull it out of the slough. Since then it has been without support by the welfare board.

At present Columbia is running at about 60 per cent capacity, a fair average by comparison with the general hospitals here. More than half are free or part pay cases. It costs the hospital approximately $5 a day to care for each patient. There are 120 beds and 80 bassinets.

None but graduate nurses is employed. The nursing school was discontinued in 1925 for lack of adequate housing. Congrss has authorized construction of a home, but funds are yet to be appropriated.

Out-Patient Clinic Provided.

In 1920 the out-patient clinic was reorganized and a social worker employed to give instructions in prenatal care. The Women's Board of Columbia cooperates with the Thrift Shop to obtain funds and defray expenses.

Dr. Ragsdale has been in hospital work 25 years, all but two as an administrator. He came to Columbia in March, 1929, from Geneva, N. Y.

Under him are 125 employes, but all of them are less trouble than one expectant father nervously pacing the corridors. Sometimes there are as many as five or six getting up and sitting down, puffing furiously at cigarettes, casting anxious eyes toward the operating room—all waiting for the news.

Dr. Ragsdale, slender and looking like a man in his early thirties, walks up to one and says reassuringly:

"Cheer up. We haven't lost a father yet."

Capital Folk Recall Futile Torpedoing of Transport

Inset: Lieut. Comdr. Bailey.

SAFELY anchored in the quiet waters of the Patuxent, off Solomons Island, in Southern Maryland, stands the Mount Vernon, sole American naval transport to survive torpedoing in the World War. Moored to three sister ships, steeped in memories of greater days, she serves a quiet role today as a member of the Patuxent unit of the United States Shipping Board's emergency fleet.

Fifteen years ago it was another story. So recalled this week six Government officials, now stationed in or near Washington, who shared the ship's big day, September 5, 1918, 250 miles off the French coast.

Four of them, the details of the event stamped indelibly on their minds, were interviewed in the Senate Office Building. There were Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, and his secretary, Wallace Streeter, who were returning on the Mount Vernon from conferences with allies chiefs on behalf of President Wilson, and there were the blind senator from Minnesota, Thomas O. Schall, then a representative, and his wife, returning from a war-zone investigation for the House Naval Affairs Committee.

The vessel's war-time executive officer, Capt. Adolphus Staton, now on duty at the Navy Department, and her senior engineer, Lieut. Comdr. Fred C. Bailey, now happily stationed in charge of his old ship, and the three others in the Patuxent, were also visited at their respective posts and readily recounted their own and their shipmates' actions and reactions on that fateful morning.

Floating Home and Office.

Commander Bailey is a genial host to the lucky "land lubber" who drives 60 miles from Washington, credentialed with Shipping Board passes, to the lonely little fleet that is his home and office. Just off the main road, through a cornfield, one finds a rickety wharf, marked "U. S. Government Property," where the visitor sights this strange fleet, moored several hundred yards off shore.

A silent, motionless mass of hulls, decks and smokestacks, it suggests more a painted scene than a quartet of real ships that can throb and smoke and move. A few strokes on an old dinner gong bring to the deck of the Monticello, the nearest vessel, the figure of a man, who hurries down her outside ladder and quickly rows a small boat to ferry back the visitor.

The short crossing covered and the long ladder climbed, one is greeted by the tall, silver-haired Vermonter, Commander Bailey, retired from the Naval Reserve force, but guarding nowadays these four veterans of the famous "Kaiser's Fleet," those 20 interned German liners which eventually carried half a million of our troops to France.

There are, first on the land side, the Monticello, formerly the Agamemnon and originally the Kaiser Wilhelm II. Here Commander Bailey and five resident members of his skeleton crew live and have their office. Beyond her, across a short bridge, is the Mount Vernon, named by her German owners the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, and beyond her, bearing their original names, the America and the George Washington, famous peace ship that carried President Wilson to the Versailles conference.

Machinery Wrecked by Foe.

Shirt-winded walers will be panting before 6-foot Commander Bailey has conducted them around half his series of decks or up and down the many steps that lead to staterooms, dining saloons and decks, some still marked "Promenadendeck." Some of them have a musty odor, not unpleasant to one who likes exploring into forgotten places. Footsteps echo up and down clean-swept alleys, around ballrooms lighted by ornate domes, and kitchens and staterooms, stripped of furnishings. Once they were occupied by famous world travelers and later by soldiers and sailors; now, occasionally, by an impudent water moccasin or squirrel that climbs up the anchor chain or over a mooring cable.

But it is only down in the big engine room of the Mount Vernon that Commander Bailey can be pinned down to reminiscing on that memorable morning of September 5, 1918. Even then he prefers to talk about those great black boilers he has known and worked with since June, 1917, when the Navy first acquired this ship and assigned him to help restore her machinery, wrecked by interned Germans.

His heroism on that day he smiled away when his interviewers pressed the subject. He led the conversation to an engineer crony, the ship's habitual coffee drinker, who complained to Bailey a few hours after the blow that the Huns nearly knocked his teeth out. He was putting his favorite cup to his lips at the moment of the hit.

Finally, however, between gasps and laughs, the picture was pieced together. He had just come up on deck from his night watch, at eight minutes before 8 in the morning. Standing in an alleyway near the "Kaiser's Suite," he was enjoying a glimpse of clear seas and skies when the crash came.

Through the commander's startled mind came the thought of an Army major, a home-bound passenger, who had called on him down by the engines the night before and introduced himself as the new husband of a home-town friend. "Well," Bailey told himself, as the heaving of the ship all but knocked him down, "the major won't be seeing Beth as soon as he thought he would!"

The next instant found the senior engineer running, not to a hope of safety out by the lifeboats, but down, down those endless steps that led to a darkened, roaring inferno. To keep her moving faster than the German submarine could travel underneath was the thought this calm man remembers today, the one that sped him down those steps to what must have seemed all but certain death.

His keen blue eyes twinkled one minute and steadily regarded his visitor the next.

"No—I had no thought of leaving," he replied. "You see, I was the last man of all who had a right to leave the engine. At the exact moment of the crash there happened to be no officer down there, but those boys there were surely stickers! There was a watertender, burned to within an inch of his life, who turned back from escape by a ladder to answer the phone and tell them above what had happened around him. A rush of sea water swept him into a ventilator. He was pulled out unconscious, and the next day, plastered in bandages and unable to move, he articulated an apology to an officer: 'I heard you ring, sir, but I couldn't get to the phone.'

"And there were those boys who never left that hell of flying coal and steam and water, so we never stopped moving a minute till we got back to Brest 18 hours later. With 7,000 tons of water suddenly pushed in, half our boilers knocked out, we steamed on first at 5 knots, and then got up to 15, more than three-fifths of our normal pace. I've learned since the U-boat came up later, saw us pushing along and went back to Germany, reporting we were traveling too fast for her to follow."

Heroism on All Sides.

"Commander Bailey's heroism," declared Capt. Staton at his Navy Department desk, "was one of the major ones that saved us. Everything depended on speeding out of the sub's reach and on the depth-bomb boys making their fast attack on the enemy."

This genial North Carolinian described with much enthusiasm the courage of the Naval Reserve men who comprised the Mount Vernon's crew, with the exception of himself, the captain, D. E. Dismukes, and two other officers. "They were the finest bunch of stickers I ever met," he said. "And the way we got the best of that 'kaiser's pickle' was the greatest example I've ever seen of proper preparedness and good teamwork. And Capt. Dismukes! I've never sailed under a bigger-hearted, finer man. The entire crew of us would have gone to hell for him! He's a retired admiral now, living in Philadelphia."

"I remember what I saw, rather than any particular thoughts," he went on. "I can see it now like it had just happened. I was standing on the bridge. Our starboard gun fired once at a disappearing periscope. Then I saw a torpedo head under a boat of ours hanging at its davits, and next the water splashing up the ship's side at sound of the blow. I remember my surprise that we didn't list more.

"The captain had been up all night, and had turned in. He was coming up the bridge ladder in his pajamas when the hit came. Men at the after guns and depth-charge stations were thrown to the decks and a 5-inch gun partially dismounted. The depth bombers sure worked fast. Within one minute and ten seconds after the hit they'd dropped five bombs in succession. The sub never came up."

Preparedness Steps Aided.

Capt. Staton, himself, had already played a key part in the preparedness of the Mount Vernon for her ordeal. On his previous trip home he had gleaned from 30 newly joined deck hands, survivors themselves of a torpedoing that had sunk their ship, some invaluable ideas. On a two weeks' layover in Boston he had made changes and additions to the Mount Vernon in accordance with these men's suggestions. The electric lights were placed on several currents instead of one, a bulkhead was built and two tiers of unused air holes deglazed and blanked with steel.

"Each of these changes helped save the day," he smiled, "specially those blanked-in airholes. We sank to a level just above the top one!"

Mrs. Schall was the only woman on board. Her husband, blinded at 30, then serving his second term in Congress, had been commissioned by the House Naval Affairs Committee to go abroad on an investigation with his secretary. When the Navy Department discovered the secretary was a woman there rose a cry of objections, but these were eventually overcome.

When the crippled Mount Vernon was

John A. Madigan.

AL JOY
YOU KNOW ME!

OUT at Griffith Stadium the other day, two old ball players stepped up to the wicker and bought tickets for the world series. Both these men had played professional baseball in Washington when Washington was just becoming baseball conscious.

William E. Wise—Bill to the old gang—pitched on the first Nationals. Aloysius Joy—You Know Me, Al—was first baseman on the Nationals when the ball park was located at Sixteenth and S streets northwest—on the block bounded by Sixteenth and Seventeenth, R and S.

Just across Sixteenth street, up the way a bit, was another ball park where the Olympics held forth. That park graced the block bounded by Fifteenth and Sixteenth, S and T streets.

Many years have gone over the calendar since these two ball players ran around the bases. In the intervening years, Washington baseball parks spotted the city at various places. They were many and they were loosely scattered over he terrain.

As Bill Wise remembers, there were ball parks at Sixteenth and U streets northwest; at Fifteenth and Florida avenue; at New Jersey avenue and C street southeast, where the New House Office Building now stands; at North Capitol and G streets, site of the present City Postoffice, and the old Eagles Park, on H street northeast, just west of Benning Bridge.

Famous Moxley Park.

There was a ball park at Ninth and S streets northwest, the block bounded by Ninth and Tenth, S and T, a forerunner of the present location. This was the famous old Moxley Park, the field that harbored the Washington baseball team when the team played as a member of the American Association.

Out there rooting for the home team, Bill Wise and Al Joy will naturally recall the old diamonds on which they cavorted and contrast them with the magnificent plant now owned by the Washington club and the scene this week of a world's series.

Though the fingers of time have etched their faces, Bill Wise and Al Joy are still full of pep and still concerned with baseball. Modesty forbids them talking about their prowess on the diamond, but the old-time fans recall their fast-moving feet and keen batting eyes. They played on the first professional baseball teams Washington boasted.

Some of the lots these fellows ran around on are now the most valuable real estate in Washington; virtually in the heart of the city. They were then almost out on the outskirts.

Half a century has gone since Washington first became what may be called a "big league town," though baseball had taken on here before there was either a National or an American League.

According to some of the oldsters, Washington was always baseball mad. It accounts for the numerous baseball parks that dotted the city in the good old days. Baseball parks then were as numerous as beer gardens in a later period.

On the first real team that flew the colors here, the battery was Gilmore and Mack, Connie Mack on the receiving end.

Madigan, Veteran Fan.

Now that a world's championship is considering landing in Washington, the oldtimers are scratching their heads trying to recall the good old days of baseball.

John A. Madigan, sitting on the front porch of his home over on North Capitol street, is possibly Washington's most enthusiastic veteran fan. He was playing baseball here, as a boy, 60 years ago, and he recalls the outstanding teams.

The first two teams to lift Washington above the average were the Nationals and the Olympics. This was away back in the early eighties and the late seventies. The Nationals and the Olympics were originally what might be called semi-pro teams, although later they became fully professional.

At first, there were no leagues, as the Nation knows them now, but these teams traveled about the Eastern part of the country, playing all comers.

Incidentally, Mr. Madigan recalls that the present-day Nats derive their name from the old Nationals. He says:

"The Nationals may be called the Senators or the Griffmen or the Washingtons, or what have you—but they are really the Nationals, and they get their name from the first team Washington had by that name—a team organized here when Washington was little more than a village."

Long before the Nationals were playing in the ball park at Sixteenth and S streets northwest, there was a baseball park out Fifteenth street way. As Mr. Madigan says, "There was a ball park away out Fifteenth street on the outskirts of the city, at Florida avenue. The horse cars ran out there."

Astorias Amateur Stars.

At the time of the Nationals and the Olympics, the great amateur team of the city was the Astorias—and young Madigan was a member of that team. The Astorias played the Nationals once. As Mr. Madigan recalls it, that was a tough game. Naturally, the big timers won. They should have, of course, as they were the first professionals, or near-professionals, in the game. Some of them worked in the Government departments, but all of them had baseball as their main vocation in life.

The late William Landvoight, a well-known dramatic critic who died a year or so ago, was manager of the Astorias—and he had as one of his stars, besides Madigan, Freddie Houck, who later went with the Boston Red Sox.

The Olympics never took on the amateurs. The Olympics were the boys who regaled the crowds that assembled at the ball park on Sixteenth street, across from the National's park.

Another park in those days—at Benning road, beyond Fifteenth street northeast—became popular. That park eventually became the park of the Astorias, who gave stellar exhibitions there for one full season.

Down where the new postoffice now stands, where Postmaster Bill Mooney sits in his luxurious office, was the downtown ball park—on the corner of North Capitol and G streets.

Where Bill Mooney sits now was just about the location of the old home plate—and many a hot curve went over that pan.

To show how baseball fastened its tendrons in the hearts of the old-time fans, and what they thought of any souvenir attached to the game, just the other day Mr. Madigan sent Clark Griffith, manager of the Washington club, two old-time rain-checks. They were rain-checks issued for games played away back in 1892 and 1893.

Comparatively, of course, those were modern games—and modern days, for by that time, in the gay nineties, Washington had graduated from the sandlots, had abandoned its first makeshift ball parks and was stretching toward its present-day majesty in big league circles.

Jim Springmann and the old gang recall that Washington was first in the National League; not first in the pennant race in the National League, but that it had joined the National League before going into the American League. As the saying used to be, before Bucky Harris and his teammates gave Washington its first pennant, Washington was "First in war, first in peace, and last in the American League."

Those days, however, are gone forever.

Washington is now first in the American League—and the chances are considered good that it will lead both leagues—which is one reason why so much interest is attached to early baseball days in the old town.

When the two young fellows who are going out to see Washington try to win a world pennant—Bill Wise and Al Joy—get settled in their seats, they will behold a ball park far different from those on which they played in the long, long years ago.

Glorified Sandlots.

In those days, while the game was popular, it was just about getting into long pants. Washington had yet to attain the dignity of a baseball park where 40,000 people might be accommodated.

The ball parks in those days were satisfactory for the times, but they were just glorified sandlots with fences around them, with grandstands and bleachers—though the term bleachers had not been invented.

Also, the price of admission was much lower than it is today, running from the modest "slim dime" to the dignified 75-cent seats—and when the gentry paid 75 cents to see a ball game they expected, and usually demanded, their money's worth.

Ball players were hitting them high, wide and handsome in the old days. The scores alone were sometimes worth the price of admission. There was one game recorded where the Nationals of the eighties beat their opponents 78 to 54.

After the original Nationals left their park at Sixteenth and S streets, the Olympics entertained cash customers in their ball park up the street. A rival park sprang up at Ninth and S streets. This gave a pointing finger to where the ball park in the Nation's Capital eventually would be established.

However, it was many years before Washington was ready to enter the National League—and the boys and girls of the town, along with the grown men and women, saw most of their baseball games in the bevy of ball parks that were scattered all over town.

Popular Stand-Pipe Park.

Though few can remember it, there was a baseball diamond a long time ago at Stand-Pipe Park—a name derived from the fact that the water works had an old stand-pipe adorning the scenery. There was also a ball park back of the White House in 1905.

Few persons in town can recall Stand-Pipe Park. Yet it was one of the most popular ball parks in the city, according to Mr. Madigan, who saw many ball games there. He recalls seeing a game of ball at Stand-Pipe Park as long ago as 65 years, when he was a lad. On November 18, Mr. Madigan will celebrate his seventy-sixth birthday. At 70 he was retired from the Government service. In all the years he was in the Government he never lost interest in baseball—and he boasts of the fact that he has seen every baseball park in Washington, from the beginning to the present, and most of the games.

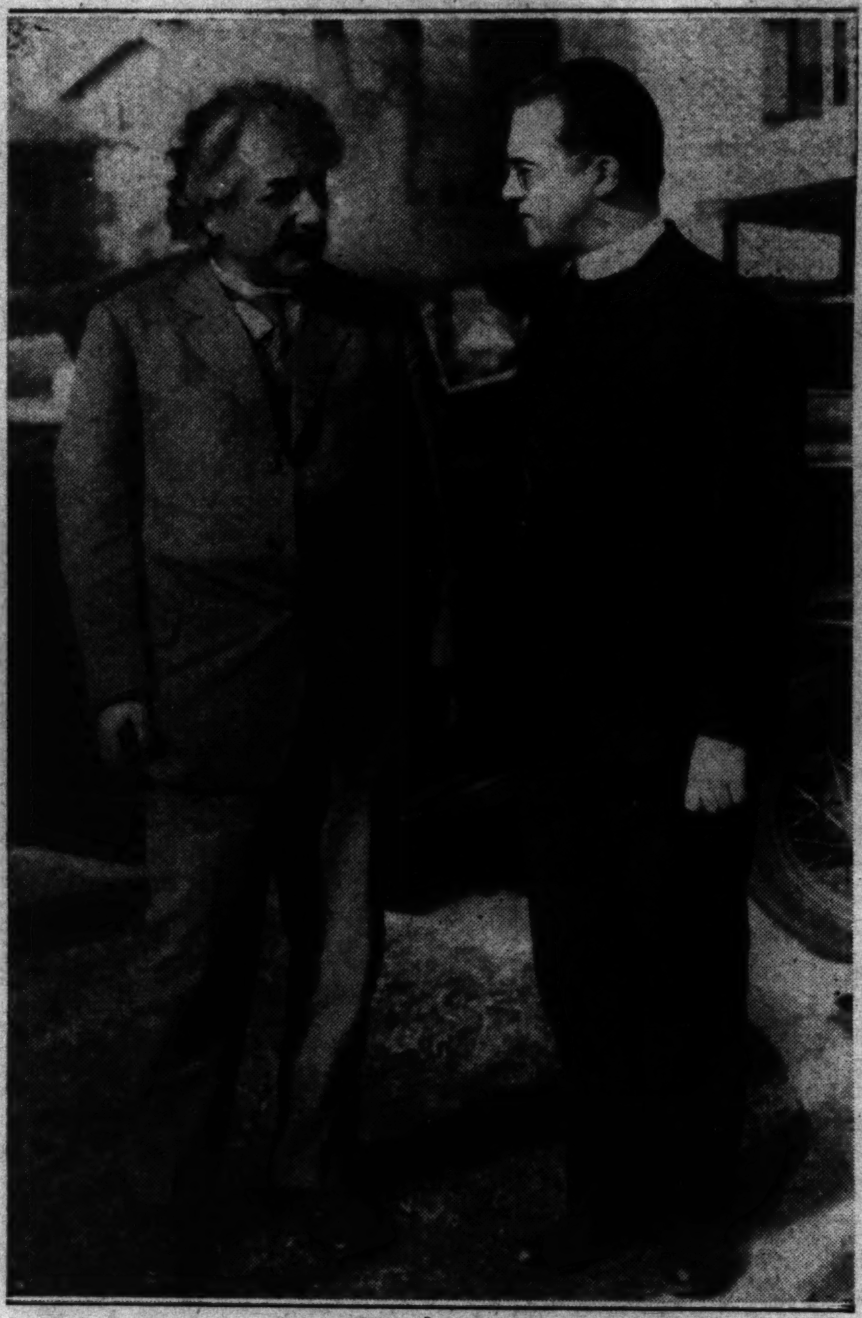
Washington's history in the big leagues is another story, though the leagues determined the final location of the baseball park.

After a few years in the National League, Washington had all sorts of experience; first in one league and then in another, until it finally settled in the American League. It was, at times, in the Eastern League and the Union League. When, finally, it landed permanently in the American League it occupied cellar position for many years.

Now, all that has gone, along with the old baseball parks of Washington.

Exponent of Expanding Universe Will Teach Here

Abbe Lemaitre, Louvain Astro-Physicist, Coming to Catholic University.



Prof. Einstein chats informally with Abbe Lemaitre.

SINCE man first lifted his eyes to behold the sun and moon and the stars, he has wondered what it was all about.

Aristotle and Ptolemy first set out to tell him. Then came Galileo to revise the original estimates. Then Newton with the law of gravity. Until finally Einstein startled the world with the law of relativity, a quarter of a century ago.

Within the last two years another scientist has appeared with an entirely new conception of this universe.

He is the Abbe Georges Lemaitre, professor of astro-physics at the University of Louvain, and of his theory, called "The Expanding Universe," Einstein has said: "This is the most beautiful and satisfactory explanation of creation to which I have ever listened."

Distinguished Students.

This month the Abbe Lemaitre is coming to the Catholic University, in Brookland, to expound his theory for the advanced students of physics and mathematics.

Already, the Registrar of the University, C. F. Borden, is booking students—some of them eminent mathematicians from other universities, some of them world-famed scientists.

For a quarter of a century Mr. Borden has been registering students at the university, young men anxious to acquire an academic education, with a little baseball or football and with no time whatsoever for the profundities of astronomy.

Now, the registrar finds himself deluged with applications from gray-beards and doctors of science who want to hear the 39-year-old Belgian priest, ordained by Cardinal Mercier.

World Once a Bubble.

After all the centuries of the world, the young cleric-scientist has at last put a finger on what is declared plausible possibility—that the universe began like soap bubbles.

From Abbe Lemaitre comes this simple definition:

"Our intuition can tell us nothing. We can not go outside space and look at it. Space is finite in volume. It is spherical but unbound. It is ever increasing with the expansion of the universe. The farthest object that you can see in front of you is the back of your head. Therefore; the back of your head is in front of your nose."

All right, start there, take the Lemaitre theory and find out how the world got this way:

It began as an atom—a primordial atom of perhaps huge dimensions. It exploded, blew up, expanded like a soap bubble—and it is still expanding, as recent observations on Mount Wilson prove.

Einstein May Listen.

This is what the students are coming to hear, to sit through a semester at Catholic University, where the priest-scientist hopes to prove to them that there is of necessity no conflict between science and religion. It may be, too, that even Einstein will come along to take part in the studies. These two men have come to have a profound admiration for each other.

Lemaitre believes if the church and laboratory got closer together there would be no conflict whatsoever.

"Where is this conflict?" he asks, then explains it away:

"We have this wonderful and exciting universe—the stars, the sun, the moon and all the other planets. When we try to learn more about it, how it began, where it is going, what are we doing? Seeking the truth!"

Theologians and scientists, therefore, are after the same end—truth.

Holds Joke on Scientists.

The joke, though, is on the scientists, the abbe says, calling them a literal-minded lot. He says:

"They actually believe the Bible pretends to teach science. When they find the Bible's scientific references wrong, as they often are, the Book is repudiated. On the same basis of reasoning, a priest should reject relativity because it does not expound the doctrine of the Trinity."

In other words, the Bible is not a textbook of science. However, the Bible says the world was created in six days.

The abbe, a priest, says it took about ten thousand million years to create the universe as it now exists—and he believes in the Bible.

St. Paul or Moses would have received the doctrine of relativity before Einstein had that been necessary for human salvation. That is the way the Abbe Lemaitre looks at it as he goes his way explaining the doctrine of the expanding universe and backing up his explanation with mathematical proof.

End of Space Beyond Man.

No telescope will ever be invented enabling man to peer into the end of space. No airship ever will ascend to such heights where the nebulae can be found racing away from our earth at the explosive speed of 12,000 miles a second.

Yet scientists, following Lemaitre, have seen enough to convince them this young man is right in the assumption that the universe is expanding—much like a soap bubble blown up by a boy on a doorstep.

Stars are fading out. Moons have gone beyond the ken of human eye. Old Halley's comet swings in a mad pace around the outer edges of the universe and comes back every 75 years, so that its fiery trail leaves a smudge across the sky—to be seen only by every other generation or so.

All those stars, comets, planets, moons and the sun originated in a great single primeval super atom—according to the theory of Abbe Lamaitre. Actually, he believes that first atom exploded. Out of that explosion came the vast fragments—all whirled into motion by radio activity. There is some of it left, as seen in radium; but a lot of it has left some of the older deposits, like helium and the like—and lead, dull and drab.

Explosion Slow Process.

Understood as an astronomical term, that first explosion was not so spontaneous as the explosions the average man imagines. Say, for instance, if a gun-powder factory blew up, or even the bursting of a soap bubble.

The explosion of the atom that set into motion our earth and a lot of other planets in the universe was very slow. It extended in period of time through eons and eons.

As a matter of mathematical precision, the original explosion is still going on in this universe. If it is not, the Abbe's theory of the expanding universe is all wrong—and those scientists who followed him last year in his work at the California Institute of Techonology are all wrong; and so, too, Einstein.

The best minds, however, believe the theory is correct and that it accounts absolutely for the natural beginning of time and space. There is only one thing missing from the equation. That is the origin of the original atom. Where did that come from? Some day, probably, some scientist will come along and answer that question.

Until that time, the world must be content with the theory of the Abbe Lemaitre.

New World Opened.

It is a theory that is so expansive the mind of ordinary man can hardly comprehend it. It opens up a new world, a sphere hitherto unknown, with continents and islands and great oceans on which no ship has ever sailed—and the trouble of getting a close-up of it is this: It can not very well be viewed from the inside, where men live. Only the gods and the men of super-science may step up to the heights of imagination and look down on the whole universe, and watch it expanding.

This the Abbe Lemaitre has done and is doing, with Einstein and DeSitter—rated as the greatest triumvirate in the scientific world.

Hitherto, as Arthur Machen wrote, "men have been playing with pebbles and mistaking them for the foundations of the world."

After Lemaitre astounded the scientific world with his discovery, it became known that the universe is expanding at such a rate that it doubles its radius every 1,400,000,000 years—a mathematical certainty.

Science's Progress Rapid.

In this relation, it hasn't been so long ago that Aristotle's system seemed praiseworthy, or that Galileo was right when he believed the earth was the center of the universe. That was back in 1610 when he turned his telescope on Jupiter and discovered four moons—something much like the solar system, first promulgated by Copernicus in 1543—long years before.

A lot of water has gone over the dam since then, even since Johann Kepler first proved that the orbits of the planets are ellipses and not circles.

Then came Einstein, only 25 years ago, to upset a lot of theories—until now comes the theory of the expanding universe, a universe still in the process of being blown up as if it were a balloon.

It was at the 1931 meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science that the Abbe Lemaitre first advanced his theory to account for the beginning of this expanding universe. He dealt there with the cosmic ray and a few other mysteries, accepting the expanding universe as an astronomical fact. Later, at Mount Wilson, his theory was proved when scientists found the outermost nebulae rushing away at the explosive speed of 12,000 miles a second.

Abbe Gives Modest History.

These are the thoughts that will occupy the advanced students of science when they take their place in the lecture hall at Catholic University this fall at the feet of the master.

In a simple note to Msgr. James H. Ryan, rector of the Catholic University, the distinguished visiting professor sketched his career:

"I was born at Charlery, Belgium, July 17, 1894.

"I was ordained as a secular priest by the late Cardinal Mercier, September, 1922.

"I am a doctor of Louvain and a Ph. D. of M. I. T. (Massachusetts Institute of Technology), 1924-25.

"I teach astronomy and the theory of relativity and some minor subjects.

"I proposed in October, 1931, a theory of the cosmic rays and a general theory of cosmogony fitting with the results coming from the theory of the expanding universe that the age of the world is much shorter than it was thought, so that older theories are made untenable.

"Einstein has publicly expressed the opinion that this theory is the best explanation of the cosmic rays."

Capital Pipe Carver Tells Secrets of Craft

Forty years of carving fine pipes by hand, has taught Benjamin Bertram, son of Simon, and father of Sidney, Leipsic craftsmen who now pursue their art in Washington, much of the arcana of good briars and meerschaums.

"The best pipes are straight-grain, virgin briars," says the younger Bertram. "They give the coolest smoke."

"Dip your finger in wine, and run it around inside the bowl of your new pipe," continued Benjamin, "or bruise a slice of apple and do the same. Fill your bowl only three-quarters full, at first, and draw always deeply and slowly. Never overheat your pipe, by rapid puffing or by reloading it while it is hot. Most important—keep it clean, always. If you allow it to carbon, or "cake," it will crack more easily, because the wood cannot breathe properly. That's the formula for keeping a good pipe good, and sweet."

He explained that there is a secret process they employ, handed down from generation to generation, to remove the dust-particles from the raw Algerian briar they import for their work. It is intended to make the wood lighter, more porous, so it can "breathe" well.

But with the most pride were shown the marvelously carved meerschaums which are the "museum pieces" of this tiny shop in Fourteenth street northwest. One, especially, found a quarter of a century ago in the cornerstone of a building being dismantled in Ellicott City, Md., permits of rare speculation as to its one-time owner. The dim scratchings on its bowl reveal a "G," a barely visible "e" and "o"; then there is an awkward, crazy "W." Father and son speak of eighteenth century date that could be made out before they began the process of restoration.

Stirring Saga of Doughboy Shows Infantry Stil

Maj. Gen. Croft Tells Why Machines Will Never Displace Foot Soldiers.

By Maj. Gen. Edward Croft,
Chief of Infantry, United States Army.

THE thought expressed many years ago by Oliver Wendell Holmes, that the book for the soldier is the song book, recalls an old, old English ballad, the chorus of which goes as follows:

"For I should like to be a soldier,
But I don't like to go to war,
I'd like to wear a saber,
But dislike the cannon's roar.
How I should like to ride a charger!
Wear a suit all trimmed with gold
So the folks would say, as I ride away,
There's a soldier brave and bold."

The man in the aforesaid song was not singing about infantry nor sighing to be in the infantry, as will become clear when you read this article on the doughboy, the soldier who fights on foot.

There are several versions concerning the derivation of the expression "doughboy" as meaning "infantryman." The best one for our purpose is the one which cherishes the thought that infantrymen are called doughboys because they are always kneaded. (needed).

Since the dawn of man the infantry always has been needed. The backbone of all armies ever has been the infantry. The earliest warrior was, no doubt, an infantryman.

Prehistoric men, after having long lived in the tree tops, where they were very lonely and subject to much brooding, finally decided to leave their "tree sitting" and began to associate with other men on the ground. And soon the fighting began. The story is told that two of these hairy brutes used to meet on a narrow trail in the forest. Perhaps at one end of the trail there was a banana tree and at the other a fig tree, and one may have been going after food for his children and the other after wearing apparel for his wife. However that may be, whenever these men met they would knock each other over the head with big hickory clubs. After they had knocked each other down and out several times and had knocked a little sense in each other's heads they decided to call a truce. These two men were early infantrymen.

Victory to Strongest.

First families, then tribes, organized themselves into communities and the heads of such groups became the earliest military leaders. Armed with the club, the spear, and later the sword and the bow and arrow, this primeval infantry sought by superior leadership, personal prowess and skill to close upon the enemy and crush him in hand-to-hand conflict. Victory came to the force which could throw against its adversary the greatest number of men trained to personal combat and capable of acting in close cooperation with their comrades.

History's pages are full of examples of battles won or lost because the infantry either did or did not possess those qualities which the good foot soldier must possess. Discipline there must be. This goes without saying. Fortitude and courage Washington placed foremost as qualities a good soldier must possess, and he had the doughboy in mind especially, for Washington had little else than infantry throughout the long struggle for independence.

It has been qualities such as those mentioned that have always been difficult to attain and there have been many attempts to find substitutes, but such substitutes have never worked very well. For example, in the Thirty Years' War, fought in the first half of the seventeenth century, one of the important leaders was Gen. Wallenstein.

Wallenstein's army comprised a heterogeneous assembly of poorly disciplined soldiers, who must also have lacked courage, for in one of the regulations this general published we read: "The private must have three quarts of beer daily; the corporal double the amount and at the same rate of advance to the higher posts." (The reader may figure out for himself what a captain's beer allowance was, and as for a general——.

History, however, does not say that the substitution of Dutch courage (beer) for real courage was very successful.

Modern infantry not only requires the qualities mentioned above but, in view of the destructive effect of modern firearms, the wide dispersion of men and the great necessity for maintaining cohesion, infantry today requires training of a higher degree than ever before.

Newton D. Baker, as a result of his experience as our Secretary of War during the World War, said:

"It is the occupation of the enemy's territory with infantry under conditions which will allow it to maintain itself there, which will impose the Nation's will upon the Nation's adversary."

No doubt this same thought was in the mind of the distinguished officer who was making a speech on the subject of the infantry. He had consumed virtually all his time with dissertations on the artillery, the cavalry, the engineers and the other arms of the service when some one reminded him of the topic of his lecture.

He replied, "Ah! the infantry. When the infantry is defeated the war is over. Gentlemen, I thank you."

An old sergeant who had served under Gen. Pershing years before the World War recently renewed his acquaintance with the general by replying to the general's greetings:

“Well, general, much wind has been blown through the trumpet since I served with the general in the Philippines.”

Much wind has been blown through the trumpet since the days when the infantry was armed with the pike, the battle-ax or the bow and arrow; when those supporting the infantry had the catapult, the elephant or the chariot. In place of these we find today the 11-armed doughboy and in support of him we have all the other branches which, as the Army Training Regulations state, “are organized, equipped and trained to assist the infantry in its needs.”

The modern foot soldier has to do a lot of learning to fit himself for his job and the infantry is no place for the parade soldier mentioned in the beginning of this article. In time of peace the infantryman finds himself serving (to quote the title of a well-known hymn) “from Greenland's Icy Mountains (Alaska) to India's Coral Strand” (Philippines, Hawaii, Panama, Puerto Rico). Within the continental limits of the United States wherever things go wrong, you find the doughboy.

When San Francisco was destroyed by an earthquake, when the Father of Waters flooded Arkansas and Mississippi and when the hurricane hit Puerto Rico, there you found Johnny-on-the-spot, the infantry; not bent on the destruction of an enemy, as is necessarily the case in time of war, but on missions of helpfulness to our distressed citizenry. It is safe to say that at least every second military man you meet in the CCC camps is a foot soldier.

To think of the infantry only in terms of war would be a serious mistake. We all look for the day when war will fade from the picture, but even then we shall still need good soldiers, good doughboys, ever ready for disasters with which we will always be confronted in this imperfect world of ours.

Because of “the cares which infest the day,” we are likely to forget the soldiers, in piping times of peace, just as we often cast aside our God when everything is going nicely.

“God and His soldiers all people adore,
In time of war and not before,
And when war is over and all things righted,
God is neglected and the soldier is slighted.”

It must be submitted that in the light of modern experience this old soldier-rhymster understood the frailty of human nature.

At the head of the infantry is the chief of infantry. He, with his assistants, is stationed in Washington, where he occupies the position of adviser to the chief of staff in all matters concerning the organization, training, equipping and general welfare of the infantry branch of the Army.

Directly under the chief of infantry is the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga., where courses are conducted for officers and noncommissioned officers of the Regular Army, the National Guard and the Organized Reserves. Here are taught the use of the various infantry weapons, the tactics infantry must pursue if it is to withstand modern warfare, and all the other things needed to make a good foot soldier. At Fort Benning, too, are located the Infantry Board and the Department of Experiment which concern themselves continually with the improvement of arms and equipment, and many other matters of importance to the infantry.

Man Surpasses Machine.

To tell of all the things for which the infantry must prepare to meet its gigantic task in case of armed conflict, to enumerate and describe all the infantry's peace time activities would require indeed a large volume. We must content ourselves with leaving one final impression of the infantry—“the Queen of Battles,” as its admirers say—and this can perhaps best be done by quoting the remarks of Gen. Hugh A. Drum, chief of staff of the First American Army in France and now deputy chief of staff in Washington:

“In times of peace we must not be blinded as we have been in the past, to the sacrifices of the American doughboy. He was, and always will be, the decisive element in warfare. The prance of horses, the flurries of trumpets, the booms of cannon and the whirl of air propellors can not replace the dogged determination, aggressiveness, the ‘will to win’ and the tenacity to hold, of the American infantryman. The mechanical device can never replace the mental, moral and physical qualities of man.”

Our Peace-Time Army.

Fifteen years after the close of the World War a new American Army is ready to defend the Nation in case of emergency.

Outstanding service of the American Army today is its participation in peace-time life. When 300,000 young men are sent to the forests to rebuild their morale, as well as the timbered areas, we find the American Army officer directing the activities.

As we develop our inland waterways we find Army engineers carrying on the work. When floods sweep the lowlands we find the Army in relief role.

The Post asked the chief of the largest branch of the service to write a special article on its peace-time work. In this article Maj. Gen. Edward Croft, Chief of Infantry, tells the story in a light and readable style. Other articles by chiefs of the other branches of the service will follow.

Gen. Croft's Career Covers Wide Field

Maj. Gen. Edward Croft, chief of Infantry, author of the foregoing article, writes from the broad background of a lifetime spent in the Nation's defense. He was wounded in the Philippines, where he battled rebellious natives in malara-infested jungles; he fought in France, and for gallantry was awarded the silver star citation.

Born in Greenville, S. C., in 1875, Gen. Croft obtained a taste of military life while attending the South Carolina Military Academy and found it to his liking. Commissioned as a second lieutenant of the Nineteenth Infantry in 1898, the various grades afterward were but natural stepping stones.

Through the Puerto Rican strife he served, then through the Philippine Insurrection, being wounded at Labangon, Barrio of San Nicholas, in 1901, receiving a citation for courage in action.

Thereafter he was aid de camp to Maj. Gen. R. P. Hughes, was graduated from the Infantry and Cavalry School at Fort Leavenworth and finally returned to the Philippines in 1905 for duty with his old regiment.

Afterward there were periods of service at Fort McIntosh, Tex., more service in the Philippines, at Fort Sheridan, Ill., at Boston, where he aided in recruiting, at San Benito, Tex., with the Twenty-sixth Infantry, where he became inspector-instructor of National Guard units.

Becoming a major in 1917, he was sent with the Twenty-sixth to France, returning a lieutenant colonel. Later he was at Camp Devens, Mass., in charge of the Seventy-sixth Division training schools, at Camp MacArthur, Tex., as a colonel, at Camp Sherman, Ohio, in command of the 380th Infantry, at Camp Custer, Mich., and Camp Meade, Md., as executive officer.

Being graduated in 1921 from the General Staff School at Fort Leavenworth, he became an instructor in the General Service Schools, again was graduated from the War College here and became commandant at Fort Hamilton, N. Y. Later he was at Fort Jay, N. Y., as commander.

In 1929 he was detailed on the general staff, where he became chief of the Training Branch, office of the assistant chief of staff, remaining in that position until 1932 when he was ordered to Fort Thomas, Ky.

He became chief of Infantry with rank of major general on May 5, 1933, for a term of four years.

News and Reviews From Great World of Books

Publishing House Gossip and Talk of Authors.

WITH critics and readers alike praising "Anthony Adverse" and "The Autobiography of Alice B. Toklas," the fall book season is off to an excellent start. The public may look forward to fine fare within the next few weeks.

"The Brown Book of the Hitler Terror," just published in England and soon to be brought out by Knopf promises to arouse discussion with its published statements of conservative German leaders who were close to the Nazis at the time of the fire, all of whom are now dead.

In lighter vein and an always welcome contribution is the irrepressible Margaret Fishback's latest collection of verse. "Out of My Head" bespeaks Miss Fishback's opinions of the metropolis in enchantingly insulting lines. Ogden Nash this month will present those who enjoy these slim volumes of light verse with another outburst, "Happy Days."

On October 25, Whittlesey House will celebrate the first birthday of Walter B. Pitkin's "Life Begins at Forty." It is still on the best-seller lists and is one of those rare books that give their readers both pleasure and profit.

Alice Tisdale Hobart, whom Washingtonians know so well, will have her fifth book, just published by Dutton's. "Oil for the Lamps of China" is a novel written out of her experience of 16 years in China. Ever since her "Leaves from a Manchurian Notebook" was hailed by the Atlantic Monthly as a discovery, her reputation has been quietly growing. This newest book presents a dramatic interplay of Eastern and Western minds brought together in the Orient.

More Jalna History.

"THE MASTER OF JALNA," by Mazo de la Roche. (Little, Brown & Co., Boston.)

A good many readers of books will be glad to know that Maze de la Roche is back at Jalna, where, they have believed, she has belonged all the time.

Family sagas are quite the thing even yet, and Jalna is certainly among the first examples thereof this side of the Atlantic. The imperious, indomitable Whiteoaks have the authenticity of the Forsytes, along with more vigor and vividness; meeting them again is one of the summer's most pleasant literary adventures.

This story unfolds in the present, but a present linked with the past of old Adeline by the quaint uncles, Ernest and Nicholas, and by Augusta. This time it is Renny who has the center of the stage; Renny, and, of course, Jalna itself. It is a question which moves the reader most—Miss de la Roche's able statement of the influence of the place itself, or Renny's impassioned defense thereof.

For hard times have come to Jalna, times that fit in rather illy with the tradition of self-sufficiency, openhandedness and freedom that has come down from the days of old Adeline. The book is a study of Renny's fight in defense of the tradition against economic laws that (fortunately) are never expounded by Miss de la Roche in the dry style of some latter-day writers.

It is a study also of the astonishingly complicated interplay of family affection—the web of likes and dislikes and prejudices and whatnot that accumulates under so old a roof as Jalna's, even in such a comparatively new land as Canada. Few writers have so great a gift for making that sort of thing credible. The merely technical obstacles inherent in the task are certainly staggering.

This is the fourth Jalna book; it does not require much cleverness to see that a fifth is in the offing and that the peg upon which it is likely to be hung is the love of young Wakefield for Pauline. At least, one hopes so.

An Essay on Poetry and Some Recent Novels

Housman on Poetry.

"THE NAME AND NATURE OF POETRY," by A. E. Housman. 1933. $1. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

This essay by A. E. Housman, delivered as the Leslie Stephen lecture at Cambridge in May of this year, is an important discussion of poetry and its essentials. There are several reasons for this. Mr. Housman is himself a poet, and, after all, a poet is better qualified to speak of the art of verse than those who have merely read it and studied it. As the author of "Shropshire Lad" and "Last Poems" he has written a half dozen lyrics, at the very least, which will have a permanent place in English poetry. He is also one of the foremost Latin scholars of our day and he can bring to the discussion of poetry, what few people now can do, a mind and critical judgment ripened by years of study of classical literature. What he has to say about poetry is important and significant.

It is a matter of regret that Mr. Housman did not expand this lecture into a longer critical essay. Within the limits of a two-hour address he was forced to a brevity which makes the reader wish for more, both in the elaboration of ideas presented and the continuation of suggested topics. What he does is to discuss at some length the poetry of one period of English literature in which he finds the poetry deficient in the qualities of emotion and imagination, which he holds essential. He believes that the transfusing power of poetry and the communication of feeling are the peculiar qualities of poetry—"not to transmit thought but to set up in the reader's sense a vibration corresponding to what was felt by the writer—is the peculiar function of poetry." There is, he warns us, such a thing as sham poetry, but he does not believe that there is necessarily such a thing as the poetic subject. Above all, he does not like "witty" intellectual exercises in verse.

The period in English poetry then which he does not like is late seventeenth and eighteenth century verse, which is commonly called in the schools, Neo-Classical. He proceeds to analyze this poetry, and he finds it "pompous" and "poverty-stricken." He admits the wit and cleverness and dexterity, but he does not believe that these qualities are essential to poetry. It is not by accident, one can be sure, that Mr. Housman has, in a short lecture, gone out of his way to attack the poetry of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Of recent years, there has been a considerable revival of interest in it, and clear indication that many younger poets in England and America were being influenced toward imitaiton of it. Ezra Pound's "Draft of XXX Cantos," recently published in this country, is a striking example of a volume of verse in which intellectual values predominate. This is clearly seen in T. S. Eliot and his school of the younger men. An idosyncratic style, a parade of learning and a cryptic, almost stenographic expression of ideas make poems like "The Waste Land" and "XXX Cantos" difficult to understand without a gloss. It is not at all impossible that the poetry written by some of the younger writers—I refer to the poetry of people of intelligence and not to that poetry which crowds the verse magazines and might be described as the verse of wishful feeling—is in danger of becoming sterile by its rigid exclusion of emotion and free imagination. By his emphasis upon the permanent qualities of poetry—whether he finds them in the Greek Anthology or Catullus or Blake—Mr. Housman has written a timely essay.

Poetry, he remarks, is largely physical, a statement which corroborates Emily Dickinson's saying that she could always recognize authentic poetry by the shiver it gave her. Among other interesting things in the essay, Mr. Housman tells us how most of his poems were written. It was his habit to drink beer with his lunch and go for a walk afterward. The poems came as he walked along, and usually were written down as they stand on his return. If the poem was not complete, he invariably experienced difficulties with it. One stanza he had to rewrite 13 times, and it took a year to do it.

Tomlinson's New Novel.

"THE SNOWS OF HELICON," by H. M. Tomlinson. 1933. $2.50. (Harper & Brothers, publishers, New York.)

When a man steps outside the almanac, what happens to him? For one thing, he gives up all the responsibilities of humdrum existence, bounded by business and social obligation. He goes from the relative safety of conventional life as it is lived by men all over the world into the insecurity of a life without sure definitions. If he is religious he may go the harbor of the church. If he is an idealist, like John Travers, the central figure in H. M. Tomlinson's new novel, "The Snows of Helicon," he will embark on some impossible adventure to satisfy an inner prompting. Travers, like some medieval knight in search of the Grail, goes on a quest to rescue a thing of beauty from destruction.

An architect midway in a successful career, Travers suddenly walks out of his old life, leaves his wife waiting in the Liverpool station, and begins the pursuit of a reality which he gropingly knows exists only where beauty is. From a chance remark overheard in a florist's shop, he learns that Lord Sarge, a colossus of international finance, is planning to destroy a temple of Apollo on the Island of Colonna and erect a wireless station on the site. Travers' quest is to preserve this shrine of beauty against the encroachments of a blind industrialism willing to sacrifice anything and everything beautiful for the sake of profits.

H. M. Tomlinson.

Travers is thus a modern Don Quixote, and finds his Sancho Panza in Bert Byles, a Cockney sailor. Bert is the only person who realizes that Travers has not gone mildly insane. He bristles when Mantell, a clever young university man, implies that, "You'd better leave that out. Don't you think it. He knew what he was doing. He always did . . . Me? No, I didn't always see it myself. But what's that to do with it? He knew, all right."

"The Snows of Helicon" is a novel of implications. Action as such is minimized or given by inference. Tomlinson avoids action quite as he avoids doctrinaire preachment and condemnation. Where Sinclair Lewis would have described, in bitter words, Travers' interview with Snarge, Tomlinson shows him stumbling through the jungle of a South American country torn with a revolution Snarge has engineered. Only by inference does one know that the interview has been a failure. Tomlinson has not written a realistic novel, but a novel of subjective experiences. One sees the action through Travers' meditations. This intensification of subjective experience makes a novel such as "The Snows of Helicon" difficult reading for those persons who demand action, first of all, in a book. Don Quixote, tilting against a windmill, gives to the demand of such a reader a satisfying action which exists as an action, even if its implications are not grasped. Like many other novelists of our day, Tomlinson uses external experience to reflect the inner workings of the mind. "The Snows of Helicon" is dangerously near to allegory, and Travers to the type of man fighting for a lost cause, not his own, but the cause of all who see in our machine age the deadly destructive-

Priestley Creates "Hero."

"WONDER HERO," by J. B. Priestley. (Harper & Brothers, New York.)

Not long since, in a novel called "Faraway," J. B. Priestley took the serviceable old treasure plot and did highly amusing tricks with it. It was a tour de force of literary virtuosity, whatever else it might have been.

Now, not to be outdone by himself or another, Mr. Priestley has got through another tour de force, in which he combines an engagingly ironic study of our modern publicity methods with a somewhat more serious consideration of England's economic status and its effect on England's working class.

This last book he calls "Wonder Hero." The "hero" was a young man named Charlie Habble who, by a highly unlikely but brilliantly described series of events was made the hero of all England for something he really did not do at all. It was a circulation stunt on the part of one of the cheaper London papers.

And another of the cheaper London papers was likewise making circulation by exploiting innocent bystanders, this one winner of a beauty contest. Those familiar with Mr. Priestley need be told little more—the possibility for satire, irony and the allied arts is too obvious to need comment. It is realized almost too fully.

But then Mr. Prestley takes Charlie up country again; to a gutted industrial town where everybody was on the dole. And there he puts the boy through an elementary course in economics, illustrations being drawn from among his own relatives and their neighbors. Charlie is awakened, at least partly, returns to London, tries to persuade the paper to tell who actually was the hero—and fails.

There is more. Mr. Priestley did not omit the love interest, but that need not be gone into here. Neither did he leave out any other of his bag of tricks, which bag is as large and full as any bag ever borne by any Santa Claus in the imagination of the greediest child. It's all good fun.

Deeping's Black Sheep.

"TWO BLACK SHEEP," by Warwick Deeping. (Alfred A. Knopf, New York.)

Author's stock, like any other stock, has its ups and down. There is a good novel and a novel less good, and then a better novel.

Warwick Deeping is no exception. Deeping is quite possibly due to be quoted higher, beginning today. "Two Black Sheep" is the occasion for the new quotation, it being the last of the Deeping properties to come upon the exchange.

Mr. Deeping has to tell the story of two persons, a man and a woman, both of whom got into prison without doing anything that, in the broader morality, would be considered unforgivable.

The man's offense was worse than the woman's. He had committed murder, and paid 15 years for it. She had stolen, technically, and paid a year.

Both Vane and Elsie will appear to most readers very competent studies of quite definite types. One has been accustomed to having men in English novels run true to type, and Vane does. So with the Elsie type, the serious, sensitive sort who oftener gets her hat on crooked than her emotions.

They are obviously destined for each other from the beginning; so the fact that Mr. Deeping uses coincidence rather freely in getting them together doesn't matter much.

But with Mr. Pym and Sally the case is different. Mr. Deeping's belief in what he calls "the large simplicities" is reiterated at the beginning of the book; he is not the type from which one would expect excellent studies of the brassy woman of the world, and such grisly little demons as Sally is, at first.

He delivers them, nevertheless. Mrs. Pym is quite convincingly awful, and by the grace of a kindly fate Mr. Deeping leaves her so. Sally's reform is a possibility at the age of 7 years, and does not jar.

The whole matter is presented in prose that is always pleasant; it makes a nice late summer novel, this "Two Black Sheep."

Lions on Pope's Tomb Model for Capital Treasures

It is interesting to know the exact amount paid for these splendid copies of the Canova lions and to be told the year when they were purchased by the late Frank B. Maguire, and later presented to the museum. It may be interesting, too, to remind ourselves of the remoter past of these lions and of the function of the marble originals on the gigantic tomb of Pope Clement XIII in St. Peter's Cathedral in Rome.

On each side of an open door, which suggests the resting place of the departed spirit, is a great lion on guard, the one powerfully alert, the other utterly relaxed in sleep temporarily, for his period of watching has come to an end. Above the vigilant lion stands Religion, with a large cross in her hand; over the figure of the sleeping lion is the Angel of Death, resting against a side of the marble monument, an inverted torch in his hand, symbolizing again the departed soul. Surmounting the whole immense structure is the praying Pope Clement, kneeling upon a cushion so chiseled as to present the appearance of velvety softness. The face and attitude of the Pope are portrayed with great naturalness, in harmony, it is said, with the life of the devout man, whose death occurred in 1769.

"Sanctuary of Space and Silence."

Huge as are the proportions of this memorial structure, the effect is that of a tomb of no great size, so dwarfed in appearance is everything within that majestic edifice—aptly called "the sanctuary of space and silence."

This tomb, designated as one of Canova's strongest works, shows great unity and balance, and it appeals strongly to the imagination of the beholder, the noble animals playing no small part in the whole drama.

The tomb of Pope Clement XIII reminds us of Canova's own tomb in the Church of the Frari in Venice, and here again the lion forms an important part—this time the winged lion, symbolic of St Mark, the patron saint of Venice.

This church, which in a sense is the Westminster Abbey of Venice, since so many eminent men have been memorialized there, has two tombs of particular interest, that of Titian and the one of Canova. Curious to say, the latter was designed by Canova in memory of the great painter when, in 1794, nearly two centuries and a quarter after Titian's death, the Venetians decided to erect a monument worthy of their greatest artist. Political troubles followed, preventing the carrying out of the plans and, after the death of Canova, in 1822, his own monument was made from the design which he had intended for Titian—suitable, as we shall see, to commemorate the life and work of a great artist, whether a sculptor or a painter.

Not far, one from the other, stand these two great tombs in striking contrast, that of Titian, of costly marble and magnificent, consisting of a Corinthian canopy, beneath which are reproduced in relief five of the master's great paintings, and below is a sitting statue of the painter and several allegorical figures. Not until 1852 was this great monument erected, and it was the Emperor Ferdinand I of Austria who was the munificent donor.

Heart and Right Arm Enshrined.

The simplicity of the Canova tomb is extremely pleasing. Again we find the open door, inserted this time in a great unadorned marble pyramid. On the steps at the left of the opening is the winged lion on guard and the Angel of Death by his side. A sad, heavily draped figure of a woman stands on the other side of the door and she carries a classic urn in her hand. Following her is a procession of four mourning figures ascending the steps, and there are several significant accessories, all helping in the great allegory, but the suggestion of guardianship that is found in the strong, vigilant lion is very appealing.

Canova was actually buried with distinguished funeral honors in the temple at Passagno, the little town where he was born. Tradition adds that Venice, the city in which he died and the scene of his sculptural activities, was so desirous of honoring her great sculptor that the heart of the distinguished man was removed from his body and that it now rests in the urn borne by the graceful leader of the sad procession on the steps of his tomb. Moreover, that his right arm was severed from his body and placed in a great porphyry vase in the Academy at Venice. Certain it is that Italy honored Antonio Canova, her gifted son, in numerous ways and he was enrolled with the nobles of several states, for he was the leader in the classical revival in sclupture which spread over Europe near the end of the eighteenth century.

Although considerable artificiality is found in the work of this renovator of the art of sculpture in Italy, yet as we recall the weak mannerisms of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries we realize the importance of Canova's attempts to restore classic beauty and moderation. —Louise Lincoln Newell.

Modern Europe Art Show To Be Opened This Week

An exhibition of modern European art will attract many to the Museum of Modern Art, New York City, next Wednesday. It will contain many of the exhibits from the summer show and the famous Bliss collection.

One hundred paintings will be in the show, including those of Renoir, Cezanne, Seurat, Gauguin, Van Gogh, Matisse and Picasso. There will be a special room for Vonnard, Rouault, abstract painting and the neoromantics. Members of the museum will be privileged to attend a preview on Tuesday.

A one-man show of the paintings of Edward Hopper will begin on November 1 and will include oils, watercolors and etchings. The December show at the museum will be devoted to the works of American artists.

Million See Art Exhibit.

The one millionth visitor to the Century of Progress Art Exhibition in Chicago was presented with a framed reproduction of the most popular picture in the collection of 1,000 individual exhibits—that of Whistler's portrait of his mother. The daily attendance at the exhibition has been about 1,000 persons a day. Those in charge believe a great wave of art appreciation and picture buying will follow.

Bredin's Work Shown In Memorial Exhibition

Many Washington artists are visiting the memorial exhibition of the paintings and drawings of R. Sloan Bredin, which opened at Phillips Mill, New Hope, Pa., last week. It covers his work of more than 20 years.

John F. Folinsbee, member of the exhibition committee, speaking of Mr. Bredin's work, says that the exhibition gives an impelling impression of the artist's work in interpreting nature in all its beauty.

"His rule of art, just as his rule of life, was beauty," declared Mr. Folinsbee. "His vision was clear, purpose steadfast—all expressed with unfailing charm that inspired the feeling of peace and understanding. Serenity was the keynote of his work."

Bredin was an accomplished artist and his work has received a wide recognition throughout the coutnry. The National Academy of Design honored Bredin with a second Hallgarten prize in 1914, and again in 1921 he won the Maynard portrait award. In two consecutive years, 1921 and 1922, the Salmagundi Club awarded him prizes, including the Vezin prize for the best single picture in the annual exhibition of thumb box paintings.

Other recognitions include the Talcott prize of the National Arts Club, awards and honorable mentions from such organizations as the Philadelphia Art Club, the Art Institute of Chicago, the San Francisco and Sesquicentennial Expositions. Several museums and clubs have his paintings on permanent display. Five of his murals portraying the life of birds and animals of New Jersey are permanently shown at the State Museum at Trenton.

Wave of Murals Predicted.

Library's Lithographs Portray History of Era

THE book of American enterprise, as well as the story of the art of lithography and picture-printing, dating back to the middle of the nineteenth century, soon will be spread open for all to read at the Library of Congress. Bales of many lithographs and printed pictures have been stored for years in the basement of the library as they came in to the Prints Division from the Copyright Division.

They have ripened like old wine until they have achieved not only historical but a certain artistic value as well, and are valuable in tracing the processes used in producing billboard and hand-bills, certificates and leaflets of all kinds. They mark the progress of mechanical equipment as well as the progress of craftsmanship of this type of printing, and, of course, the history of the aims and objects and the wants, as well as the likes and dislikes, which have motivated Americans during the last half of the nineteenth century and a third of this.

The bales are to be sorted under the personal direction of the chief of the Prints Division, Dr. Leicester Bodine Holland.

Cachets of old whisky, gin and wine labels, which came thick and fast to the Copyright Division in the sixties and seventies, tell the story of the popular tunes and fads of other days as depicted in gay pictures found in these old bales. Political feuds and campaigns are to be traced in the posters and billboard signs found in this treasure trove of the thought, activities and interests of changing administrations and times.

The modern genius of pictorial display advertisement might learn many lessons from the geniuses of other days, who were quite as successful in catching public fancy.

One of the most interesting features of the exhibit will be the samples of stereopticon views of all kinds, humorous and serious, real and imaginative, pictures of people and events, all intended to be seen through the old-fashioned stereopticon, which once had such an important place on the parlor table of every well-regulated American home.

Bicycle posters go back to the days of the velocipede and show many posters and leaflets advertising this new mode of transportation before the turn of the century. In this section of the exhibit one also will be able to glimpse a true idea of the progress of sport attire. Grandfather and grandmother rode their velocipedes in much the same clothes they used for everyday.

Health campaign posters pointing out the evils to posture of the "Grecian Bend" or "Colic Stoop" are also included in this collection.

The history of the paper doll from great grandmother's day to this is also reflected in the many samples of highly colored dolls included in this collection, many of them as quaint as the treasured old prints from Godey's Lady Books.

Fashion plates, highly colored and printed in many different processes, give a real story of the fads and foibles of fashionable dress here and overseas for nearly a hundred years. In studying these old plates of what has been fashionable through the various eras of the modern age, it seems that the wheel of fashion revolves about the same general fashion trends, each one modified to suit the year in which it is revived.

Among the most interesting posters are those of the prize fights—lurid in color and bold in design.

There seemed to have been a vogue at the turn of the century and afterwards for lithograph family posters and pictures to be framed. Headless soldiers, to which pictures the heads of the friends and relatives were to be pasted, formed an important feature of these. Some of these posters showed family groups with a headless figure for each member of the family arranged about a home-like background. To these headless figures likenesses of each individual member of the family were to be fixed.

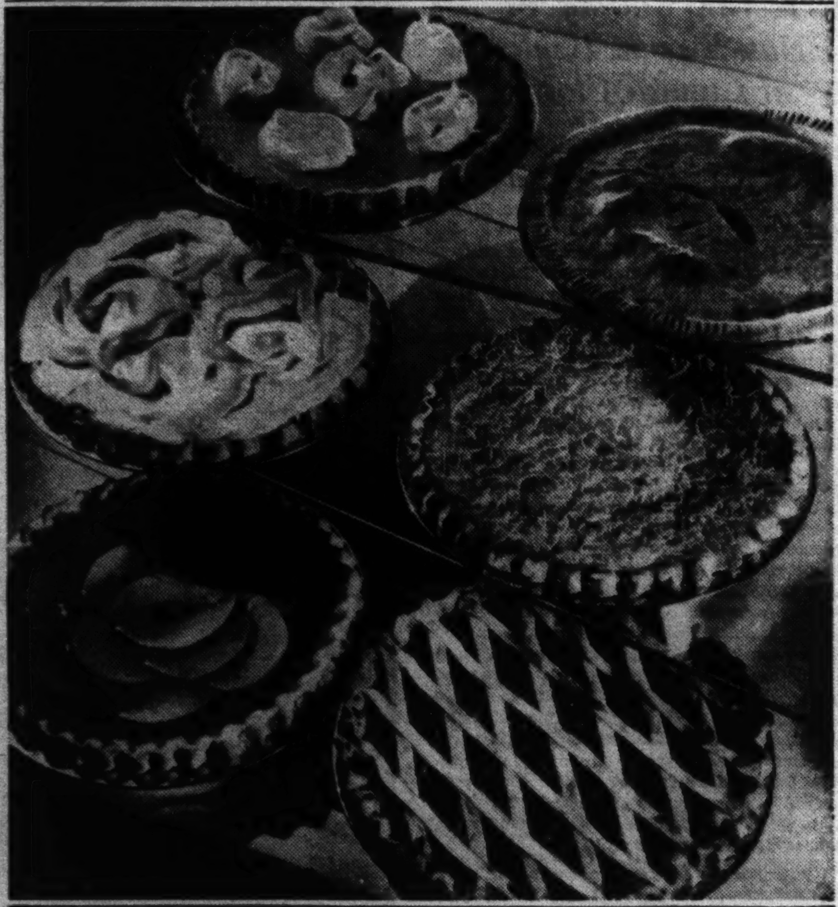
Art Historians Meet.

More than one thousand art historians attended the conclave of the thirteenth International Congress held in Stockholm, Sweden, recently. King Gustav received the delegates at a special tea in the royal palace.

Among the delegates from the United States were Millard Meiss, who read a paper on Sienese painting; R. Goldwater, who spoke on Paolo Uccello, and Miss E. Seavers, who discussed "The Sigurd Legend."

Autumn Allows Indulgence in Tasty Desserts

Some New Recipes for Pies and Cakes With Which to Regale Family on Cool Days.



ONE of the happier aspects of the coming of fall and winter is the opportunity given for safely indulging one's sweet tooth for pastries and rich cakes, so rightly denied in the interest of well-being during the long, torrid months of summer.

Every one is agreed that a little pastry, now and then, is welcomed alike by young and old, and, in the opinion of dietitians, is even necessary to a proper balancing of diet.

Indeed, one specialist on the subject of children's diet advances the theory that more sugar properly introduced into the feeding of children may serve to forestall convulsions, which in some instances have readily yielded to a corrective increase in the sugar intake.

With children, however, it is always wise to be on guard against a too rich or too heavy pastry diet. Their delicate digestive organs are not to be trifled with, and it is much easier to overdo rather than "underdo" in the matter of cake and pastries for youngsters.

Always After Meals.

Occasional offerings of cookies and ice cream, or afterdinner mints, will suffice for children. And let such treats be given after meals, always; never before meals, and never between meals, as such a procedure would inevitably distract their appetites from the more prosaic fruits and vegetables so necessary for their normal growth.

After all, age has its compensations, and among them is the privilege of partaking in moderately generous measure of rich and heavy pastries.

Not the least of the pastry-maker's art lies in making his creation appealing to the eye. For it is a fact well-known to gastronomists that a lively anticipation of the palate, engendered by what the eye beholds, is of tremendous importance in stimulating the flow of gastric juices which transmute one's food intake into those properties which spell health and longevity to the human body.

No matter how good a thing may taste, unless it appeals to one's eye, half its value is wasted, and it is apt to lie twice as heavy —if it is rich or heavy to begin with—in the stomach of the gourmand.

Music for Gastric.

Consider the accompanying illustrations of pies. Do not your gastric juices dance with very joy at the sight of them? Would they not pounce upon them with hungry and enthusiastic delight? Such is the attack the digestion must make upon rich foods, if they are to be properly assimiliated.

Reading from left to right, the pies pictured above are: Marvel lemon pie, dotted with whipped cream, for which meringue may be substituted; grapenuts raisin pie, in a double crust; Santiago chocolate pie, topped with a generous measure of whipped cream; Vanity Fair cocoanut custard pie, covered with shredded cocoanut; fresh peach pie glace and crisscross apricot pie.

In making pies, one lays the foundation of one's success or failure with one's pastry. And there is no reason for failure, if one carefully follows the following pie crust recipe:

2 cups sifted flour
½ cup cold shortening
½ teaspoon salt
¼ to 1-3 cup cold water

Sift flour once, measure, add salt and sift again. Cut in the shortening until mixture looks like meal. Add water, a little at a time, mixing with knife or spatula until the dough cleans the bowl of all flour and pastry. Use as little water as possible. Chill the dough before rolling. Bake in a hot oven, about 450 degrees Fahrenheit, for 15 minutes. This recipe makes enough pastry for one nine-inch, two-crust pie, or for nine tart shells.

Marvel Lemon Pie.

Taking the pies in the order named above, we will tell you how to make the filling.

For the marvel lemon pie, use:

1 package lemon jello
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt, grated rind and juice of 2 lemons
1¾ cups boiling water
2 egg yolks
1 baked 9-inch pie crust

Combine jello, sugar, salt and lemon rind with three tablespoons of water. Add egg yolks and stir well. Add remaining water, stirring until jello is dissolved. Cool. Add lemon juice. Chill again. When slightly thickened, turn into cold pie shell. Chill until firm. Cover with three-minute meringue, or top with whipped cream.

Right here is as good a time as any to provide you with a tested recipe for making three-minute meringue, often a stumbling block for even the veteran pie-maker:

2 egg whites, unbeaten
½ cup sugar
Dash of salt
2 tablespoons water
Few drops vanilla or almond extract

Put egg whites, sugar, salt and water in upper part of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water and beat for one minute. Remove from the fire and continue beating mixture for two minutes longer, or until the mixture will stand in peaks. Add flavoring. Beat mixture well. Now, spread over the chilled pie, and, if you like, sprinkle with shredded coconut, if it's that kind of pie.

Grapenuts Raisin Pie.

Filling for the grapenuts raisin pie will require:

¾ cup grapenuts
¾ cup raisins, chopped
¾ cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2¼ cups hot water
¼ cup cider vinegar
3 tablespoons butter
Pastry for 9-inch pie crust

Combine grapenuts, raisins, sugar, water, vinegar and butter and cook 10 minutes. Cool. Line a nine-inch pie plate with pastry, rolled to ⅛-inch thickness, allowing pastry to extend one inch beyond edge. Fold edge back to form standing rim. Fill with grapenuts mixture. Moisten edge of pie with cold water and arrange lattice of pastry strips across top. Flute rim with fingers. Bake in hot oven, 425 degrees Fahrenheit, for 10 minutes, then decrease heat to moderate temperature, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, and bake 30 minutes longer.

Santiago chocolate pie is made with:

3 squares chocolate, cut in pieces
3½ cups milk
3 tablespoons flour
2 tablespoons corn starch
¾ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons butter
1 egg—or 2 egg yolks—slightly beaten
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 baked 9-inch pie shell
1 cup cream, whipped
½ cup raisins or dates, seeded and chopped
½ cup nut meats, coarsely broken

Add chocolate to three cups milk and heat in double boiler. When chocolate is melted, beat with a rotary egg beater until blended. Sift flour, corn starch, sugar and salt together. Mix with one-half cup milk, and add to chocolate mixture, stirring constantly until thickened. Cook 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add butter and remove from fire. Add egg and vanilla and beat well. Turn mixture into pie shell. Cool. Just before serving, cover the pie with sweetened whipped cream, to which raisins or dates, and nuts have been added.

Vanity Fair Custard.

For the Vanity Fair coconut custard pie, you will need:

3 eggs, slightly beaten
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
3 cups milk, scalded
1 cup shredded coconut
Pastry for one 9-inch pie shell

Line pie plate with pastry, rolled to one-eighth inch thickness, allowing pastry to extend one inch beyond edge. Fit loosely on plate. Fold edge back to form standing rim and flute with fingers. Combine eggs, salt and sugar. Add milk gradually, then stir in the cocoanut, and mix thoroughly. Pour into pie shell. Bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees Fahrenheit, for 15 minutes, then decrease heat to moderate temperature, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, and bake 30 minutes longer. Cool and serve.

For making the delicious fresh peach pie glace, which is a happy medium between pastry and fruit, in the dessert realm, you will need:

8 large fresh peaches, or 4 cups sliced
¾ cups sugar
1 package orange jello
1½ cups warm water
Dash of salt
1 baked 9-inch pie shell

Combine the peaches and sugar and let stand 10 minutes. Dissolve jello in boiling water. Add salt to jello and pour mixture over soaked peaches. Chill the mixture. When it has slightly thickened, turn into cold pie shell. Chill until firm. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired.

Crisscross Pie a la Rural.

1½ tablespoons minute tapioca
1-3 cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cups cooked dried apricots, drained
1 cup hot apricote juice
½ cup canned crushed pineapple, drained
1 cup hot apricot juice
Pastry for one double pie crust

Combine the minute tapioca, sugar and salt. Add apricots and apricot juice and let stand 15 minutes, or while pastry is being made. Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry, rolled to ⅛-inch thickness. Add pineapple and pineapple juice to apricot mixture and turn into pie shell. Arrange lattice of pastry strips across top. Moisten edge of pie with cold water and finish with narrow strip of pastry. Bake in hot oven, 425 degrees Fahrenheit, for 10 minutes. Decrease oven heat to 350 degrees Fahrenheit, and bake 30 minutes longer. Cool. The pie may be served with toppings of sweetened whipped cream, if desired.

Now, about cakes. For the creole fudge loaf, the following ingredients are required:

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
2 squares chocolate melted
1 egg, well beaten
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup milk

Sift flour once, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, adding sugar gradually. Cream together until light and fluffy. Add chocolate and blend. Then add egg and vanilla. Add flour alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Pour into greased pan, eight by eight by two inches. Bake in moderate oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, for one hour. Cover cake with thick layer of White Mountain cream when taken from oven, and, when the cream icing is firm, pour a thin coating of melted chocolate over the top.

White Mountain Icing.

Recipe for the White Mountain cream icing calls for:

½ teaspoon light corn syrup
2 eggs whites, stiffly beaten
2-3 cups boiling water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine sugar, corn syrup and water. Place over low flame and stir constantly until sugar is dissolved and mixture boils. Continue cooking until a small amount of syrup forms a soft ball in cold water, or spins a long thread when dropped from tip of spoon. Pour syrup in fine stream over egg whites, beating constantly. Add vanilla. Continue beating until frosting loses its gloss and is stiff enough to spread.

The delectable coconut layer cake requires the following:

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2-3 cup butter or other shortening
1 cup sugar
3 eggs yolks, well beaten
1-3 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 eggs whites, stiffly beaten
1 medium-sized tin of coconut

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, then add flour alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat mixture after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla and fold in egg whites. Pour mixture into two greased 9-inch layer pans, and bake in moderate oven—375 degrees Fahrenheit—for 25 to 30 minutes. For three 10-inch layers, double the ingredients stipulated in this recipe. Seven-minute frosting is suggested for this cake, poured between layers and on the top and sides. Sprinkle each layer and the top and sides of the cake with coconut while the frosting is yet soft.

Seven-minute frosting is made as follows:

2 eggs whites, unbeaten
1½ cups sugar
5 tablespoons cold water
1½ teaspoons light corn sirup
1 teaspoon vanilla

Put egg whites, sugar, water and corn sirup in upper part of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beating constantly with rotary egg beater, and allow to cook for seven minutes, or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from fire, add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread. This recipe makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two nine-inch layers, so that approximately double the amount would be needed for a cake with three ten-inch layers.

"The Snows of Helicon" Is Tomlinson's Latest

ness of our system to all beauty, in a pagan temple or in nature itself.

Travers himself seems to realize the hopelessness of his quest. Snarge, sitting in an office in London or New York, can engineer a revolution in one country, and send a radio message that will make a ship captain in the Aegean scowl. Like a vast spider web his protean activities reach over the whole world. A crusader against the willful destructiveness of the system, an individual like Travers can really accomplish nothing whatever except to sacrifice himself. The temple, of course, is blown up, and Travers with it. "For over 2,000 years the god of light had kept his house for those who could face the light. The light would go out. Another need had arisen. Not here, O Apollo! Who now? Lord Snarge."

George Santayana somewhere says that every nice Englishman has in him the soul of a poet. Of H. M. Tomlinson this is particularly true. The very theme of "The Snows of Helicon" is poetic and imaginative. Nor is this theme a new one for Tomlinson. It runs through much of his earlier writings. The essay, "A Lost Wood," in "Out of Soundings," gives in little the same story this newest novel of his does. He was in the habit each spring of going out to this little wood near London to find the earliest spring flowers. The last time he found in its midst a steam tractor ruthlessly tearing a road through it. Presently another row of houses would go up; but the beauty of the place would be gone forever.

Tomlinson's protest against the consequences of industrialism is not strident and vehement. He has nothing to say of politics and economics in his writing. His tone is one of sadness and reflection and, it might be added, of despair. His protest, such as it is, is against the stupidity of materialism. The modern world worships force; mankind has exalted it. "He has made it the heart of his commune, the source of his light, and the reason for his labor and devotion." But if these forces of our age are not controlled, Tomlinson warns us, chaos will come upon us. Travers, as he describes him in the book, is one of the children of light. Snarge and his kind are the powers of darkness. "The Snows of Helicon" is both protest and warning.

It is accordingly the ideas and the implications of the novel which capture one's attention and interest. Even Travers is a shadowy person, and, Bert Byles excepted, the other persons mere names. They are part of the background of Travers, which he abandoned. "The Snows of Helicon" is an essayist's novel.

This is not to deprecate it, but to indicate that the distinguished prose and ideas which have made H. M. Tomlinson one of the great essayists of the twentieth century are precisely the values which make "The Snows of Helicon" a notable book. It remains, however, a casting of his ideas in a fictional form, rather than a novel such as many writers of our time could produce. But what the usual run of novels lacks are the overtones, the implications, the Virgilian sadness, the beauty of phrase which make all of H. M. Tomlinson's writing memorable and permanent.

Tourists Form Majority Of Aquarium Visitors

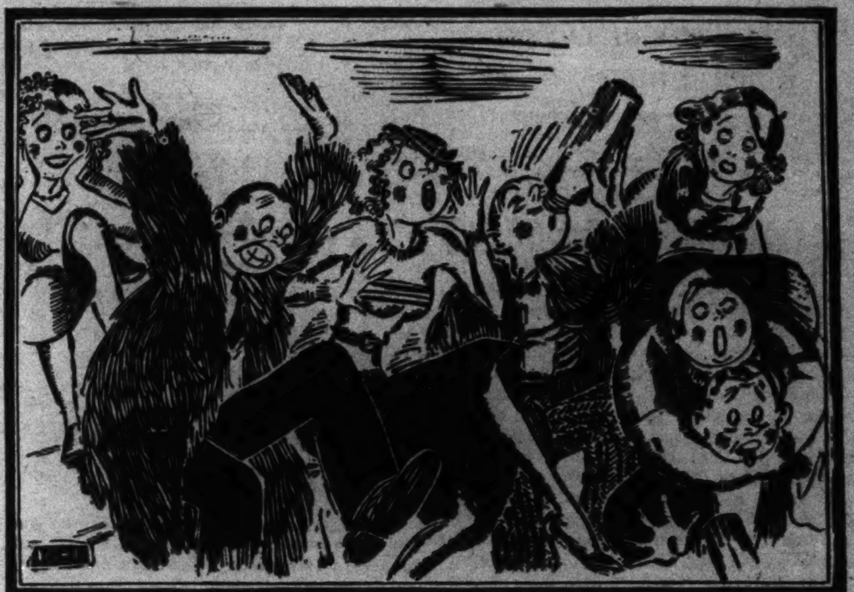
Curiously, comparatively few persons are aware of the existence of the aquarium maintained in the Department of Commerce Building, under the main Fourteenth street entrance, although it was opened more than a year ago. Crowds of visitors make the rounds of the exhibits there daily, says Director Fred G. Orsinger, but his wonder is that the majority of them are "out-of-towners," members of visiting convention delegations and tourists.

There are 47 aquaria, showing 67 distinct varieties of aquatic animals, local and tropical toy fish, maintained in 50 to 2,000-gallon tanks, and arranged with artificial background and natural plants to simulate the habitat of each variety. Special displays, such as trout shown leaping the intricacies of a "fish ladder," Chinook salmon hatching methods, and herring actually hatching their young, are arranged in season. In December the egg-hatching exhibit will be on again.

One portion of the exhibit is given over especially to the 42 varieties of native game, food, and destructive fish, number about 900 in the display. The Gambusia, or mosquito-destroying fish, being slowly acclimated for Northern waters, will have its special tanks soon. Three central pools are filled with turtles, eels, and a variety of fish.

McGoofey's First Reader

By H. I. Phillips.



O, SEE the concrete structure!

It is a stadium.

What is a stadium?

A stadium is a place where people pay $2 to $5 to sit on a cold slab and get pneumonia.

Why do people pay to sit on a cold slab and get pneumonia?

To see a gridiron epic.

What is a gridiron epic?

A gridiron epic is what the sporting editors call an ordinary football game.

What is a football game?

Is the game exciting?

It used to be.

Why is it not exciting any more? What happened?

The rules committee happened.

What is a rules committee?

A rules committee is a board of serious-thinking gentlemen who meet every year to change all the football rules.

Why do they do that?

So the spectators will never be able to follow the game.

Has the committee made football less exciting?

It is now about as mild as a golf tournament, except for the football fans.

What about the football fans?

The football players are compelled to get milder, but the fans are as rough as ever.

Is there more roughness in the stands than on the gridiron?

Oh, very much so. You are fairly safe on the playing field, but when the rah-rahs get to drinking out of those thermos bottles in the $4 seats, it is a case of every man for himself, and don't spare the bandages.

Why not reverse things and charge the football players to see the spectators?

It would be a swell idea.

"Winters Are Warmer" In Light of Cold Fact

Attention! Exponents of the "Winters Are Warmer" theory. If your contention rests on the premise that urban migrations, and consequent massing of humans, had much to do with this meteorological allegation, you must be diplomatically quiet now until you have seen the many 20-year average charts comparing city and country which have been prepared under the supervision of the U. S. Weather Bureau.

Cycles are just as fashionable in weather as in business or styles, and detailed statistical charts curving the great sweeps of temperature in the United States, at least prove this conclusively: That, from 1819. for example, to 1850, the winters were exceptionally warm; that, from then until the great Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia in '76, the winters became preponderantly colder; and that, since 1880 or thereabouts, the great arc of the weather pendulum has been on the upswing once more, the particular cycle we are now on being near or passing the peak.

Moving Car Platforms Bares Hidden "Wealth"

No flock of chickens behind a plow ever made faster work of "getting the worm" than the District's gang of husky Negroes who pull the Pennsylvania avenue street car platforms four or five times a year when public occasion demands their temporary removal. And, according to figures furnished by the superintendent of this crew, these sporadic scavengers of the Avenue average about 50 cents to 75 cents a platform, every time removals are necessary.

"Hot rail," cry the movers when the street car is approaching. The warning echoes down the line. Then, squared about the platform section, they shout again, "Let's lift!"

Up comes the platform. Beneath is an accumulation of six inches of sand and rubbish. The brush and shovel follow, and hawk-eyed pushers catch the dull burnish of a quarter, a dime, nickles, pennies, tokens—occasionally a big find: a ring, once; a bill, even, especially in the old days when the boards in the platform were made wider than at present, to allow the water to drip through more rapidly.

"They used to average a lot more than now," explained the superintendent, "in the days when the boards were farther apart. People were more careless about their coins then, too, I suppose. But, yes, they have made some good finds. And they keep what they find, probably splitting up in some way when the day is over. Four or five times a year, moving these 16 platforms that we do each time, and averaging at least half a dollar in coins and tokens—let's see, that mounts up, doesn't it? . . ."

Culbertson's Bridge and News of Capital Players

Expert Tells of Occasions When Finesse Was Preferred Play.

By Ely Culbertson.

AS a usual thing a suit of nine cards from which the Queen is missing should be played for the drop. In other words, the Ace-King should be led out in the hope that the adverse cards are divided 2-2 and that consequently the Queen will fall. However, this is not a hard and fast rule, but simply a general one.

There are two occasions when the finesse is the better play. The first case occurs when the bidding and first few plays have disclosed the fact that the distribution is unusual. When this has been discovered the odds favor a 3-1 break much more than they do a 2-2 break. The second occasion is much more interesting and involves a type of safety play. This play is illustrated by the following hand, which was played by Mr. A. H. Morehead, of New York City.

South, Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

♠ 9 6 4 3
♡ A K
♢ 9 8 7 5
♣ A 8 2

♠ 10 ♠ Q 8 7
♡ Q J 10 6 2 N ♡ 8 4
♢ 3 W E ♢ K Q J 10 6 4
♣ Q J 10 7 6 4 S ♣ K 3

♠ A K J 5 2
♡ 9 7 5 3
♢ A 2
♣ 9 5

Mr. Morehead.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♠	2♣	3♠	4♢
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

The bidding was quite normal in spite of the fact that everybody bid when it came his turn. Even though East and West were vulnerable their distribution warranted some defensive measures. North and South of course reached a perfectly normal contract which, under ordinary circumstances, would be made laid down.

The opening lead was the 3 of diamonds, which Mr. Morehead immediately marked as a singleton. East had bid the suit and the only card lower than the 3 was the deuce, which he held in his own hand. The first trick, therefore, he won with the Ace in his own hand, and then laid down the Ace of spades. When this held he decided that it was a good idea to get rid of the high hearts in the Dummy and consequently cashed the Ace-King. He now led a low spade from Dummy, and East, of course, played the 8-spot. Mr. Morehead's first impulse was to play the King and hope for the drop, but a moment's reflection showed him that this might easily turn out to be a losing play. If West should show out he could then lead a heart and ruff in the Dummy, but after this he would be unable to return to his own hand and East would be able to pull the last trump out of Dummy with the Queen. With this distribution, therefore, he would be sure to lose 4 tricks—one in each suit.

A Finesse for Safety.

He now considered the finesse and saw almost immediately that this play was an absolute safety play. If he played the Knave and West won with the Queen, all the trumps would be gone. He would still have two hearts remaining which he could trump in Dummy, no matter what the opponents did, and he would simply lose one diamond trick and one club trick, in addition to the trump trick, which he was giving up. If, on the other hand, the finesse held, he could afford to give up one of his losing heart tricks and still be sure of making the contract.

Reasoning thus, he took the spade finesse, and when it held, laid down the King of Spades. He then ruffed one of his losing hearts in Dummy and conceded three tricks to the opponents.

* * * *

Defensive play has not yet reached the stage where a player is capable of figuring out every play eight or nine tricks from the end. This is as it should be because otherwies Contract would degenerate into a sort of Double Dummy proposition and the whole charm of the game would be lost.

The following hand was played in four spades by South and was played extremely well. South made his contract, and after the hand was over, a line of defense was discovered which would have beaten the hand one trick.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

♠ Q 10
♡ 8 7 5 4
♢ 9 7 6 2
♣ A J 10

♠ 9 3 N ♠ 8 7 2
♡ K Q J 10 W E ♡ A
♢ Q 8 4 ♢ J 10 5 3
♣ Q 8 3 2 S ♣ K 9 6 5 4

♠ A K J 6 5 4
♡ 9 6 3 2
♢ A K
♣ 7

The bidding:

South	North
1♠	1NT
3♠	4♠
Pass

The contract was a very logical one and would be made very easily with a 3-2 break in hearts. However, as will be noticed the hearts are actually divided 4-1—the one difficulty being that East and West are blocked.

West naturally opened the King of hearts, which East was forced to overtake with the Ace. East shifted, naturally enough, to a diamond, which was won by Declarer, who now paused to consider the situation. It seemed apparent that the remaining high hearts were all banked in the West hand and that consequently there was no use in trying to break this suit. The only other chance seemed to be to work a strip and end-play which would eventually force the opponents to concede him two tricks in clubs. He therefore cashed his second high diamond and led a low spade over to the Ten-spot. A diamond was then led from the Dummy and ruffed in the closed hand and another low trump put the Dummy in the lead again. Now the last diamond was led and ruffed with the Knave, after which the Ace of spades was led and the last trump pulled. The stage was now set for the situation the Declarer had been planning. He led a low club and finessed the Ten. East, of course, won with the King and was forced to return another club. Declarer had, therefore, established two tricks in this suit for himself and was able to discard two of his losing hearts. He lost only 2 hearts and 1 club, and thus fulfilled his contract.

This was a very beautifully played hand, but actually it would have been defeated if East had been a mind reader. At trick 2 he could have laid down the King of clubs, which would have prevented any end-play and would have forced Declarer to concede all his heart tricks at the end.

Solution to Last Week's Problem.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1♢	1♡	1NT	Pass
2NT	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

You, West, hold:

Spades	J 8 6 3
Hearts	J 5 3
Diamonds	5 4
Clubs	Q J 9 2

What do you lead?

Answer: The heart 3. With no particularly good suit of your own and an entryless hand, it is not even close that you should open your partner's suit. The correct lead is low from three to an honor, even though the honor is only the Knave. Declarer may hold something like four to the Queen-Ten, and if you lead the Knave he will have two stops. By leading low you are preventing him from making more than one trick in the suit. Declarer may even hold Ace-King-Ten, in which case leading the Knave will give him 3 tricks in the suit, while leading low will hold him to 2.

This Week's Problem.

Both sides vulnerable.
The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♠	2♣
2♢	3♣	3♠	Pass
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

You, East, hold:

Spades	A
Hearts	Q 7 4
Diamonds	8 7 2
Clubs	K Q J 8 6 5

What do you lead?

The answer to today's problem will be given next Sunday.

UNOFFICIALLY, for the past two and a half years, the Brahanys—"Tommie" an dLucy—have held the title of champion contract bridge players for the District of Columbia. They have also held the handsome Washington Post cup which was the grand trophy won in The Washington Post tournament of May, 1931. That was the first bridge tournament ever held in the National Capital as well as one of the largest ever held anywhere, and in view of the fact that the Brahanys contested against more than 800 players at that time and came off with top score, it was generally conceded that they were rightfully entitled to the honors and to the trophy.

It is true that contract was then only beginning to have vogue in Washington, and a great many skillful players have since been developed, but for that time and in the then existing circumstances it was a grand triumph for this popular pair. Following the tournament which placed contract on the map of social entertainment in Washington the game has progressed rapidly and with an ever-increasing following. Now there are thousands of players here and a new championship pair for the District is soon to be determined. The Brahanys, however, will retain their Washington Post cup.

The new championship pair will be those who are winners in the city-wide contest series to be played on October 2, 4 and 7, at the Kennedy-Warren.

For the past two weeks a series of elimination contests has been played at the Kennedy-Warren, the Mayfair Club, the La Salle Studio, at the 1723 Twenty-first Street Club and elsewhere in which 25 per cent of those making high scores have been qualified for the finals which will decide the championship of the District. The winning pair will be entitled to play in the regional match composed of winning pairs in Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia and Delaware, and in turn the winners of the regional play will contest for the national championship in St. Louis during the week beginning November 27.

Those who have qualified in the series of games at the Kennedy-Warren under the direction of Mrs. Louise Guest are: Lieut. Comdr. W. A. Corley, U. S. N., and Lawrence Lake, A. P. Stockvit and C. E. Bergfeld, Mrs. Harry Given and Mrs. Frank Guest, Mr. and Mrs. James Lemon, Col. Edward Clifford and Mrs. Katherine Priest, W. R. Stevens and F. E. Byrnes, Mrs. John Powell and Mr. Souralis, Jack Davidson and Mark Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Holland Huntington, Capt. and Mrs. Charles Dietz, Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Helwig, Harold Brayman and Phelps Adams, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Veerhoff and Dr. W. S. Frisbie and Dr. C. C. Black. Herbert Shepard and Mrs. Paul Collins have qualified at the Twenty-first Street Club. Approximately 10 other pairs have also qualified at other plays, but their scores have not at this time been reported. It is, therefore, assured that at least 25 of Washington's best will enter the spirited final engagements of the coming week.

During the following week, beginning October 9, the team matches will be held, the teams being composed of pairs winning in the elimination contests and such team mates as they may select either from those engaged in the pair games or others of their choice. The winning team will carry on through the regional contests up to the grand team championship in St. Louis to determine the championship of the United States. Both the elimination series and the finals here, as well as the national championship contest in St. Louis are being conducted under the direction of the United States Bridge Association.

The first annual Canadian-American championship contract bridge tournament is scheduled to be held at Niagara Falls, N. Y., October 19 to 22 inclusive. Our fellow players across the border are enthusiastic over the event and among the Canadians who have registered for the contest are such well-known players as P. F. Carey, Goodrich, Ontario; Col. J. E. Cohoe, Welland, Ontario; Dr. J. B. Jupp, Woodstock, Ontario; Dr. A. H. Skinner, London, Ontario; Frank C. Fletcher, president of the Toronto Whist Club; Hamlin B. Hatch, John W. Jacobson, D. A. McDonald and Mrs. Norman A. Sinclair, of Toronto.

The Canadian-American tournament is the first of its kind ever held. Two major trophies will be awarded—the John W. Jacobson Trophy for a team of four and the Edwin G. Blake Trophy for open pairs. The tournament will operate under the direction of the American Bridge League. Russel J. Baldwin, treasurer of the league, will officiate as tournament director.

A series of service club duplicate games has been inaugurated by Mrs. Dixie T. Wright in her La Salle studio. Organizations are being perfected in each of the three branches of the service, the Navy, the Army and the Marine Corps, and at each game the players will be limited to their particular service organization. The first of the series was played on Monday evening by the Navy group. Among the players were Commander and Mrs. C. B. Platt, Commander and Mrs. C. B. Hatch, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Bertram Groesbeck, Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Mays L. Lewis and a dozen others. The winners were Mrs. Lewis and Miss Helen Goodhue, first, and Commander and Mrs. Platt, second. Later in the season it is planned to have the three groups meet in a service contract tournament.

The husband of one of Washington's leading bridge players who, for obvious reasons, can not be identified further than to say that he is a retired naval officer living in New Hampshire avenue, has made the discovery that the NRA benefits bridge enthusiasts from two angles. In the first place, the NRA provides for shorter hours of labor. Hence, the ladies who now play contract 16 hours a day and upward will not be required to put in so much time at the bridge table. In the second place, it provides more hours of leisure and those who want to play more bridge and haven't the time because of some other trifling duties will now have opportunity to gratify their bridge desires. In short, it is a noble experiment that works both ways for the benefit of everybody. Friend husband thinks he will send his suggestion on to New York to Raymond Fosdick and his committee of eight who have undertaken the task of instructing people how to use their leisure time now that the NRA has fixed 40 hours as the maximum work week. He believes it would be better than reading the 1,100-odd pages of "Anthony Adverse."

The Vanderbilt Club has moved from 1709 N street northwest to 1708 Massachusetts avenue, which is just around the corner from its former headquarters. The house was formerly occupied by the Ambassador from Turkey. The location, however, is only temporary pending establishment of the club in a home especially fitted for its purposes.

Among last week's winners were the following:

At the La Salle Studio, Mark Lake and Jack Davidson, first; Miss Helen Goodhue and Charles Shaw tied with Miss Kaye Titus and William Phelan for second place, and Mrs. J. D. Mothershed and Mrs. Dixie T. Wright, third.

At the 1723 Twenty-first Street Club, Wesley Gardner and Mrs. Helen Riordan, first; Herbert Shepard and Mrs. Paul Collins, second.

At Stoneleigh Court, Dr. Herrick and Mr. Gerber, first; Mrs. J. T. Powell and Mrs. C. W. Zimmer, second; Mrs. F. A. Smith and M. Groat, third.

At the Women's University Club, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Brown, first; Miss Jannero Brooks and Mrs. Marguerite Atchison, second; Miss Mary E. Laird and Mr. Barber, third.

Inspired by the success of its second annual tournament held last June, the National Press Club is planning a bigger and better event to be held late this fall and before the opening of Congress. The fact that the national legislators do not meet again until January means that the news writers may find time hanging heavily on their hands during December, so accustomed are they to meeting the statesmen then. Just now the boys are all fussed up about their golf tournament, and when that is over bridge will follow in order of entertainment.

"Two Diamonds" Tillie says that with Sister Aimee McPherson Hutton playing a vaudeville contract, she is at a loss to know whether the game is going theatrical or evangelical, but what's the difference anyway?

"Just Name It and We Will Find It," Proud Slogan of City Property Yard

WHEN the District of Columbia is through with its obsolete belongings, when they become too broken for repair, when the fan won't fan and the fireless cooker won't cook, when the firehose wears out, but the nozzle is good; when the bathtubs spring a leak—in fine, when any appraiser in any department condemns any piece of equipment within that division of the city's administrative offices—off it goes to the Ark of the Government, otherwise known as the District Property Yards, along the railroad tracks on Canal street, at Delaware.

"Just name it," James Dixon, Negro caretaker of the yards for 16 years, will challenge you. Just name it and I'll find it for you."

All condemned supplies of any sort, movable or otherwise, from assembly hall chairs to 3,000 pound detached truck motors, from surgical scissors to sunken tugboats, from boilers to spavined horses, from condemned real estate to firemen's uniforms and policemen's uniforms, which are turned over to the Clothes Conservation Bureau where they have their buttons and stripes removed and go to emergency relief division, everything goes through the District Property Survey office, of which the yards is the miscellaneous catch-all.

As the ponderous gates of the yards slide back the neatly stacked interior come to partial view. There are globes and shades for lights, bookcases, umbrella stands, dressers, carpenters' planes and filing cabinets; there are electric fans and electric clocks, electric freezers and electric motors for buzzsaws; there are kindergarten tables, surgical tables, dentists' tables and draughtsman's tables; there are sewing machines, envelope-sealing machines, comptometers and typewriters; soup bowls, dishes, knives, forks, and spoons, and the steamtable to go with them and start a restaurant.

There are pitchers, slop jars, razors, clippers, cabbage-cutters and meat-cutters, old fire hose and old lawn hose, copper kettles, dumbbells and wands, model T Ford parts, thousands of old library books sewed up in burlap sacks for distribution to hospitals and prisons; a fiber bathtub and several porcelain ones, with a whole outlay of bathroom necessities from stools to sinks; hacksaw blades, batteries, boots, shoes, carpenters' and mechanics' tools; pots, flags, desks from schools piled 5,000 high, towering up in the center of the yard.

There are baled rags, swivel chairs, jackup chairs, work benches, tires, tubes, window sashes, doorsills and frames; tiles, lamps, caps, harness, firemen's boots, ropes, pulleys, funeral chairs, rubber coats, rakes, scales, oil stoves, medicine jars, blowout patches, indelible pencils, drawing ink, barrels and buckets; tractor parts and lunch counter stools; washstands, coffee grinders, iron ladders, beds and bedsprings, incubators for chickens, truck and truck wheels, wagons, road scrapers, radiators, brooms, which are restrawed and sent back for use; bailing presses, top renewer, platform scales, tar kettles and sprayers, road barricades and cement post forms, cables, wheelbarrows, scrapiron, steel lockers, miles of iron, lead and copper piping, later converted into serviceable fence posts, and, most curious of all, a complete teller's cage, all folded up, in a corner.

These, and undoubtedly countless other objects which find their way to these yards in the course of the years, are seldom wasted materials. First, if there are other departments within the District which can make use of any of them, proper statements are made out for their free transfer. If worthy institutions outside the district can use them, they make application and are not usually denied what they want. There are auctions for the public from time to time, held in conjunction with other divisions of the Federal Government of like function as the Property Survey office. Private wrecking, junking, automotive, and salvage concerns bid upon portions of this stock which they may be able to use. Finally, if all means to get rid of certain stock fails, it is relegated to the last way of all junk and destroyed. What funds may be realized through this department in the course of a year are turned over to District revenues.

trived nooks and crannies which were obtained otherwise than through the requests contained in letters.

In none of the general's formal reports on progress of construction does any mention of the "archive preservation" plan appear. This indicates strongly that the unique activity advanced under that plan was entirely a personal adventure and that the general was not limited by any official dictates.

The general's penchant for "hiding things" so they might be found by generations yet unborn leads to conjecture as to how far he went in concealing mementos of his day and earlier times in other portions of buildings which he helped to erect here. He drew plans for a "new War Department building" in 1867, directed construction of the aqueduct from Great Falls to Washington, and supervised construction of the dome and extended wings of the United States Capitol.

The possibility that the leaden and tin cases taken from the places they have occupied for half a century is strengthened by official observations that the archives are hidden from public view and might far better be withdrawn and made accessible to study.

With the new Archives Building to be occupied before many more months, a thoroughly fitting depository will become available.

Robert Woods Bliss Art Treasures Gathered Here

One of the most notable private collections of art objects from all over the world will be assembled at The Oaks, home of the former Ambassador to Argentina and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss. Mr. and Mrs. Bliss have opened The Oaks and intend to spend most of their time there. In addition to the art treasures already installed in the house, they will gather more and will bring many they now own in art galleries elsewhere to Washington.

About ten years ago Mr. and Mrs. Bliss bought The Oaks, the beautiful estate of the late Mrs. Lucia Blount, in Georgetown, which was first the home here of John C. Calhoun. It was remodeled under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Bliss to be in keeping with their rare art collections.

Washingtonians Recall Transport Torpedoing

limping back to Brest, Capt. Dismukes commended his only woman passenger for her rare gameness and presented her with a trophy she prizes above all others today, the firing pin to one of the bombs aimed at the enemy.

"My very first thought, when the torpedo struck," recalled this motherly little person, who is still serving her husband as secretary, "was of the rope we had brought to tie us together in just such an emergency. We were in our stateroom, I dressed, and the senator in the bathtub."

Lewis Remained Chesterfieldian.

"I didn't stay there, though," laughed her husband. "The crash threw me across the room."

"I dressed pretty quickly, although I can't say now the finished effect was exactly handsome," he recalled. "I pulled on my trousers and vest and coat over a life preserver, pushed my bare feet into shoes I couldn't stop to lace, and finished off by putting my hat on over a head full of lather. The soapsuds ran down my face, but that was no time for squeamishness, so I took Mrs. Schall's arm and together we made our way to our lifeboat. We never used the rope, though I kept it in my pocket.

"We'd had a drill the night before," supplied Mrs. Schall, "and knew just where to find the lifeboat. The yeoman assigned to look after us we sent on to help with the wounded."

"We found Ham Lewis out on the deck, as Chesterfieldian as ever," Senator Schall recalled, "in his pajamas, raincoat and hat, helping the wounded men into the life boats."

"He waved his hat to me gallantly!" laughed Mrs. Schall.

Senator Robbed of Vote.

Oddly enough, these shipmates on that tragic trip, whose staterooms faced each other, Lewis in the "Kaiser's suite" and the Schalls in the "princess' suite," are now across-the-corridor neighbors in the Senate Office Building.

"My first thought," recounted the bewhiskered little statesman, Senator Lewis, "was that it was a pity to have to forego one more nap. I'd had a tiring month of it abroad. And my second thought was of those 150 wounded boys in the sick bay. I ran down and helped out a little. The shell-shocked men got quite excited and I helped with a few lies to them about it being a boat drill, and so forth."

The Senate's Beau Brummel was as enthusiastic as the others in his praise of the ship's crew and captain.

"I was hurrying home to vote for my renomination in the primaries the next week," he explained. "But they had to put it over without my ballot. I got away again several days later on the Great Northern and a sub chased us all the way into New York harbor."

Wallace Streeter, Senator Lewis' prewar and present secretary, then a lieutenant in the Judge Advocate General's office, was detailed as secretarial assistant to the senator on his mission abroad. Tall, quiet-spoken, Mr. Streeter recalled marveling at a lack of the dramatics he had anticipated for such an emergency.

Death Toll Was Heavy.

"I was in the officers' mess hall at breakfast," he recounted. "The hit sounded in there like a dull thud of a popgun and the few of us there at the time felt no great upheaval. I remember, however, foregoing my second cup of coffee and losing my third hat on that trip after a hasty decision to get up on deck."

On his desk was a souvenir of the event, a jaggared heavy glass paperweight, shattered from a porthole. "My main thrill," he went on, "came from watching the destroyers around us throwing big cans full of TNT off their sterns. When some yellow oil came up I pictured those Germans down there getting the ducking they'd tried to give us. But the orderly way everyone worked together must have accounted for my impession of comparative safety."

Below decks, however, 35 men had drowned or were burned to death and 14 others were suffering serious injuries. The supreme heroism of these and other members of that crew, now scattered throughout the land, and the forethought that had been given this visit from the enemy, were the answer to Mr. Streeter's observation.

Members of this famous crew in former years celebrated anniversaries of their big day with banquets in New York. Since 1929 this custom has lapsed. Maybe it will be revived some day—perhaps aboard the Mount Vernon herself, now luxuriating in a well-earned rest, afloat the brackish waters that are kindest to her great hull—her engine kept in readiness to go again by Commander Bailey, the man who has nursed it continuously these 14 years.

FOR THE WASHINGTON POST BOYS AND GIRLS

The Junior Post.

SECTION OF THE WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON, D. C., OCTOBER 1, 1933.

Make Ready for Best Armistice Day Number in History of Junior Post, on Nov. 12!

Prizes Await Boys and Girls Who Send Original Stories, Poems and Drawings

Dear Post Boys and Girls: Make ready for the best Armistice Day Number of The Junior Post we have ever had. Ready! On the mark! Go!

This year Armistice Day, November 11, comes on Saturday—so we will have the Armistice Day Edition on Sunday, November 12. This means, of course, the stories, poems and drawings for this number must be in the office of the editor of The Junior Post not later than Monday morning, November 6.

Prizes will be given for the best story that is history of Armistice Day, the best poem on the spirit of the day, the best cartoon and the best strip. In selecting prize-winning contributions consideration always is given to originality of the work, neatness and accuracy. Consideration also is given to the age of the contributor, as it would not be fair to judge work of a real young boy or girl by the work accomplished by a boy or girl in high school.

Be Sure of Facts.

Be sure of your facts when writing of historical subjects or of the lives and works of men and women. No matter how well your stroy is written, if it is incorrect as to facts and details it can not win a prize or be published.

Boys and girls who wish to illustrate their own stories and poems may do so, but they must be very careful to have names and addresses, ages and schools on both the drawing and the story and have each one marked plainly with which story or picture it is intended to be printed.

Do not forget that all work must be original. It is not fair to copy. Of course, none of us has ever seen many of the great men of history, and all must go to books and pictures to get real pictures of them. Draw them free-hand and do not trace.

Read up on your facts and make careful notes of dates and names and such matters, but write your stories without copying out of books or papers. Of course, poems never must be copied—not even the ideas.

Do Not Steal Brain Work.

If you have a poem in your mind, write it out yourself and then go over and over it until you get the rhyme to suit you.

The meanest person in the world is one who will steal the brain work of another. This is true of poems more than anything else. It is not fair to just change a few words.

Start out and write your own ideas in verse without any aid at all, except the rules of writing verse, which most of you study in school.

Do not forget that plans are being made and contributions are coming in for the Halloween number and the Thanksgiving number.

I Am a Tennesseean

I am a Tennesseean!
My forefathers crossed her mountains with Boone.
One tilled her soil in the east,
Some settled along her mighty rivers,
Another was her first governor—
A strong and true statesman.
They have cleared her forests,
Built her cities,
Seen sunsets glow.
Years come and go.
Ah! They were her very greatness in the making;
Her very life and soul;
Her grand vastness and Southern graciousness.
They have shed their life's blood for her
On the red battlefields of every war.
Fought fer her!
Defended her!
Until she reached her State's height.
Every atom of dust that is in me
Comes from her very soul.
I am proud of my heritage!
I am a Tennesseean!

My Vacation

Although I had desired to take a vacation somewhere this summer, when Dad announced the glad tidings of a trip, I experience a most pleasant surprise, for the place he had chosen as our destination for a week or so was Atlantic City. Of course, you must have guessed already that the famous ocean resort was the body of my cherished hopes.

So, with our baggage stored safely in the automobile, and a couple of umbrellas on hand—for it was raining—we set off. Over the Washington Boulevard and through Baltimore with the first berak of dawn—only the sun did not rise that morning. The surrounding countryside was truly beautiful, and we enjoyed the drive very much. I liked crossing on the ferry best of all. At Newcastle, Del., we ferried across the river, which took some 10 or 12 minutes, although I could have stayed on the boat longer, for the Delaware River is so pretty.

Another picturesque setting was the expansive Susquehanna River, over which we passed on a bridge. At this point the river was widest, and farther on one could visualize the swirling waters hurrying out to meet the sea.

At last we reached Atlantic City. After settling at the hotel and unpacking our clothes we immediately progressed to the Boardwalk. The ocean, of course, was exceedingly rough, for the storm which had swept the entire coast had not spent itself as yet.

On Wednesday, however, the storm broke, and all the pent-up fury of the ocean gave way. Huge, towering waves lashed the beach and menaced the Boardwalk and, too, parts of the latter were torn away, it was later discovered. Every street was flooded, and people did not dare venture out, but stayed in their suites, as we did also.

But the next day low, sullen skies had vanished and in their place were bright blue ones, and a mellow sun to warn the hearts of all discouraged vacationists that day. I went in bathing and it was simply marvelous. Jumping the breakers with a heart free from worries, sensing the tang of salt water and feeling the warm sun—a treat in itself. The crowds swarmed to the beach and it was such a pretty sight, with all the colored suits, bright umbrellas and striped beach chairs.

At night we dressed up and paraded the Boardwalk like all the others did. The lights twinkled and blinked so merrily, and it made everybody feel younger and happier.

The ocean was so calm with the moon shining down on it, but then to me the waters held a secret, for they were dark and mysterious. In the day, with the sun beaming its golden rays, did I like the ocean best.

Daddy, mother and I attended many movies on the interesting and elaborate Steel Pier. One can spend the entire day there, for at each turn appears some diversion for young and old alike. Among the outstanding attractions was the sea elephant; then the marionettes, mystery show, feeding of animals, circus acts, water sports, minstrels and movies. One had the choice of any entertainment.

Another charming short trip we took during our stay there was the cool trolley ride to Longport and the Inlet. Here one had a much better view of the seemingly endless Atlantic Ocean.

Indeed, we enjoyed our vacation. It meant rest for Daddy and Mother, and for me it provided many thrills and pleasures. It will be with smiles, and happy memories that I can look back on my vacation at Atlantic City.

Evening

(Awarded $1 Prize.)

The stars are shining brightly,
The moon is all a-gleam;
It sends its moonbeams down
Upon the silver stream.

On the leafy maple tree
Two birds sleep, side by side;
Everything is silent—
For it is eveningtide.

In the Editor's Letter Box

Dear Editor: I am sending a picture which I have named "A Woman's Crowning Glory Is Her Hair." I did not, as you see, print the title under the picture, as I thought it too long for so small a drawing. I got the idea from a verse in the New Testament.

Also you will find a letter to Ding-How from my new little dog, Trix.

I will close now, hoping to see my two contributions in a future Junior Post, and wishing the little paper and its editor loads of luck. Sincerely, JEAN E. McCURDY.
50 St. Paul street, Kensington, Md.

Dear Editor: I want to thank you for publishing my picture, "The Hall of Science at the Century of Progress." I was very pleased to see it in your little paper.

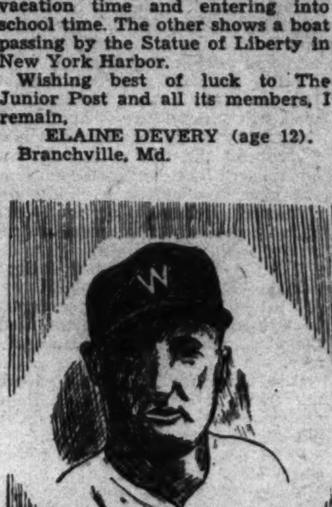
I am inclosing another drawing, "The Corsican," a picture of Napoleon Bonaparte. I hope I may see it published.

I enjoy drawing and painting and having some objective as The Junior Post makes it just that much more enjoyable and beneficial.

With wishes for all the luck in the world, I am, sincerely yours,
VIRGINIA H. HARRIS.
84 Military road, Cherrydale, Va.

Dear Editor: Inclosed are two drawings which I hope you will like and print. One shows a girl leaving vacation time and entering into school time. The other shows a boat passing by the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor.

Wishing best of luck to The Junior Post and all its members, I remain,
ELAINE DEVERY (age 12).
Branchville, Md.



Drawn by Ray Dean.

Dear Editor: This is only the second time that I have ever sent anything to The Junior Post. This time I am sending a letter from Timmy to Ding-How, a story and a cartoon.

I am crazy about The Junior Post and I hope my things will be published. Yours truly,
JOANNA HUNTINGTON.
Bluemont, Va.

Dear Editor: Inclosed you will find some pictures which I drew in hopes they would be printed.

I have sent in pictures before about the World's Fair, which I visited. I remain a reader of The Junior Post.

Dear Editor: It has been a long time since I have sent anything to our little paper, but I have always read it every Sunday, and I am very pleased with the improvements and its large membership.

I am inclosing a poem (free verse) to enter in the new poetry contest and several drawings which I hope will meet with your approval. May I wish The Junior Post the best of luck and hope to see my poem or drawings printed there? A faithful member,
PATRICIA DAVIS (age 17).

Dear Editor: Thank you so much for publishing my poem. It did not win a prize, but it was published. Does it have to win a prize for a pin?

I go to Washington to school in the winter, but in the summer we come up here.

I am sending Ding-How a letter from our dog, Rusty. Respectfully,
ELIZABETH TAYLOR.

Dear Editor: I received the check for $1 yesterday, for which I thank you very much, also for printing my story. I was pleased to see my work in print, as also were all over here. I wish I could go to Washington and visit you and Ding-How, but, alas! I must wait until I'm older.

I have received some letters from members of The Junior Post. As I am now back at school and working hard, I am unable to answer each individually, but I wish to thank all those who wrote for their kind letters.

I think I will close now. Wishing The Junior Post the best of good luck. Yours, sincerely,

The Pets' Corner.

Bow, wow, wow! Fall is here and an editor can walk through the leaves and make more of a rustle than most anybody can.

Anyway, we have lots of leaves about our house to walk in and Johnny Bull Dog says he is coming out to chew up some of them if I do not stop bragging about the matter. The idea! An editor never brags.

Saucy Little Black Dog is a great walker and waits on the corner every morning for me, and we go out and explore the neighborhood and try to get some news for the Pets' Corner. Saucy likes to walk the same way every time, though. How can you ever learn anything new if you go the same way every time? Bow, wow, wow, wow!

Meggie telephoned from the White House the family would be back next week and she would have so much to do in keeping up with the members that she would have to give up her favorite sport of squirrel chasing. Not a good sport, anyway—and Mr. and Mrs. Squirrel and their family object to it very much.

The Pigeon Family at the White House and their cousins, who live in Lafayette Park, are entering a peanut-eating contest. The prizes are to be more peanuts. Bow, wow, wow! Of course, the Park Pigeons see more people, but the White House ones may see more with peanuts in their pockets, for peanut venders seem to stand around there.

Mike Great Dane says he is going to write a book about birds. He seems to do a lot of studying for this book. I have seen him watch members of the Bird family for hours. Pansy and Daisy say they are too busy watching the flowers grow to spend any time writing.

Hop Toy Pekingese has been bragging again about writing for the Pets' Corner. Of course, Hop Toy can write, but he will not spend much time at it. Bow, wow, wow! He wants to borrow my typewriter and my eyeglasses, but those are two things an editor can not spare. Bow, wow, wow! Sandy Gordon says he is in charge of all the news around the courts for the Pets' Corner. Well, he never seems to have any for the Pets' Corner when it is time to go to press. I am sure the Judge would tell him some news if he told him his job as court reporter for the Pets' Corner depended on it.

Polly Doak has just telephoned from the home of former Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Doak in Virginia that she thinks something should be done in these NRA codes to keep the Parrot Industry from talking overtime.

Dear Ding-How: This is the first time I've ever written to you, so I imagine if I want to make a good impression I'd bettter introduce myself so you'll know just what I look like.

First I'll tell you my name and, seeing that I already know yours, we can easily imagine that we're saying "How do." Trix is my real name, although I'm called "baby," "doggy" and a few other silly names. I am very small, and am mostly white, and black.

My mistress says that if I could understand English I'd probably be so stuck-up I'd walk with my nose in the air, 'cause every one remarks about the beautiful dog she has (meaning me).

Speaking of my mistress reminds me that I have to have a beastly bath tomorrow, but please don't let her know that I don't like them 'cause she thinks I do.

How are you, my good friend? I feel very fine and dandy, considering that my mistress must start to school soon, and I'll miss her very much.

You must feel very proud of your eyeglasses, and typewriter. May I become star reporter of our neighborhood? If so I'll send some news in my next letter.

Well, must close. Bow, wow!

TRIX.

P. S.—My mistress is Jean McCurdy, 50 St. Paul street, Kensington, Maryland.

(Awarded $1 Prize.)

Dear Ding-How: I believe that this is the first time I have ever written to you. My mistress sometimes tells me all about you and I find you very interesting.

I live on a farm in the summer. It is not really a farm, but there are woods in which I like to hunt. Both the family at the big house, where I live and the one at the tenants' house have large vegetable gardens. We have two horses, a riding and a hunter. Believe it or not I once rode two miles for pleasure on the hunter with my mistress.

I am a fox terrier, but I don't want to bother talking about myself. I have so many more things to tell you about Journey's End, the place where I live in the summer.

One or two of my best friends are Dot and Pluto. Both of them are pointers and Dot took third prize in the dog show at the fair.

Some day I hope to be a member of the Pets' Corner.

Yours truly and respectfully,

TIMMY.

Joanna Huntington, Journey's End, Bluemont, Va.

Dear Ding-How: I have never written to you before, but then I am only 9 months old.

My mistress' grandmother called me a stupid lummox, which so insulted me that I was determined to prove I wasn't. Therefore one day when my master threw my leash over the croquet post I, after trying to gnaw through my leash, pull up the post and dig it up, respectively, lifted my leash off the post and walked away.

I hate grown-ups. My mistress' mother says she thinks I have been ill-treated, because of that and because whippings don't teach me anything.

I am a solid red Irish setter, with a V on my breast. My mistress says I'm quite pretty. Love,

RUSTY.

My mistress is Elizabeth Taylor.

Astronomy

Astronomy is very interesting when you get into it. There are many things you can imagine. For instance, you can think of what Mars would have on it. You can think of many queer things possible on any of the eight planets surrounding the planet Earth. From here a person would have to go about 35,000,000 miles to get to Mars, and about 93,000,000 miles to the sun. The human eye can see nearly 5,000 stars in the whole heavens, but not at one time, and with a telescope we can see about 50,000,000 stars. Some stars form pictures in the sky called constellations. At night I have seen many of them.

I have seen a certain constellation called Ursa Minor, or little bear. I have also seen its comrade, Ursa Major, or big bear, many times. You can find out a lot about astronomy from books in the library, or from books you buy. I bought one, and I have read some from the library. You can see for yourself many things about astronomy in the sky at night.

The names of the planets are Mercury, Venus, Earth, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune. Neptnue takes 59,730 days (165 years) to go around the sun. It takes Mercury 88 days to go around the sun. The moon, our satellite, is about 240,000 miles away from our planet. I have seen the moon look like it was about a mile away, and I have seen it look like it was a million miles away! The moon is 96,000,000 miles away from the sun.

The words "Monday" and "month" come from the word "moon." "Sunday" comes from the word "sun." There is not only one moon in the heavens. Saturn has eight. Neptune and Earth have one each, and Jupiter has five. Uranus has four, Mars has two and Mercury and Venus have none. These are just a few facts about astronomy.

Robert E. Lee

(Awarded $1 Prize.)

No person in the South honors any man more that Robert E. Lee, their commander in chief during the great Civil War.

Robert E. Lee was born on January 19, 1807, in Westmoreland County, Va., the same that gave to the world George Washington and James Monroe. Though fatherless at 11, the father's blood in him inclined him to the profession of arms, and when 18, on an appointment obtained for him by Gen. Andrew Jackson, he entered the Military Academy at West Point. He graduated in 1829, being second in in rank in a class of 46. Lee was at once made lieutenant of engineers; but till the Mexican War he attained only a captaincy. This was conferred on him in 1838.

In 1831 Lee had been married to Miss Mary Randolph Custis, granddaughter of Mrs. George Washington. By this marriage he became a possessor of the beautiful estate at Arlington, opposite Washington, his home till the Civil War. The union, blessed by seven children, was in all respects most happy.

In his prime Lee was spoken of as the handsomest man in the Army. He was about 6 feet high, perfectly built, fond of outdoor sports and life, enthusiastic in his profession, gentle, dignified, studious, broadminded and positively, though unobtrusively, religious. If he had faults, which those nearest him doubted, they were excess of modesty and excess of tenderness.

During the Mexican War, Lee directed most important engineering operations of the American Army, a work vital to its wonderful success.

Soon after the war with Mexico was settled, another great question came up—the slavery question. The North and South were disputing about slaves. The South got to such a point that they started to secede from the Union.

In April, 1861, Virginia followed. Lee thought it his duty to join Virginia, as he was a native of the State.

Lee from the first was Virginia's military hero and hope, but did not at once become such to the Confederacy at large. He did not immediately take the field. Till after the battle of Bull Run he remained in Richmond.

Lee soon afterward became commander in chief of the whole Southern army. The North and South had battle after battle, until the North had gained almost all the South. On April, 9, 1865, Lee and Grant met at Appomattox Court House, where he surrendered.

About five years later, on October 12, 1870, Lee passed away, loved and remembered by all the South.

Shower Bath.

Everything was hot and dusty,
And my little room was musty,
So I left all the windows opened wide;
Then along came a shower,
Just the freshest little shower,
And it sprinkled everything that was inside.

Oh, the curtains they were wringing,
And the bedclothes were all clinging,
And everything was just a general slop;
But the sweetness and the dampness
Chased away the dust and crampness,
And I sang a happy tune, as I labored with the mop!

The STAMP ALBUM

The mistakes folks make when looking over a stamp collection are many, and some are very funny.

I know a little boy who saw the 1905 issue of Belgium and, pointing to the picture of the king, he shouted "Santa Claus!" And there was a dear old lady who was sure the man on the 2-centavos of Costa Rica, 1889, was her long-lost brother. Only after it was shown her that the stamp was issued seven years before he disappeared was she convinced that it could not be her brother.

Noncollectors make other mistakes, as when they write about stamps. In the magazine section of The Washington Post of September 17 is an article on "Hobbies," and there is a drawing of President Roosevelt with a paste brush in one hand and a stamp in the other, while a paste jar and a stamp album are nearby. The article says President Roosevelt has a big collection of stamps "which he pastes in albums."

Perhaps he does, but, knowing how wise he is otherwise, I doubt it. Nearly all stamp collectors know one hinges stamps in albums with gummed peelable hinges.

But stamp designers make funny mistakes, too. Just for one, look at the first special delivery stamp of Egypt. It shows a man on a motorcycle, zipping along over the sands of the desert. Did you ever try to ride a bicycle in the deep sand? Well, to ride a motorcycle there would be far harder, and you'd never get a special delivery letter delivered that way.

Stamp Notes.

News that collectors have been waiting for comes from the Philatelic agency that the four plates of the Century of Progress imperforates may now be had at the Philatelic agency in Washington.

The Postoffice Department has advised that it will not issue the imperforate Century of Progress Exposition sheets in larger units than 25.

The recent ruling that 2 cents was sufficient postage for local "drop" letters has brought back into use the 73-cent book of 24 1-cent stamps and 24 2-cent stamps which had been obsolete for several years.

Argentina — Official stamp—another current postage stamp has been overprinted in black "M. J. I." in Roman letters.

Belgium—There will appear soon an "Unemployed Charity Issue," comprising 12 values with a total postal face value of 25 francs plus 75 francs surtax. The set will be on sale for one month and valid for postage 90 days.

The annual "Antituberculosis" series to appear next December will show the head and shoulders of a woman, holding the Cross of Lorraine.

Ecuador — The American Bank Note Co. is printing 5,000,000 10-cent stamps and 3,000,000 5-cent stamps in a design showing a volcano. Each separate million will be printed in a different color, making eight varieties.

The tenth anniversary of the Turkish Republic will be commemorated October 10 with a special issue of stamps and their use will be compulsory upon all letters posted on that day.

My Collection.

My collection contains about 2,500 stamps. I have been collecting stamps for about four years and in this time I have not spent very much money on my collection. Last year I bought an International Junior stamp album. This year I've had to add extra pages, which I have made to fit the album, for new issues, &c. I particularly like to collect United States stamps as most American boys do. Commemorative stamps have a particular fascination because they depict important events in history, which is one of my favorite subjects in school.

My next choice of countries is Canada, probably because it is a neighbor to the United States and also because I can read and understand all printing and cancellations on the stamps. Although Canada may not issue as many pictorial and colorful stamps as many other countries, the portraits are exceedingly interesting because they depict their rulers and great men in different poses and views. I also like the 1926 and 1928 issues of German postage stamps because they picture composers and other great men. It is very interesting to study the biographies of these men and find out what their connection is with Germany.

Lately I have become interested in collecting cachets and first-day covers and I hope to have a good collection of these also some day.—W. G., jr., in Stamps.

Happiness

Always be happy let come what may,
Busy at work, at school or at play.
We might get angry or cross or sore,
But keep up your spirit more and more.
In the beautiful, wonderful spring,
How happy the birds are when they sing!
In the summer when the sun shines bright,
And the little bee is busy in flight;
In the autumn when the leaves turn red,
And all the small insects are going to bed.
In the winter when the snow is crisp,
And the trees with ice are beautiful kissed.
We must be happy all the year roun'—
Always a smile and never a frown.

Gold.

"Columbus found no gold." School history.
Columbus found no gold?
But what of the moonlight on the sea,
And sunlight on the sand,
Or golden harvest of the honey bee?

Columbus found no gold?
What of the gold strewn by the setting sun
Upon Carib clouds banked low?
Or rising Southern Cross when day was done?

Columbus found no gold?
What of the golden grains of Indian corn?
Or beacon gleam the night
Before that twelfth of October morn?

A Field of Daisies.

Would you like to see a field of daisies growing here?
And around the field of daisies there is a little roaming deer.
I like to see some daisies with the petals so gay;
I think I'd like to see them on this very day.
This is all you can see
In a field of daisies just with me.

Story of Jack and the Beanstalk Is Related in Modern Version

Jack came home from the store, his arms filled with bundles. He reached the porch and kicked open the door.

"Jack!" his mother called.

"Yes'm."

"I forgot to tell you to get some beans. I am sorry, but you will have to go back."

The scowl upon Jack's face deepened.

"Aw, mom," he complained, "it's so hot. I don't want to go."

"But we must have them for supper, dear," his mother answered, patiently.

Jack scuffed out of the house, his eyes fastened upon the ground. He bought the beans and started home again.

On the way he met Rob, the doctor's son.

"What have you got?" Rob asked, peeping into the bag.

"It's nothing good, only beans," Jack sighed.

"Nothing good! Why, beans are better than candy, or anything you might call good!" Rob exclaimed.

Jack scowled, and then laughed, unbelievingly.

"You just say that, but I am sure you don't like beans."

"You come to my house some time and see," Rob challenged, and then he ran off, leaving Jack to find his way home.

That evening, as Jack sat down to the table, he looked up to see his father's disapproving eye upon him.

"What—what is it father?" Jack asked.

"You have forgotten to wash before meals again. Now, son, you must try and remember."

"Aw, dad, I can't," but, nevertheless, Jack obeyed.

"Mabel, what shall we do with the boy? He never——"

"There, there, John! You mustn't be too hard on the little fellow. He is young and will improve. All young boys are that way."

His father only sighed and shook his head.

When Jack came down he would not eat the beans, or any other vegetable, neither would he drink his milk. When the dessert was passed, Jack reached for his share, but his father checked him.

"You can't have dessert unless you eat some beans and drink your milk."

Jack frowned at the beans, then with one last look toward the dessert he rose from the table.

A few moments later Jack was seated on the rock next to the old elm in the woods. He held his new fairy story book in his hands. Quickly he turned over the pages, stopping at the story of "Jack and the Bean Stalk."

He hadn't been reading over ten minutes before he began to nod. He closed his book.

Then a curious thing happened. Suddenly, right before him, there sprang a vine. It grew until Jack couldn't see the top.

Scrambling to his feet, Jack examined it.

"Why, it's a bean stalk!" he cried aloud.

It didn't take him long to start climbing the bean stalk. He had not gone far before, on every branch, there hung either milk bottles, beans and other vegetables, bowls of water, towels or wash cloths.

Jack had no sooner noticed all these things when he heard a dreadful roar above him. Looking up he saw a huge giant climbing down the bean stalk toward him. Jack tried to scream, but he couldn't, for the giant's huge arm swept him from his feet up to the giant's level.

"Now I have you! So, you are the one who won't eat beans!"

Jack tried to speak, but the giant ordered him to be silent. He then proceeded to climb the bean stalk until he reached the top.

A small village lay at the top of the bean stalk, and all the inhabitants wore signs. One boy, who was dirty and sickly, wore a sign, "I don't wash." Another, who had no teeth, wore the sign, "I didn't drink milk nor brush my teeth." There also was a thin, pale and sickly man. He wore the sign, "I didn't eat vegetables."

"Please take me home," Jack begged the giant, when suddenly the giant stooped and, picking him up, threw him into the pile of ragged, dirty beggars.

"Jack! Jack!" his mother called.

Jack awoke from his dream to see both mother and father hurrying toward him.

"It's bedtime," the father told him, as he was lifted to his father's shoulder.

"Yes, daddy, but first I must wash and then eat my vegetables."

His father stared, then laughed.

"You must be still asleep, my boy. But I hope you stay asleep, for you can have all the vegetables and water you want."

And struggled hard to send forth light
And as it fluttered sparks about

And how we struggle to withhold
Our end, and fear growing old.

The Junior Post Airship

"Well, I guess you will be busy most of the month of October, since you have such an important position on the Halloween parade committee," said the pilot, as he tuned up the airship in preparation for the weekly flight around the world with the Current Events editor of The Junior Post for the benefit of members of The Junior Post Writers' Club and the George Washington Junior Citizens.

"I will," said the editor. "I am glad to help, of course. I think these Halloween parades and carnivals which are becoming a fixed annual event in Washington are very good for the encouragement of community spirit, anyway. The citizens of the District take great pride in these carnivals."

"I hear that the President and Mrs. Roosevelt and their grandchildren, Sistie and Buzzie, are to have a part in the carnival by appearing Halloween night. That is a good thing, too, for we always like to see the President, and his wife and children seem to fit in so well with Halloween."

"Those boys and girls seem to be having a good time," said the editor as they flew over a wooded hill near Washington. "That is their teacher with them and, from what my boys and girls tell me, it must be a nature study class from the public schools."

"Yes," said the pilot; "my sister's boys and girls have told me about them, too. It is a good idea to take the pupils right out in the fields and woods to see the trees and the other objects they study in the schoolroom. It is surprising how much they learn of the world about them."

Over the Eastern Shore of Maryland they flew in time to see the huge barges and boats being loaded with the red-to-the-rind watermelons so plentiful on the Eastern Shore this year.

Then across the ocean they flew in time to look down on the fair on the outskirts of London and to see the two small daughters of the Duke and Duchess of York selling flowers for the benefit of Crathie Church. As they flew above the fair the pilot and the editor saw the two tiny royal ladies drop their flower trays and engage in a merry game of pulling at the ropes of the tents.

Then they flew on to Stockholm, Sweden, in time to witness the greeting of two visitors from the United States—two pretty girls of the Swedish Vasa Order in America—by the new American Minister, Laurence A. Steinhardt.

Over the Swiss Alps they saw many mountain climbers who seemed to be enjoying the snow and ice and the adventure. They all lingered to hear the yodeling contest in many points of the Alps, with the children and older people contesting alike to try to yodel, which is the Swiss form of singing at the top of their lungs across the Alps.

Then across the ocean they came again to their own country in time to be present at the world series games with Washington, the pennant winner, this year at grips with the New York Giants. How proud the boys and girls of Washington are of our winning team this year.

The Story Book Lady.

"I am glad it is Saturday and such a nice day. We have a real club of the boys and girls of our neighborhood. They all come and read in the living room or on the porch nice days like today. I like the porch reading best," said Annabel to Claudie, as she hurried along with a group of boys and girls to meet the Story Book Lady for the weekly pilgrimage of The Junior Post Writers' Club and the George Washington Junior Citizens to Story Book Land.

"I think Saturday afternoon is a nice time to read, too," said Claudie. "Mother is going to buy us some more books so we will all have lots of books to read in our family and our neighborhood this fall."

"That is a very good idea—this habit of reading Saturday afternoons," said the Story Book Lady when they joined her. "I think there are so many nice books to read, anyway."

"I like to have Saturday afternoon for reading myself," said Mr. Gnome, at the gate of the Fairy Tale Bridge, leading to Story Book Land. "My grandsons, Blick, Flick and Little Mick, have a number of new books to read. They like to read after they return from the pilgrimage to Story Book Land."

"I think we all do," said the Story Book Lady. "It puts us in the reading spirit."

"The Queen has reading circles every Saturday afternoon," said the Story Book Fairy, who flew out of the Story Book Fairy Tale Forest followed by Merry and Jolly, the Story Book Fairy Children, all in their golden airplanes.

"Well," said John as they came to the first book street, "this seems to be a very good book for Saturday afternoon reading or any other kind of reading."

"It does, indeed," declared the Story Book Lady, putting on her magic glasses and leading the way down the book street. "It is called 'The Last of the Thundering Herd,' by Bigelow Neal (Sears Publishing Co., New York). It is all about the last of the buffalo and the strange, rather cruel, story which caused their slaughter. The story is centered about Ta-na Ha, the newborn buffalo calf. In it, too, we can read the story of Little Big Horn or the Custer Massacre."

"This is a good story, too," said Agnes, as they came to another book street.

"So it is," said the Story Book Lady, putting her magic glasses more firmly on her nose. "Let me see. It is called 'Dark Circle of Branches,' by Laura Adams Armer (Longmans Green & Co., New York). It is all about the people of the Navajo country and their weaving art."

Story Telling Clubs To Study Shakespeare

The first group of the National Junior Shakespeare Story-Telling Clubs will meet next month at Gunston School, under Mrs. William Channing Johnson, District organizer.

There will be story hours each week for 20 weeks. The children will also act in the plays at the end of the term.

The association reaches every State and its sponsors say that the response is encouraging.

Benny's Holiday.

It was quarter past nine. Benny wasn't in school. Neither was he sick. He was looking in Smith's Bakery window.

Benny felt in his pocket for some money; he found he had a quarter, a nickel and five pennies.

Benny went in and bought a pie, half a cake and an ice cream cone. He then started toward the old swimming hole with his hands in his pockets, whistling, "Bye, Bye, Blues."

When he got to the swimming hole he ate what was left of the cake and started in the water. He went out too far and got the cramps.

He yelled for help and who should come to his rescue but the truant officer.

He wasn't "out," but the truant officer took him to the doctor who gave him a big dose of castor oil and had him put to bed.

Benny got a licking and stayed until the next morning when he went to school.

The Sea.

Ever bright, blue, sparkling sea
I would ever like to be,
Down near your sandy shore
Hearing the big waves roar.

You travel many a mile
And are greeted by a smile
From a happy girl and boy
Full of happiness and joy.

You visit many a far land
Which lies on either hand,
North, south, east and even west,
But stop not to even rest.

You just keep on going
And never cease your flowing
And never stop your roaming
But just keep on flowing.

Adventures of a Camper

It was one of those rare days in early August, when the sun smiles down from a sapphire sky and warm breezes fan the traveler's cheek, that eight girls and four councilors started out from Camp May Flather and took the road which leads to Bear Lodge, a spot some 7 or 8 miles' distance from camp. The camp truck drove ahead of us, carrying all of our blanket rolls, supplies and provisions, which were to last us for three days. With little to carry, therefore, we swung along the mountain pathway with ease, stopping now and then to admire an unusual fungus growth, a bird or a rare flower. After walking for nearly two hours, we decided that it was lunch time; so we stopped by a stream and ate "nose bags" that had been provided for us.

After burning our refuse we went a little farther down the road to a shady spot, where we took "rest hour." We all stretched out on the grass while one of the group read to us from Kipling's "Jungle Book." We resumed our journey when a herd of cattle from a nearby pasture decided that the spot where we were was much better than where they had been grazing. During the remainder of the trip we were forced to cross several streams. We all succeeded in slipping on the rocks, crossing the first one; so, our feet already wet, we disregarded all dry crossings and waded right through the rest of the streams.

The middle afternoon found us at our destination, Bear Lodge. The place was a wilderness, devoid of any signs of civilization except an old frame shack (The Lodge) and a tumbled-down stable. We pitched camp some little distance from the buildings, in a beautiful sycamore grove, close by a stream. We started to work immediately, gathering wood for a fire, building caches, digging grease pits, &c. Some of us started digging a bean hole, lining it with stones, which we later heated with a roaring fire. When the fire had burned for some time, we cleared out the ashes and buried potatoes and corn, covering them over with dirt, and leaving them to be cooked by the heat of the stones. In the meantime we donned bathing suits and took a dip. The water was icy, but quite refreshing after our long, hot walk and the work of establishing camp. After the dip, we were all starved, and stood around with "drooling" mouths while those appointed cooks prepared steak to go with the already done potatoes and corn. One may be sure that we enjoyed that supper!

By the time we got all of our dishes washed and put away it was dark. We piled more wood on our supper fire, making it into a blazing council fire, around which we sat and sang songs until some of the group suggested that we go "snipe hunting." We did, with what, I should say, quite a bit of success. At 10 o'clock we sang taps and crawled into our envelope beds, where we might have slept soundly if it hadn't been for the gnats and mosquitoes.

We were awakened the next morning by the councilors trying to sing "reveille." They may not have sounded like a bugle, but they got us up with the reminder that we had to get our own breakfast. Before long we had a fire going and no sooner did we get pancakes, bacon and cocoa made than long-threatening clouds broke and there we were in the middle of a downpour. Such a scramble as there was, getting blankets and personal belongings under ponchos, pitching a tent and providing a protection for the food, &c. We ate water-soaked pancakes and watery cocoa that morning, while we stood under a tree, with rain running down our necks. We gathered on the porch of the old lodge and spent the rest of the morning watching Betty and "Libby," two of the councilors, skin and stuff a big wood rat, which the former had caught in a trap the night before.

By noon the rain had stopped and the sun showed signs of shining, so we ate our lunch in comfort, anyway. That afternoon we decided to explore the countryside. In our ramblings we found two bear skulls, which quite thrilled us. We kept our eyes open for some live bears, but we didn't see even one. When we had hiked about 2 miles we reached the foot of a steep mountain, Richland Knob, which we proceeded to climb. We climbed about half way up, but couldn't get to the top, as our time was short and we were all pretty exhausted, anyway. We arrived back at camp, tired, but not too tired to eat a hearty supper. After supper it started to rain again, so we decided to move our blankets to the lodge porch. It was well that we did, too, for it started to come down in torrents. Between our already wet clothing, the rain coming in on us more, and our crowded position, none of us slept very well that night, but we had loads of fun.

The next day dawned bright and sunny and after breakfast we rolled our blankets and ponchos and broke camp. The camp truck came and took our baggage back, so that we were free of things to carry with the possible exception of a pack basket carrying our lunch, several canteens, two pairs of field glasses, a haversack carrying the first aid kit, the bear skulls and miscellaneous other things. Quite enough, I should say! We started back to main camp by an entirely different route from the one we came on. It was by way of a high mountain. We followed a stream most of the way up and, of course, we each had to take our turn of falling in! Nothing very interesting happened on our journey aside from our capture of a copperhead and being attacked by a colony of hornets

We were a rather dirty, bedraggled group that arrived in camp that afternoon. Scratched, "hornet-stung," "mosquito-bit" and tired were we, but after a good cold shower and some clean clothes we felt grand and proceeded to settle down and tell our curious campmates, who didn't go, all about our trip.

DUH 2:17 JUST WENT BY AN' DEM RAILROAD PEOPLE DIDN'T FLING DAT FIVE GRAND OUT AT DUH PLACE YOUSE TOLD 'EM TO, BOSS
CONFOUND THEM! WE'LL CARRY OUT OUR THREAT THEN!
LISTEN! IN FIFTEEN MINUTES THE "FLYER" ENTERS THE TUNNEL ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE TRESTLE. WE'LL TAKE ONE OF THE LOCOMOTIVES OUT OF THE YARD ... OPEN THE THROTTLE ... JUMP OUT THIS SIDE THE TRESTLE AND LET HER BANG INTO THE "FLYER" HEAD ON!
TELEGRAPH
COME ON, ONE-EYE!
CHEE, BOSS! SOMEUN'S USIN' A TELEGRAPH INSTRUMENT IN DIS PLACE YOUSE SAID WAS VACANT !?!
SO! YOU WERE LISTENING, ME PRETTY ONE!? AND YOU TAPPED OUT A BRISK NOTE OF WARNING, EH? YOU WILL PAY WITH YOUR LIFE FOR THIS ATTEMPT TO THWART OUR PURPOSE!
MY LIFE IS NOTHING! THE 500 LIVES ABOARD THE "FLYER" ARE MY ONE CONCERN!
YOUSE ARE GONTA GET A FRONT ROW VIEW OF A SWELL WRECK BABY! HAR! HAR! HAR!
HURRY, ONE-EYE! WE'LL JUST ABOUT MEET THE "FLYER" IN THE TUNNEL AS IT IS—
THAT MESSAGE FROM THE OPERATOR IN THE YARD CAME JUST TOO LATE TO WARN THE "FLYER" BY THE BLOCK SIGNAL! IF I CAN ONLY REACH THE SWITCH ON THE OTHER SIDE THE TRESTLE IN TIME—
GREAT SCOTT!! HERE COMES THE LOCOMOTIVE NOW! TWO MEN JUST LEAPED OUT OF THE CAB!! I'M TOO LATE !! ???
RACING MADLY, WILDLY, OVER THE TRESTLE, THE UNATTENDED LOCOMOTIVE BEARS DOWN UPON OUR TRAPPED HERO — WHILE ONLY A MILE BEYOND COMES THE "FLYER" WITH HER 500 LIVES ABOARD—UNWARNED OF THEIR PERIL!!
HOOT-TOOOOOT!!
AT LAST I'M LOOSE! BUT EVERY SPLIT SECOND BRINGS DISASTER CLOSER—
I MUST DROP BETWEEN THESE TIES!!
I CAN'T WARD OFF THAT HORRIBLE CATASTROPHE NOW—BUT I CAN CATCH THE FIENDS WHO CAUSED IT— IF MY STRENGTH HOLDS OUT!
WHEW! WHAT A CLOSE CALL, SISTER! WE HEARD YOUR WHISTLE WHEN YOU WERE ON THE TRESTLE— THANK GOODNESS WE HAD SLOWED UP FOR THE TUNNEL—
FATHER ONCE SHOWED ME ALL ABOUT LOCOMOTIVES SO AS SOON AS I COULD CRAWL BACK TO THE CAB I KNEW WHAT TO DO—
CROSSING THE TRESTLE THE WAY I WAS FORCED TO, ALLOWED ME TO COME UPON THESE TWO REPTILES UNOBSERVED!
I AM AN OFFICER OF THIS ROAD, YOUNG MAN, AND I CAN PROMISE YOU AND THIS GIRL $10,000 REWARD FOR SAVING THE "FLYER" AND THE LIVES ABOARD - BESIDE CATCHING THESE RATS!

MURDER! MURDER!
NICE AND WARM TODAY, NIPPER.
WHERE 'BOUTS ARE YOU GOIN', NIPPER ?
I'M RUNNIN' AWAY FROM HOME, RUFF, THAT'S WHERE I'M GOIN'! I'M FED UP ON BEING LICKED EVERY TIME MY MOTHER NEEDS A LITTLE EXERCISE!
RUNNIN' AWAY FROM HOME? YOU GIMME A PAIN IN THE NECK!
SHUCKS! RUNNIN' AWAY FROM A SWELL HOME JUST BECAUSE YOUR MOTHER BEATS YOU UP ONCE IN A WHILE.. MAKES ME LAUGH.. HA, HA, HA!
COME ON OVER TO MY HOUSE TILL YOU COOL OFF, AND THEN IF YOU WANT TO RUN OFF, WHY GO TO IT.
ALL RIGHT!
MY MOTHER!
OH, THERE YOU ARE!
DID N'T I TELL YOU TO DIG THEM POTATOES ?
MUSHROOMS FOR TOURISTS WITH GRAVY NAILS
DOES IT HURT, RUFF?
PIP GINT
NOW YOU DIG INTO THEM POTATOES OR I'LL DIG INTO YOU.
COME ON! I'LL RUN OFF WITH YOU!
YOU BIG SAP, RUNNIN' AWAY FROM A SWELL HOME JUST BECAUSE YOUR MA DUSTS YOUR PANTS A LITTLE..
COME OVER TO MY HOUSE TILL YOU COOL OFF, THEN, IF YOU WANT TO RUN OFF, WHY, OKAY.

Johann Wolfgang Von Goethe, said by many to be the greatest writer Germany has produced, began his famous Faust in 1770 when he was a young man, but did not write its final pages until 1832, a few months before he died. Faust was almost his first and likewise almost his last literary effort—it was also his greatest.

During the intervening years Goethe wrote many works which are among the masterpieces of literature. He also found time to study art, music, law, and science, and to write critical essays. As a child he was precocious and, although he never went to school regularly, he knew something of Greek, Latin, French, and Italian, as well as his native German, when he was but eight years old.

* * * *

The million-dollar henhouse illustrated on this page is a building once intended to be a fine hotel in Miami. The structure was still unfinished when the bottom fell out of the Florida boom, and it was abandoned. It stood vacant for several years until it was put to use as a gigantic chicken house in which now are housed more than 60,000 laying hens.

Snow appears to be white, but taken separately the individual crystals have as many colors as the rainbow because, by refraction, the white light of the sun striking them is broken up into the various colored lights that make it up—similar in some ways to the way rain breaks up sunlight to form the rainbow. There are so many crystals in snow, however, that the variously colored lights from them blends together to form the impression of whiteness to the observer.
